$5,500 Payoff Claimed for Jobless Colonel

WASHINGTON (UPI) — William Henry Whalen, a retired U.S. army lieutenant-colonel who served with the Pentagon's top command, was arrested Tuesday on charges he peddled atomic, missile and bomber secrets to the Russians.

* * *

Whalen, 51, who faces a possible death penalty if convicted, was accused of selling the defence department data to two Soviet embassy officials for $5,500.

* * *

The Russians who received what the FBI called "information relating to military intelligence matters" were identified as military attache Col. Sergei Edemski, who returned to Russia in 1960, and Mikhail Shumaev, first secretary of the Soviet embassy in Washington, who went home in 1963.

The FBI said Whalen, unemployed at the time of arrest, served on active duty in the army from Oct. 15, 1940, to Feb. 3, 1961, when he retired due to a physical disability.

* * *

His last few active years were spent at the Pentagon on the staff of the joint chiefs of staff, the highest U.S. military command.

Whalen was indicted by a grand jury in Newport News, Va., then arrested by the FBI in his home at Alexandria, Va.

Within a few hours, he was released on $15,000 bond.

Officials said several people contributed to the bail, but declined to identify them.

Whalen, described by one neighbor as "one of the kindest men in the neighborhood," lived in a modest split level home on a quiet, wooded street.

The neighbors said Whalen and his wife were friendly, but few people knew them well. They have one child, Kathy, 11.

* * *

The U.S. defence department issued a statement saying that it had learned of what it called a "security problem" a number of months ago.

It declined to discuss details of actions taken to counter security violations, but said:

* * *

"After prompt and full investigation, the facts in this case were given special attention in our continuing efforts to effect improvements in security, particularly as regards security, trustworthiness of personnel in sensitive position and the adequacy of controls over the handling of classified documents."

Young Negro girl sightseeing on grounds of North Carolina state capitol in Raleigh Monday found herself in line of fire on two counts. Old-time cannon seems to be pointing straight at her, and far more important, she wandered into an area just as Ku Klux Klansmen began anti-integration rally on capitol grounds. Indications are rally was quiet.—(AP)

Strike Vote Friday At CBC

TORONTO (CP)—The Toronto Association of Television Producers and Directors decided Tuesday to take a strike vote Friday.

David Thomas, treasurer of the association, who works for the CBC, declined to disclose reasons for the vote.

However, he said the association's membership included producers and directors who are involved in the current troubles at the CBC.

U.S. Subsidiary Told:

DON'T MILL FOR REDS

OTTAWA (CP)—Trade Minister Winters said Tuesday a check with several U.S.-owned flour mills in Canada has failed to substantiate charges they have been forbidden by their U.S. head offices to mill Canadian wheat for sale to Cuba.

He said more checks would be made today with other U.S.-owned companies to see whether they have received such instructions.

In Peterborough, a spokesman for Quaker Oats Co. of Canada said the company is forbidden by its U.S. parent from processing any wheat board for Cuba, China, North Viet Nam and North Korea.

In Montreal, a spokesman for Robin Hood Flour Mills Ltd. said he has received no such order.

Mr. Winters was replying to L. R. Sherman (PC—Winnipeg South) who said he has learned on good authority that Robin Hood, Quaker and Pillsbury flour mills, all three U.S.-owned, have been forbidden to mill wheat for sale to Cuba. He said no such restriction applies to American firms in Canada milling flour for Russian use.

ISSUED EARLIER

Mr. Sherman said the instructions were not new—they had been issued some time ago and never been rescinded.

The Winnipeg broadcaster said 45,000,000 bushels of the recent big grain deal between Canada and Russia were to be milled into flour. Two-thirds of this was earmarked for Cuba and carried a $6,600,000 annual price tag.

TORY CONCERNED

While there were enough Canadian-owned mills to handle the Cuban order and no loss was involved if the American companies did not take part in the order, Mr. Sherman said he was concerned about the effect on Canadian sovereignty.

Would such actions on behalf of the American-owned mills adhere to principles of good corporate citizenship?

Patience Stretched Along 49th

By FRASER KELLY, Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA—Maybe its the heat—or the humidity—but Canada-U.S. relations seem to be getting sticky.

For the past two days the Commons has been subjected to a series of niggling gibes at the United States. Taken alone they look insignificant.

Lumped together, they begin to indicate the patience on both sides of the 49th Parallel is wearing a little thin.

* * *

First, Viet Nam: The Canadian government has expressed "regret" at American bombing of oil dumps outside Hanoi and Haiphong.

It has refused to issue a statement openly deploring the bombing. But it is obvious the federal government believes the U.S. action has hampered the possibility of a negotiated settlement.

Then came the suggestion that at least one Canadian firm has contracted to sell the Americans bombs that could be used in Viet Nam.

The Canadian government has maintained that no Canadian firms sell bombs to the United States.

* * *

But early this week, U.S. Secretary of Defence Robert McNamara told a Washington press conference his government was cancelling some Canadian defence contracts, including one to supply bombs.

Industry Minister Charles Drury, who has been pummelled with questions about the press conference, has promised to investigate.

Tuesday, Conservative leader John Diefenbaker hinted the U.S. was cancelling a $63,000,000 contract to supply the U.S. parts for the DC-9 jetliner. (See also Pages 11, 16.)

* * *

Mr. Drury promised to investigate that too.

Mr. Diefenbaker also asked if Prime Minister Pearson had received a letter from President Johnson protesting the agreement to provide direct flights between Moscow and Montreal.

Then Tory L. R. Sherman, from Winnipeg, told the Commons the U.S. is infringing on Canadian sovereignty by preventing three Canadian subsidiaries of U.S. firms from milling flour for sale to Cuba.

Trade and Commerce Minister Winters promised to investigate that, too.

With three big complaints, there'll be no end to the yacking.

'Open Gates to Outside World'

Johnson Beckons Red China

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Johnson told Communist China's rulers Tuesday night that "co-operation, not hostility, is the way of the future." He urged them to renounce aggressive designs and to open their vast country's gates to the outside world.

In what the White House described as his first major statement on China, the U.S. president appealed for peaceful coexistence with the world's most populous nation as the best hope for a peaceful, prosperous Asia.

At the same time, he warned North Viet Nam—and appealed to Americans to understand—that the United States will stand firm in Viet Nam in a war that "may last a long time."

PEACE FRAUD

Johnson's speech was described in advance by the White House as an official declaration of a "firm but flexible" U.S. policy toward the Peking regime, one firm against aggression but flexible if China ends its expansionist ambitions in Southeast Asia.

As he spoke, Chinese Vice-Premier Chen Yi told a Peking banquet the bombing of Hanoi and Haiphong oil installations was military blackmail designed to force the Vietnamese to accept "the fraud of peace talks." Chen Yi said the Johnson administration had "come down a blind alley" in the war.

The president delivered his speech by telephone to 1,300 members of the American Alumni Council, an association of executives and newspaper editors representing 980 colleges and universities.

Johnson spoke at a time when China is undergoing a political purge of deep but largely unknown dimensions, one evidently centering around its ideological dispute with the Soviet Union's emergent policy of peaceful economic and

Heat Wave Kills 17 In St. Louis

From UPI

A searing heat wave took a heavy toll of lives, triggered power shortages and caused plant layoffs in the U.S. middle west Tuesday. Violent storms battered the lower Great Lakes and deluged Sandusky, Ohio, with nearly 12 inches of rain.

Unseasonably hot, sticky weather made life miserable across most of the eastern two-thirds of America.

The mercury climbed above the 100 mark across a vast belt of the midwest. Air conditioners put a dangerously heavy drain on power supplies.

* * *

An estimated 300 to 400 persons were given first aid treatment — mostly as a result of the broiling sun and a 103-degree temperature—at the major league all star baseball game in St. Louis (See Page 9.)

Union Electric Co. in St. Louis was forced to shut off electricity to widespread areas of the city to prevent a dangerous power blackout. The shortage prompted General Motors to shut down operations at its Chevrolet and Fisher body plants there.

* * *

The Federal Power Commission, alarmed by an almost statewide power blackout in Nebraska Monday, ordered the nation's major electrical utilities to take extra precautions during the current heat wave to prevent such failures.

By mid-afternoon, the mercury had climbed to 100 or above in Illinois, Missouri, Kansas, Nebraska and Oklahoma as well as in the desert southwest.

* * *

Officials at Sandusky declared a state of emergency when the torrential downpours turned streets into rivers and floodwaters swept into homes, businesses and a hospital.

Hundreds of persons fled from their homes. National Guardsmen were mobilized and amphibious vehicles were brought in to aid in the evacuation.

Peace Balked In Air Strike

WASHINGTON (AP) — Peace talks in the U.S. airline strike broke off Tuesday.

Joseph Ramsey, chief negotiator for the AFL-CIO International Association of Machinists, accused Northwest Airlines of violating an understanding that both sides would maintain the status quo during current negotiations.

Assistant Labor Secretary James Reynolds said he will try to restore relations.

Reynolds described the development as a serious impediment in the effort to end the walkout, which has halted 60 per cent of U.S. air transportation since it began last Friday.

The airlines stopped by the strike are Eastern, Northwest, Trans-World, United and National.

Moscow Hails Indira

MOSCOW (Reuters)—Indian Prime Minister Indira Gandhi received an enthusiastic welcome when she arrived here Tuesday for talks with Russian leaders in which she will urge them to further the cause of peace in Viet Nam.

Her five-day Soviet visit was expected to test the influence of the non-aligned powers in international affairs when she presents the Kremlin with a new Vietnamese peace plan backed by Yugoslavia and the United Arab Republic.

Tiniest Boat Crosses Atlantic

FENIT, Ireland (UPI) — A lone U.S. sailor brought his homemade 12-foot sailboat into this small port on Ireland's southwest coast Tuesday to complete a 65-day crossing of the Atlantic from Florida.

William Verity, 40, of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., made the voyage in his tiny sloop Nonalca to fulfil his goal of crossing the Atlantic in the smallest boat on record.

* * *

Cleveland newsman Robert Manry crossed the Atlantic last year in a 13½ foot sailboat, the Tinkerbelle.

Verity said he also wanted to show it was possible that man crossed the Atlantic in small boats long before Columbus sailed to America.

He said he believed his voyage proved Europeans, among them the Phoenicians and the early Irish monks, sailed the Atlantic in tiny craft. He maintained it also lent support to an Irish legend that the Irish discovered America before Columbus or the Norwegians.

Verity, a 5-foot, 6½ inch boat builder, said he completed his lonely sail without much incident.

At one point, he said, he ran into some rough weather, broke a halyard and had to climb the mast to repair it.

He said he was in no real danger until he reached the County Kerry coast Monday night in darkness and had difficulty in fixing his position.

When he arrived, he still had about 10 days supply of food left.

* * *

Verity started his journey from Veracruz, Mexico, more than a year ago but spent several months in Fort Lauderdale before resuming the voyage last May.

The name of his boat, Nonalca, is the Mexican Indian word for stranger, or foreigner.

Two Ships Ablaze In Atlantic

THE HAGUE (Reuters) — The big Norwegian tanker Mosli and the Greek tanker Marietta Nomikos radioed today that they are on fire after a collision in the Atlantic about 300 miles off the Azores, Dutch maritime sources said.

The British ship Reavely radioed it could see one ship ablaze from stern to stern.

Pentagon Secrets

The grand jury indictment accused Whalen of slipping the Soviet officials information on atomic weaponry, missiles, European defence plans and Strategic Air Command plans.

* * *

The information on SAC consisted of potential U.S. retaliatory measures against Russia in the event of war, the indictment said.

The grand jury alleged Whalen received $5,500 from the Russians on six occasions.

It claimed Whalen received $1,000 from the two agents in December, 1959. This initial meeting was followed by six other meetings in Alexandria, a suburb just across the Potomac from Washington.

* * *

Normally, one or other of the Russians would meet Whalen at a shopping centre where the money would be passed. Whalen received $5,000 on five separate occasions, plus $500 at a sixth meeting.

How long the meetings extended from late 1959 was not divulged.

* * *

The indictment said Whalen agreed to make notes from documents in the files of the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

"It was further a part of said conspiracy that the defendant would engage in conversations with fellow officers for the purpose of securing information," the grand jury said.

* * *

The FBI said Whalen was assigned to the European theatre of operations from May, 1945, until December, 1947, and served in Japan from 1952 to 1955.

* * *

In July, 1955, he was assigned to the U.S. army intelligence branch in Washington. From there, he went to the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

British Attitude Angers Zambian

LUSAKA (Reuters)—President Kenneth Kaunda Tuesday threatened to take Zambia out of the Commonwealth over Britain's attitude on the Rhodesian question.

He said he objects to what he called British manoeuvres over the date of the Commonwealth prime minister's conference to discuss the Rhodesian independence issue.

Mr. Winters agreed that Canadian processors would gain from such an American directive but there was no proof such a directive existed.

The government too was concerned about the possible "extra-territoriality" in any such U.S. directive.

Mr. Winters said several other such alleged cases had been brought to the government's attention and had been vigorously pursued with the U.S. government. If the actions had been contemplated in the other cases, steps had been taken to prevent it.

MARTIN PROMISE

The government would get the facts in the case brought to its attention of Mr. Sherman. If a case exised, it would be taken up with the Americans.

Earlier External Affairs Minister Martin, replying to Mr. Sherman and Opposition Leader Diefenbaker, said the matter hadn't been brought to his attention. He promised to look into it.

Mr. Diefenbaker said Mr. Sherman's question is of great consequence to determine whether the U.S. administration is asserting extra-territorial jurisdiction over Canadian corporations.

He said the United States had tried this when he was prime minister.

Right to Public Support Explained

By DENNIS ORCHARD

OTTAWA (CP) — The man who refuses to work still has a right to public support under the new concept of public assistance in Canada, Welfare Minister MacEachen said Tuesday.

He said the right is specifically set out in the Canada Assistance Plan passed by the Commons last week.

The man and his family must demonstrate only their need for financial help, Mr. MacEachen told a Senate committee examining the plan.

NO MOTIVATION

His deputy welfare minister, Joseph Willard, said welfare workers have come to realize "psychological blockages" of long background have sapped some persons of any motivation to work. Some families have lived on welfare for generations.

The purpose of "work-activity projects" envisaged by the plan is to restore work habits and motivation, he said. The projects probably would prepare men and women for vocational and technical training, starting with matters as basic as grooming habits and how to approach employers for a job.

DESERVES AID

But even if a man refused to enter such a project, he deserved—as a right—assistance according to need.

Mr. Willard said the federal government believes the number of persons freeloading on social assistance is small, perhaps infinitesimal. Several senators agreed that the freeloaders have better fortune with social insurance-particularly unemployment insurance.

THIS WEEK

The committee took just 75 minutes to question the health minister and report the bill back to the Senate, where it is expected to be passed this week.

MacEachen

The plan authorizes a 50-per-cent federal contribution to provincially-run welfare programs. The provinces are free to merge assistance to the elderly, the blind, the disabled, and to mothers, into a single system.

CEILING LIFTED

The $75-a-month ceiling is removed by the legislation with a pledge substituted, obliging the provinces to provide for food, shelter, clothing, fuel, utilities, household supplies and personal requirements.

Beyond these basic requirements, provinces may assist with costs of travel, funerals, health care and special care in institutional homes.

DISCRIMINATION

Senator David A. Croll (L—Ontario) said the "great weakness" of the plan is its discrimination against the have - not provinces.

"What good is flexibility if the province hasn't got the money to match your federal grants?" he asked.

EQUALIZATION

Mr. MacEachen said the problem of equalization confronts every provincially - administered scheme. In this case, the federal government decided to wait for the federal-provincial tax - structure committee to come up with a general program of equalization.

Diabetic Food Doesn't Exist; Dietetic Food Has No Meaning

Your Good Health

By JOSEPH MOLNER, MD

Dear Dr. Molner: My mother-in-law has diabetes, and we would like to know the difference between diabetic and dietetic food.—M.A.L.

These are confusing terms and relatively meaningless to boot.

There really is no such thing as diabetic food. A diabetic eats the same food purchased for ordinary use, but the amount must be controlled.

Starchy foods may be strictly limited. Indeed calories may be limited, since the amount of food consumed must remain within the amount that can be utilized by the body. (Insulin, or diabetes medications taken by mouth, can increase the amount to some extent.)

ORDINARY BREAD

As an example, some diabetics may be allowed three or four slices of bread a day. This means ordinary bread, not dietetic or special forms of bread.

Sugar must be kept very low in the diet, and eliminated entirely if possible. The natural desire for desserts can be met by making cookies, cake or other sweets with artificial sweeteners, but these can be eaten by anyone. These are not necessarily diabetic or dietetic items. Many people use artificial sweeteners to reduce weight.

GIMMICK WORD

The word dietetic applied to foods is principally a gimmick. After all, anything in anyone's diet is dietetic, which is why I say the term is essentially meaningless. It means whatever anybody wants it to mean, whether low in sugar, starch, fat or roughage—or high. It is often applied to foods to which vitamins or minerals have been added. It is applied to almost anything that is sold to be eaten when there is an attempt to imply that there is something special about the food. But food is food.

* * *

Dear Dr. Molner: My mother, 82, suffers considerable discomfort from arthritis. For years she took aspirin, but she has discontinued it completely because she feels quite sure that she read in your column that frequent use of the drug could cause deafness. She has experienced some loss of hearing. Would you suggest that she desist from use of aspirin or might limited dosage be recommended without endangering her hearing? — E.S.G.

If she read such a thing, she must have read it elsewhere, because I do not know of any reason why aspirin will endanger hearing. However, large doses can causes ringing in the ears.

Some hearing loss usually comes with advancing age, but to say aspirin is responsible is not correct. I hope your mother goes back to using whatever aspirin she needs for comfort.

* * *

Dear Dr. Molner: Does albumin in the urine always mean kidney disease?—MRS. S.G.

No, but it often does. In some circumstances it may not indicate any trouble at all, but that is the exception. Presence of albumin always should warrant investigation.

Red China Beckoned

cultural coexistence with the West.

The U.S. president extended no specific offers to China except for a broad vision of development of the Asian continent.

White House sources said the speech had no bearing on current U.S. policy against Red China's admission to the United Nations, for example. They pictured it instead as "looking down the path" to see whether Peking would respond toward building a peaceful Asia.

Johnson declared that "lasting peace can never come to Asia as long as the 700,000,000 people of mainland China are isolated by their rulers from the outside world."

RELATIONSHIPS

He outlined four essential conditions for peace in Asia. The most difficult, he said, is "reconciliation between nations that now call themselves enemies"—an obvious reference to China.

"We have learned in our relations with other such states that the weakness of neighbors is a temptation and only firmness backed by power can deter power backed by ambition," he said.

FREE FLOW

"But we have also learned that the greatest force for opening closed minds and closed societies is the free flow of ideas and people and goods."

The U.S. president said "we persist because we believe that even the most rigid societies will one day awaken to the rich possibilities of a diverse world."

"And we persist because we believe that co-operation, not hostility, is the way of the future," he declared.

MUST COME

"That day is not yet here. It may be long in coming, but it is clearly on its way. And it must come."

"We are fighting a war of determination," Johnson said. "It may last a long time. But we must keep on until the Communists in North Viet Nam realize the price of aggression is too high — and either agree to a peaceful settlement or to end the fighting."

"However long it takes, I want the Communists in Hanoi to know where we stand.

FIRM STAND

"First, victory for your Armies is impossible. You cannot drive us from South Viet Nam by force. Do not mistake our firm stand for false optimism — as long as you persist in aggression, we will resist.

"Second, the minute you realize that a military victory is out of the question, and turn from the use of force, you will find us ready to reciprocate. We want to end the fighting. We want to bring our men home. We want an honorable peace in Viet Nam. In your hands is the key to that peace. You have only to turn it.

CRUCIAL AREA

Focusing his entire speech on hopes for peace in the Far East as "the crucial arena" of man's current strivings, Johnson insisted that America "will not retreat from the obligations of freedom and security in Asia."

"Every American must know exactly what it is we are trying to do in Viet Nam," the U.S. president said. "Our greatest resource in this conflict — our greatest support for the men who are fighting there — is your understanding. It is your willingness to carry — perhaps for a long time — the burden of a confusing and costly war."

Johnson's emphasis upon the possibility of a long war and his rejection of false optimism were significant in light of his statement a week ago that reports from diplomatic sources indicated the North Vietnamese no longer expect a military victory.

Traditions Mean Nothing To Father's Successor

CHARLOTTETOWN (CP) — Alexander B. Campbell has followed his father's footsteps into the office of Prince Edward Island premier without caring a hoot for traditional age barriers.

A father of two, the dynamic young Liberal won't reach his 33rd birthday until Dec. 1 this year but has already crammed a veterans' share of political experience into 17 months.

He parlayed his youthful image and reorganization of the province's Liberal machine into a hot contender at the start of the May 30 election campaign and ended in a 15-seat deadlock with the Progressive Conservative forces of Premier Walter R. Shaw, 78.

A deferred election in Kings 1st Monday, brought about by the death of a Liberal candidate May 26, was swept by two Liberals and lifted Mr. Campbell into power as the youngest man to be elected premier of a Canadian province in this century.

Mr. Campbell is also 10 years younger than his father when he became premier at 42 in 1936.

Thane A. Campbell, now chief justice of the P.E.I. Supreme Court, took over the reins of office following the death of Premier Walter M. Lea, inheriting a house of 30 Liberals and no opposition members. He was re-elected in 1939 and resigned in 1943.

If Mr. Campbell wasn't originally sure of his future in politics, island Liberals had less difficulty in sizing up his potential.

THREE CALLERS

"On the day I set up my law practice in Summerside in 1959, I had three callers," he recalls. "Two were insurance salesmen and one was a gentlemen asking if I would offer as a Liberal candidate in the 1959 provincial election."

Mr. Campbell declined then, but was in the running for the Prince Liberal nomination in the 1963 federal election. He lost the convention choice by one vote to J. Watson MacNaught but he had made himself known.

WON BYELECTION

He won election in a provincial byelection in February, 1965, and the following December was chosen the youngest Liberal leader in the history of the provincial party.

"I'd wondered for the last two months what my reaction would be. My first reaction was one of relief that the matter now was settled."

Navy Flyers Busy Too

Missiles, Fighters Attack U.S. Planes

SAIGON (AP) — The North Vietnamese launched nine missiles and two MiG-21 fighter planes Monday in an effort to curb intensified U.S. air attacks on North Viet Nam, but a spokesman announced Tuesday that American Air Force pilots outmaneouvred all to press raids on missile, radar and fuel sites and other targets.

U.S. Navy flyers wrote off 59 barges and cargo junks as destroyed or damaged. One missile site was reported destroyed.

In all the Americans flew 101 missions.

PLANE LOSSES

Mounting U.S. aircraft losses were reported.

The U.S. command announced the destruction of two fighter-bombers by enemy ground fire, boosting to 290 the plane toll since operations were launced at North Viet Nam Feb. 7, 1965.

In other phases of the war:

● Ground action in South Viet Nam subsided after a sweep Monday by 1,000 South Vietnamese rangers and militiamen cleared Viet Cong guerrillas from swamplands near a major oil depot 10 miles southwest of Saigon.

● Gen. William C. Westmoreland, commander of U.S. forces in South Viet Nam, toured the northern part of the country and told correspondents in Hue the situation looks good.

● U.S. Navy Secretary, Paul H. Nitze told a press conference in Da Nang the U.S. 7th Fleet is capable of blockading North Vietnamese ports if a blockade should be ordered.

● Viet Cong leaders were reported showing increasing concern about the South Vietnamese government's program to lure enemy fighters to defect. A total of 10,171 have defected so far this year, about twice the number deserting in the same period of 1965.

Church Groups Urge Boycott

SAIGON (UPI) — Splinter groups from South Viet Nam's leading religious and political organizations Tuesday called for a boycott of the September elections for a constituent assembly.

However, the 10 dissident factions that signed a boycott communique were said to have very little influence.

The splinter groups banded together in a new organization called "Citizens and Religious Front."

COMPLETE CONTROL

It claimed the military government of Premier Nguyen Cao Ky would have complete control over the constituent assembly once it was elected.

Those who signed the communique included Thich Phap Tri, vice chairman of the National Buddhist Institute and the Rev. Hoang Quynh, leader of a Catholic faction made up mostly of refugees from North Viet Nam.

SECTS SIGN

Others who signed the communique were representatives of the Cao Dai and Hoa Hao religious sects, the General Association of Buddhists, the Protestants, the Vie Nam Nationalist Pary, the National Union Fron, the National Revolutionary Council and the representative council of the Saigon Students Congress.

The boycott group demanded the "immediate formation of a provisional revolutionary civilian government."

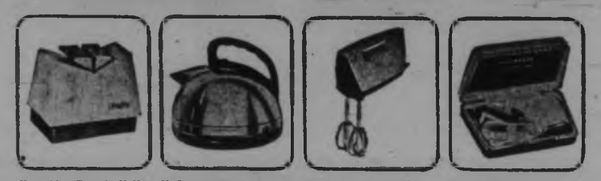

Operation Jewel Ambushed

MARBLEHEAD, Mass. (UPI) — Thieves who took $83,000 in jewels in a commando-type raid on the swank estate of a Marblehead millionaire planned to fly the loot to Florida.

Police and FBI agents seized a Piper Cub, flown in from Florida. To be used to whisk the jewels to Miami.

Six men, including three from the Miami area, were arrested in connection with Sunday's bold invasion of the estate of millionaire philanthropist John Rimer.

Medicare Bill Starts Course Through House

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commons gave first reading Tuesday night to a medicare bill and the government announced its intention to try to get the bill through its toughest parliamentary stages before a summer recess.

In the resolution stage, Conservatives accused the government of trying to impose a federal plan on satisfactory provincial ones. Party spokesmen indicated the bill should go before a committee, meaning it should be held off until the fall.

New Democrats were the only opposition members to give the measure strong support and urge that it be handled before the recess.

BY CENTENARY

The basic principles of the federal medicare offer were reaffirmed by Mr. MacEachen, who expressed the hope that provincial plans will be available to all by the 100th anniversary of Confederation, July 1, 1967.

Mr. MacEachen was launching debate on the government's proposed medical care insurance legislation which would authorize the federal government to contribute toward the costs of provincial plans that meet four conditions.

An amendment by Gerald Baldwin (PC — Peace River) asking that medicare not go into effect until its economic impact was studied by the Economic Council of Canada was rejected as out of order by Deputy Chairman Maurice Rinfret.

WILL PAY HALF

Mr. MacEachen reiterated that the federal government will pay half the per capita costs of provincial plans as originally announced last summer by Prime Minister Pearson.

He estimated that Canadians will spend $600,000,000 in 1967 on physicians' services. The federal government was allowing for possible rises in this figure.

Current federal estimates are that with all provinces participating it would cost the federal treasury about $340,000,000 a year.

SAME CONDITIONS

Mr. MacEachen said the conditions attached to the federal offer remain as outlined by Mr. Pearson. These are:

● Benefits must cover all the services provided by general practitioners and specialists at home, hospital, nursing home, doctor's office or elsewhere.

● Coverage apply at the start to at least 90 per cent of the population of each province, rising to 95 per cent. This period had earlier been set by Mr. MacEachen at three years.

● Provincial plans must be publicly administered, nonprofit and open to public audit. The provinces were free to determine who would administer the plans.

● Benefits must be portable from province to province.

SOME CONFUSION

He recalled that some criticism about the requirement that provincial plans be universal.

"Universal coverage should not be confused with compulsory coverage," he said.

Only if a province financed its share of the cost through a premium would the question of compulsion arise. But it would be entirely up to each province whether to finance through a premium or taxes.

Mr. MacEachen said only half Canada's 20,000,000 residents have adequate medical care. Only 3,000,000 had partial medical care insurance and 6,000,000 lacked any at all.

New Democratic Party leader T. C. Douglas pressed the government to get the legislation through Parliament before the summer recess.

POSSIBLE EXCUSE

Mr. Douglas said that if second reading is left until the fall, some provinces might use this as an excuse to say they couldn't pass legislation by the July 1, 1967, deadline.

Social Credit Leader Thompson said it was not the government's responsibility "to care for the needs of any citizens who . . . have the means to care for themselves."

In proposing his amendment, Mr. Baldwin said it was time governments told the people exactly what each new welfare program would cost and then ask whether the people wanted them.

The Commons lacked a quorum of 20 members throughout the dinner hour, attendance dipping to 14 in the 265-seat House as Mr. Davis spoke.

AUCKLAND, New Zealand (UPI) — No direct contact will be permitted between Japanese foremen and New Zealand workmen on extensions on the Auckland Harbor bridge, the chairman of the bridge authority, Sir John Allum, said Tuesday.

The authority has approved a $10,396,400 bid from Ishikawajima-Harima heavy industries company of Tokyo for steel work expanding the bridge from four to eight lanes.

Longshoremen

Some Progress Since Sentences

VANCOUVER (CP) — British Columbia longshoremen and employers met in a contract dispute Tuesday for the first time since 10 members of the International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union were jailed for contempt of court.

Progress was reported in the talks which are expected to continue for some days.

The union is seeking a 50-cent-an-hour wage increase over a present base rate of $3.38 an hour.

But one of the biggest questions is statutory holidays, the reason the union leaders went to jail.

UNION CLAIM

Federal Labor Minister Nicholson has undertaken to amend the Canada labor code to correct what the union claims are discriminating qualifications needed before a worker is entitled to a statutory holiday.

But he has said he will only make the amendment if the union and employers cannot reach agreement on the matter.

Longshoremen come under federal jurisdiction.

Three-Year Contract At Lenkurt

VANCOUVER (CP) — A new contract has been agreed to by the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers (CLC) and Lenkurt Electric Co. Ltd., scene of violent picket line demonstrations earlier this year.

A new three-year agreement provides for six-per-cent wage increase for the first two years and re-opening of the contract, if desired, in the third year to negotiate wages.

Present rates now range between $1.72 an hour and $3.25. About 450 workers are affected.

The agreement also includes stipulation against strikes or lockouts during the life of the contract and an agreement on overtime.

It was a disagreement about overtime that started a wildcat strike by about 250 workers two months ago.

True Partnership

BESET AS WE HAVE been in this country by labor-management disagreements, with the consequent disruption of industry and great cost to the economy from time to time, we would do well to study an experiment now proceeding in Great Britain.

The example in mind is at the great Fairfields shipbuilding yard on the Clyde, with $12,000,000 of debt and creditors pressing a few months ago, and bankruptcy a prospect disturbing management and employees alike.

Under pressure, the government provided a stop-gap loan, but everyone concerned was looking for the long-term solution.

It seemed possible that Mr. Iain Stewart, a Glasgow industrialist, might have some useful ideas. He was not a shipbuilder, but he had for some time urged a government-sponsored pilot scheme, run jointly by unions and employers, to demonstrate how new patterns of labor relations would improve productivity and induce prosperity.

The government decided to allow Mr. Stewart an opportunity to test his methods. A new company was formed, the government providing half the capital, the remainder coming from private business and the trade unions with a membership interest in the yards.

Mr. Stewart, chairman of the new board, addressed the 5,000 workers at the outset. He asked for their support in securing job flexibility and retraining, the end of job stoppages and for co-operation in management's efforts to cut production costs. He said the existing system of national wage negotiations would be replaced by pay based on productivity. The response was enthusiastic and encouraging.

After 13 months it has now been decided agreements on wages and working conditions will be negotiated through a central committee, while advisory committees will ensure the widest exchange of information and points of view. Strikes are banned while negotiations are in progress. There is provision for back-dating contracts to discourage management from delaying agreement.

The most important point in the agreement seems to be that trade union bargaining will henceforth be based on productivity and will involve detailed examination of union demarcation lines and restrictive practices.

Meanwhile, unions and management are co-operating in an educational scheme. All 13 unions are sending members to a lecture series conducted by trade union officers, university teachers, management consultants and members of the management staff. The company pays the bill.

For the first time since 1961 the firm is showing a profit.

And for the first time management and labor are working together for the common good, so to speak, without one side or the other trying to gain the advantage. Although it is perhaps too early to call the experiment a complete success, it does seem to indicate a lesson that might be learned usefully by other sections of industry.

If such a formula can be successfully applied in Britain it would follow it could work elsewhere. Even at a time when Canada's national economy is booming and job opportunities are excellent, it might be profitable to study closely the British experiment.

It might even be useful to apply it here, particularly if it serves to reduce or remove old animosities which are always obstacles in labor-management negotiations.

Dual Networks

THE GOVERNMENT'S white paper on broadcasting contained one statement that, although of considerable portent, did not receive much attention in print across the country.

The time has come, the paper said, "to consider full national network services in both official languages from coast to coast, and a detailed study of all aspects of this question will be undertaken forthwith."

Subsequently in the House of Commons, Secretary of State Judy LaMarsh in answer to a question said that according to her understanding this study had already been undertaken, under the aegis of the minister of transport.

Just what form the investigation is taking and how actively it will be pursued is for anyone to guess. It may be that "consideration" is as far as the government will be ready to go for a long time yet. But its inclination, on the other hand, is quite plain.

"In the field of French and English Canadian relations," Forestry Minister Maurice Sauve said recently on the program Les Affaires de l'Etat, "the government's policy has been directed to sustaining the French Canadian language and culture throughout Canada, from one coast to the other, and to encouraging all Canadians to see that the persistence of this culture is a natural, a necessary and a desirable phenomenon. . ."

This statement suggests almost a predetermination of what Mr. Pickersgill's study should find in respect to the need for a French-language as well as an English-language network extending throughout the nation.

But it must reckon also with the cost, and one cannot conceive that this would be light.

Idealistically, a French network might appeal to most Canadians. As an expense on top of a CBC system that already costs them $100,000,000 a year, however, how would they feel about it?

Like the "Bi and Bi" commission, a dual coast-to-coast broadcasting establishment digging deeper into everyone's pocket could turn out to be more of an instrument of cleavage than of two-culture harmony.

Weak Anesthetic

AT THE ANNUAL meeting of Vancouver Island municipalities in May, the president of the Union of B.C. Municipalities, Reeve Alan Emmot of Burnaby, suggested that "instead of saying taxes are too high we should be constantly reminding taxpayers just how much they get for their tax dollars." He had a point. And now that the tax-paying season is upon municipal residents (pity it has to come just when we're trying to scrape together a few more dollars for holidays) the time is appropriate to contemplate the truth of his words.

The taxpayer does indeed receive a lot of service for less than $25 a month, on average, and probably is not duly appreciative of the bargain that collective action with all his neighbors affords.

But still—ouch!

"Mr. Speaker, I move we adjourn . . . if we can find a quorum!"

Another Expedition

In Search of Vinland

By ROLAND HUNTFORD from Stockholm

EVER since the mysterious "Vinland the Good" of the Icelandic sagas was identified with the American coast, there has been sporadic academic skirmishing over the original discoverer of the New World: was it discovered in 1492 by the Genoese navigator, Christopher Columbus, as we are generally told, or was Leif Eriksen, the Viking, the first European to see the great American continent — some 500 years before this?

The problem seemed settled a few years ago when Mr. Helge Ingstad, an Oslo archaeologist, discovered Viking remains at L'Anse aux Meadows, on Newfoundland. He has returned there six times to continue excavations, and now he has just left Oslo on his final expedition, accompanied by Mr. Thor Heyerdahl, of the legendary "Kon-Tiki" raft expedition.

The purpose of the present expedition is to clean up the sites, and search for any artifacts missed on previous occasions, and Ingstad wants to preserve the remains and establish a museum.

The association with the expedition of Heyerdahl's name, with all its prestige, seems partly aimed at disarming the academic sniping at Ingstad by the Columbus lobby, and by denigrators of Eriksen. The snipers are mostly Italians and Spaniards, who see the claims for the Viking as an insult to their nations and as a blow in the war of ethnic prestige often read into relations between the Nordic and the Latin worlds.

* * *

Although Ingstad has not been openly attacked by responsible academics, he has met with considerable reserve. Some Columbian protagonists have accused him of going to a great deal of trouble simply in order to "insult" their hero, his descendants and compatriots. Since Columbus was Italian, the Italians appear most annoyed. Spain merely employed the great sailor, so the Spaniards can afford to take the whole question somewhat more dispassionately.

Nothing could be further from Ingstad's intentions than to discredit other countries: rather is he trying to give his forebears their due.

He believes that, for their times, the Vikings were astonishingly advanced. They lived in the dark ages, when it was thought the world was flat, and that vile monsters threatened mariners in far oceans. Yet the Vikings dared to put to sea to find out what lay on the other side. They were the first men of the "age of discovery" — five centuries before it properly arrived.

Ingstad is also interested in rehabilitating the Vikings in the eyes of posterity. "We tend to think of them only as bloodthirsty pirates, as murderers and robbers," he says. "But we do not consider their skill at navigation and their genuine thirst for exploration. It is as unfair to judge them by their raids alone as it is to stigmatize our age as that of the atom bomb and concentration camp without considering its good sides."

* * *

Although Ingstad says that this last expedition of his is not primarily concerned with new finds, there is no doubt that any artifacts turned up would be welcome. He has had to bear some criticism, both from American archaeologists and others, over the lack of such finds. Nobody doubts that the sites are those of Viking dwellings, but some authorities question whether it is indeed "Vinland the Good," the colony established by Leif Eriksen and his successors, and which is supposed to have existed for about a century from the middle of the 10th century until the middle of the 11th.

Ingstad has excavated what are undoubtedly farmhouses and other dwellings of a type associated with 10th-century Norway and the Norse settlements in Greenland. But his critics say that these are the remains of a temporary base, or a half-way house, and that the real "Vinland the Good" lies far further south, probably in Connecticut or even Florida.

Against this, Ingstad has marshalled a formidable argument based on interpretations of the sagas, of collateral historical evidence, and on the astronomical observations of the Vikings. In their own crude way, the savage Nordic sailors knew a great deal about stellar navigation. But, from an archaeologist's point of view, they had the drawback of expressing their readings in poetic language that bears a number of different interpretations.

* * *

If the site at L'Anse aux Meadows really were that of "Vinland the Good," runs the criticism, one would expect to find tools and domestic utensils: since these were all but absent — at least so far — this suggests that is it little more than a camping site, and that the Vikings took all their equipment when continuing their voyage southwards.

Against this, Ingstad says that the Eskimos and the Indians who then populated Newfoundland and the Canadian coast were incorrigible scavengers, and nothing would be left after the Vikings had departed.

The sole artifact discovered at L'Anse aux Meadows was a soapstone "spinning stone," a crude form of spinning wheel used by the Vikings and commonly found in old Norse sites in Norway and Greenland. The so-called "Carbon 12" method of dating placed its origin at around the end of the 10th century, which exactly fits the historical evidence. This method of dating is based on radioactive decay, and has been accepted as the most reliable known to modern archaeology.

* * *

But Ingstad feels certain that he has found "Vinland the Good," and he and Heyerdahl are going out to put the seal on all the work that has gone before. This does not preclude further Viking finds elsewhere on the American continent. Ingstad believes that the Vikings may have reached Florida on reconnaissance voyages, and even penetrated far inland — perhaps as far as the Great Lakes. He is to address an American archaeologists' conference in Buenos Aires, and perhaps others will be inspired to continue his work. Even the supporters of Columbus can scarcely grudge the North American continent an extra five centuries of history.

Thinking Aloud

". . . of shoes, and ships, and sealing wax . . ."

By TOM TAYLOR

THERE will always be a Canada, I trust, but it will always be of North American vintage. Geography is a fact nations must live with.

Hence the infiltration of Americanisms — some of them richly coined — that flavor the Canadian tongue. They are unavoidable through propinquity to such a large and influential neighbour.

Language in any case has never been isolationist; the dictionary shows how idiom has overflowed national boundaries and taken hold in adjacent lands.

But in some things national purity should remain uppermost, as a critic writes to this newspaper. His special field of interest is military terminology, and any lapse from grace on our part draws his immediate rebuke.

There is no such rank in the Canadian navy as a two-star admiral, for instance; our admirals don't wear stars and properly are never referred to in such manner.

But it is the term "honor guard" that rouses his ire particularly, and his latest missive on this subject has just been passed to my desk.

* * *

He is perfectly correct in his objection, of course. "Honor guard" is a reference that belongs to United States forces. In the terminology of Canadian military affairs the phrase should always be "guard of honor."

The meaning is the same but national usage is different.

In the instance in question, however — the headline of a recent Colonist story — there is some qualifying excuse. The story itself cited "guard of honor" but the story-head employed ran "honor guard."

This was due to the fact that type is made of metal and not rubber; words can be stretched or shrunk only in minor degree. And "guard of honor" simply couldn't have been squeezed into the line space.

I hope this catches his eye and is sufficient amend. Any real fall from grace in the use of "guard of honor" will of course continue to deserve his strictures.

* * *

The sun shines as I write this and so fate may be relenting to change the pattern to date and give us what we've been waiting for. At any rate here is a plea in verse from the grand-niece of an Oak Bay reader.

Surely it won't be in vain.

O! warm summer day;
You are so welcome!
The noble bees hum
In the grassy air.
As hummingbirds flit
In a lovely grace
To blooming flowers
In our garden.
A sparrow sings upon
The splendrous weeping willow;
A softly tinkling bell
Echoes in the distant moor.
The cool rustling of the emerald grass
Entrances me
As I lie here
Spellbound.
The suns glows with heavenly warmth.
Everything is drowsy, peaceful.

O noble sun,
Please stay awhile
You are our honored guest;
O! happy day
Stay; please stay
In God's sweet world
Of ours.

Not bad for Robin Boucher, a little girl of 12 years, is it? and her sentiments reflect all our disappointed souls — so far. May the weathermaan take heed and peer deeply into his crystal bowl.

Allocating Blame Difficult

Moral Dilemma of Viet Nam

By PHILIP DEANE

THERE is to be further escalation of the war in Viet Nam. North Viet Nam, in stages, will be smashed, the American purpose in this being to make the North Vietnamese leaders stop their support of the South Vietnamese Communists. The cities of Hanoi and Haiphong could be destroyed. The dikes holding back the Red River could be breached, thus drowning the agricultural villages of North Viet Nam's great plain. As each of these steps is taken, we, the allies of the U.S., will be faced with succeeding challenges to our consciences.

* * *

We have had them already and, whenever I feel a crisis of conscience coming on, I go through a drill that by now is well established: I review what happened since the beginning, hoping, somehow, to arrive at a clearcut apportionment of the blame which will enable me to take a clearcut stand.

In the beginning, then, Ho Chi Minh was the nationalist hero of Vietnamese independence. He fought the French much as have other nationalist leaders who are now pro-western or neutral, fought their western colonial masters. He was, however, a professed Communist, perhaps because in his formative years in Paris, only the French Communists would oppose colonialism. But he was a Vietnamese above all, and in Vietnamese history, China has been the constant enemy. So Ho Chi Minh might have become a Tito, had he been allowed to control the whole of Viet Nam — if we assume that he was more a nationalist than a Communist, a mere assumption.

In any case, the assumption was not made in Washington.

The settlement Ho Chi Minh obtained by force of arms at Geneva in 1954, promising elections throughout Viet Nam, leading to re-unification, was broken principally by the West, with America having now replaced France. It was wrong to break a promise, if we are to think in moral terms, and crises of conscience are in moral terms.

* * *

Communists carried on a guerrilla war in South Viet Nam — South Vietnamese Communists. It was morally wrong for them to use violence; even though they were rebelling against a pretty violent regime. It was even more wrong morally to use the tactics these Communists used, murdering and torturing anti-Communist officials. The Americans stepped in and some time after that, the hope of Ho Chi Minh becoming a Tito, a non-aligned Communist opposing Chinese domination of his land, vanished.

* * *

Undeniable and immoral Viet Cong terror was answered by South Vietnamese brutality and by American attacks on North Viet Nam, after U.S. ships were attacked by North Vietnamese patrol boats. Already, at this stage of soul searching, the clearcut allocation of blame becomes almost impossible and original sin almost meaningless.

The more one side does, the more the other ripostes. America started bombing to stop infiltration by North Vienamse soldiers which was in handfuls. North Viet Nam is now being ruined but the infiltration is by whole regiments. Bombing never stopped Communist supplies from reaching the front in Korea. That was ended because it became too expensive for the Communists. The cost in smashed cities and in lost supplies, burned on the way down, proved too much. This is what Mr. Johnson hopes to do to the Communists in Viet Nam. It will involve the death of North Vietnamese civilians in the tens of thousands. And we will ask ourselves whether this is moral.

But the only alternative, the Americans say — and in this they are right — is to sign a settlement that will mean a guaranteed Communist takeover in South Viet Nam. The large numbers of South Vietnamese who have espoused the U.S. cause will then be in ugly jeopardy and thousands will be exterminated; Communists have never shown grace and magnanimity in victory.

* * *

What then is the choice? Which side are we on? I don't know. I have systematically criticized American actions whenever they snuffed out the life of Vietnamese peasants — on this at least I had firm convictions. But the next step, that of suggesting an alternative that I would not regret in years to come, I have been unable to take, because I don't know in which direction to step. All I know is that my instincts rebel against the killing of apolitical women and children, especially when the killing is done by people who, like the Americans, belong to the same civilization as I, so-called Western humanism.

Acid Test for Great Society

Poverty War Near Stalemate

By ANTHONY HOWARD from Washington

"THE better war" they call it — and even the name seems in its own way to carry its veiled criticism of the president and his Viet Nam policy. Not surprisingly the federal agency that administers the war on poverty has begun to show signs of being a beleaguered welfare outpost surrounded by a warfare atmosphere.

Elsewhere the official line may be that the whole Far Eastern build-up has involved no serious cut-back in the United States' social program. Inside the Office of Economic Opportunity — as the agency administering the poverty program is formally and somewhat forbiddingly called — no one bothers to tell you any such tales. Currently fighting for its life to win its annual authorization from Congress — and with the battle over appropriations still to come — the war on poverty at home could only too easily become the first direct casualty of the real, large-scale war abroad.

If in the end it manages to survive unharmed it will probably be largely due to the determined dedication of one man. At 50, Sargent Shriver, director of the Office of Economic Opportunity since its inception less than three years ago, already has a remarkable, if for the most part unobtrusive, career behind him.

A former hand-picked young executive with Joe Kennedy's Merchandise Mart Corporation of Chicago, Shriver together with Theodore Sorensen was one of the first active promoters of President Kennedy's political career. He organized the former president's first Senate race in 1952, he was floor manager in Kennedy's abortive bid for the vice-presidential nomination in 1956, and in 1960 became the chief talent scout for the incoming administration.

Today, to the wonder and astonishment of Washington, Shriver almost alone of the presidential intimates from the Kennedy era lingers on in the Johnson administration. He is more than just a political trophy: he is also a family hostage, having married the eldest Kennedy sister 13 years ago.

* * *

His position is curious — and some believe now that it has become uneasy. After Shriver's remarkable success in founding the Peace Corps, L.B.J. was understandably determined to persuade him to run its twin project for raising living standards at home. For two years he reluctantly presided over both programs — provoking a good deal of congressional resentment in the process — but finally last January the president agreed to release him from the then established Peace Corps so that he might concentrate all his energies on the still struggling poverty program.

At first there was no doubt that Shriver commanded massive presidential backing. "My sort of program" L.B.J. called the war on poverty almost immediately after coming to office, and then went on to devote large chunks of his first State of the Union message to extolling it. No such language is heard from the White House today.

Shriver himself, one of the most candid and frank men in Washington, charitably explains this in terms of the president's current preoccupation with Viet Nam. He is, he says, sure that the president will return to the assault on what he once called "America's other nation" as soon as the appropriate opportunity presents itself. Others — sensing that L.B.J. has now recognized in the poverty program a political liability — are nothing like so certain.

The suspicion is even to be heard that the president may not have realized quite what he was doing when he first hugged the war on poverty to his chest less than three years ago. For the great argument about the Office of Economic Opportunity centres not so much on poverty as on politics. And no one is more sensitive to the complaints and demands of established political interests than is the president.

* * *

The anit-poverty program that the Kennedy administration devised — it was merely inherited by L.B.J. — was designed deliberately to challenge the whole traditional welfare system in the United States. No longer was welfare to be in the hands of local political leaders — with all that that has traditionally meant in terms of strings attached. Instead the federal government would redistribute tax money collected at the centre and put it at the disposal of grass-roots projects of self-help. The politician, from the state governor to the precinct ward-heeler, thus found himself for the first time decisively by-passed.

Naturally none of them liked it — though recently state governors and the more progressive city mayors have shown some sign of coming round. The people who have remained implacable are the poverty program's foes in Congress — and the past few months have provided them with their cue.

Formerly having to be content with niggling criticisms of waste — which Shriver used irreverently to meet by inquiring how much money the Ford Motor Company lost on the Edsel car or New York City on the World's Fair — they are now able to stand forward as patriotic champions of the American military effort. To judge from some of the statements being made, any money from the program going into places like the Los Angeles Negro suburb of Watts is being stolen in broad daylight from the pockets of GIs fighting in Viet Nam.

* * *

Nor is Shriver's task made any easier by the president's insistence that Congress must play its part in staving off the threat of inflation. "Of course that is our duty," runs the refrain from such bodies as the House armed services committee as it votes an unwanted and unasked for $931 million extra for military hardware. "An equivalent sum and more can easily be saved by cutting back on the poverty program.

Like Robert McNamara, the person he is probably closest to in the administration, Shriver recognizes very well the nature of the attack now being made on all social programs by the so-called "hawks" in Congress. Domestic conservatives almost to a man, the war has provided them with one of the best political opportunities they have ever had — an opportunity of combining jingoism abroad with retrenchment at home.

In the prevailing climate of public opinion it would be a difficult attack to meet in any event. It is almost impossible without active presidential support. The New Frontier could easily be about to put the Great Society to its first acid test.

Today in History

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The United States government enacted the Northwest Ordinance 179 years ago today — in 1787 — providing for the government of the vast portion of the country north of the Ohio River and west of the Allegheny Mountains. The region was to be divided into districts which, after passing through territorial or colonial status, would be admitted to statehood. This principle of ultimate statehood became the distinguishing feature of the American colonial system in the 19th century. Another provision of the ordinance which long played a prominent role in U.S. history was the prohibition of slavery in the territory forever.

1938 — Howard Hughes completed his flight around the world in a record four days.

1949 — The Vatican warned that Roman Catholics who support anti-Christian or materialistic aspects of communism face excommunication.

First World War: Fifty years ago today — in 1916 — British forces launched a new advance eastward toward Combles and Bapaume; a parallel French advance started toward Maurepas; Russians took 2,000 prisoners in fighting west of Buczacz.

Second World War: Twenty-five years ago today — in 1941 — the five-week campaign in Syria ended with the initialing of an armistice agreement; Russians repulsed German forces in day-long battles from the Leningrad area to the Ukraine; Axis planes raided the Suez Canal Zone.

Submerged Forces Shape of Detente in Europe

Trade, Culture, Curiosity Pierce Iron Curtain

By JOSEPH KRAFT
From Paris

The French have a saying that nothing is dead until something takes its place. But, in that case, what about the Cold War?

It may be dead, as Gen. Charles de Gaulle keeps insisting. But what has taken its place?

Not certainly, political agreement on the major outstanding issues among the two great powers. Still less, a withering away of the blocs.

On the contrary, any effort at such ambition is almost certain to end in failure, even in counter-reaction. For the time being, if there is to be motion toward detente, it will have to come below the political surface at the level of economic, social and cultural affairs.

* * *

The immobility of the great powers has been dramatically underlined in the past weeks. Washington is plunging still deeper into the Vietnamese war, but with almost no prospect of bringing a truce. Indeed a North Vietnamese official here told me:

"You put a sword to our throat and you say, negotiate, or else. That is not negotiations; that is an ultimatum. And we will not surrender to an ultimatum."

* * *

But, while it does not end the war, the increasing American concentration on Viet Nam weakens all moves towards improving relations with the Communist world — witness, notably, the White House's inglorious failure to achieve even the scantiest congressional interest in a proposed improvement in East-West trade.

In addition, the American concentration on the Asian battlefield increases the Soviet exposure to Chinese charges that Moscow is prepared to sell out the Communist revolution so long as Russia itself is not harmed.

* * *

The Russians, however, guarded their actions in South-east Asia and whatever their real hopes, are not prepared to take in bold daylight serious steps toward detente with the United States.

For one thing, such measures would give further color to the Chinese charges. For another, any steps toward relaxation in Europe pose a threat to the East German regime — a threat which might affect Communist rule all over Eastern Europe.

* * *

Because of this great power deadlock, there has actually taken place, despite all the talk of detente, a recent hardening of the lines. At Bucharest the Russians have firmed up the Warsaw Pact. They have moved to cut off debates between East German Communists and West German Socialists. And, in the disarmament negotiation at Geneva, they have raised their asking price for a treaty to prohibit the spread of nuclear weapons.

* * *

The United States has not only intensified the war in Indochina. It has also kept the Atlantic alliance intact despite a French challenge dimly supported by many other states. And in the Geneva talks it has not moved to favor a nonproliferation treaty by giving new assurances that there would be no German access to nuclear arms.

In these circumstances, the tendency is to suppose that the Cold War is back in force, that detente was only a mirage. But, if that is the direction of the big and visible events, especially in Asia, it is not at all the spirit of things here in Europe.

* * *

On the contrary, the spirit of things remains very much the spirit of detente. The events of Indochina seem distant to the point of unreality in Europe. Almost everywhere, on both sides of what used to be the Iron Curtain, in homes, offices, factories, universities, laboratories — there is an itch to multiply contacts, to increase trade, to augment travel — more simply, as one German put it to me, "to get to know one another."

* * *

Thus, I have to conclude that, while detente is far off at the supreme level of politics, the forces that underlie the push toward detente are still in play, indeed still on the rise.

Whatever the immediate political exigencies, I have no doubt that the future in Europe belongs to the almost submerged forces of trade, culture, scientific development and plain curiosity that are more and more bringing Europeans together.

And the prospect, it seems to me, is that for the next five years or so the complex of those submerged forces will constitute the shape of detente.

The Abused Planet

Pesticides: Is Man The Pest?

By JOHN BENNETT
Second of a Series

The indiscriminate use of pesticides has created the world's most insidious form of pollution.

This is global in scope, deadly in effect and to many, morally unforgivable.

Today it would be impossible to find a human being, except possibly in the most remote parts, whose body is free of traces of pesticides.

Discussion of this serious matter is difficult and apt to be inconclusive, because people with opposing views find the subject clouded by emotion.

For when the insect killing property of DDT was discovered in 1939, the find was hailed as the ultimate aid in ridding the earth of want, hunger and disease, through control of crop and sickness-carrying pests.

Today, 27 years later, many people hold a more jaundiced view.

For people still starve, crops still fail, and many pests and disease-carrying insects have grown immune to organic pesticides that once killed efficiently.

It is worth remembering however, that without these aids to increased production and disease prevention, the situation of the world's underprivileged people might be worse than it is today.

There's No Control

The controlled use of pesticides: insecticides, fungicides, and herbicides, would appear to occupy an important place in man's fight against poverty and hunger.

But there is no control. The shelves of stores and the garden sections of hardware stores are crammed with a multiplicity of pesticides. Anybody with the price, can walk in and buy lethal dusts and sprays.

Few homes in North America lack at least one spray can for use on bugs. Often this can is on a shelf with food.

Vacant lots in town and rural regions are sprayed by municipal authorities as a cheap and convenient method of killing weeds.

Who stops to consider the pollution factor in these organic chemical killers?

For unlike the pre-1939 inorganic weed and pest killers such as arsenic, the modern pesticides are organic and based on the carbon atom and linked to the chemistry of life.

People who would draw back from using arsenic, a well-known mineral toxic material, still used as a base in weed and insect preparations, have little fear of the even more dangerous organic pesticides.

Many Have Died

Gardeners, even medical practitioner amateur gardeners, have died from the effects of pesticides. People engaged in loading and spraying commercial quantities have been fatally stricken.

Everything modern man eats, drinks and uses today has traces of these chemicals which build up in the fatty organs of his body.

Increasing production yearly adds many millions more pounds of pesticides to the accumulated total spread in the world since the simple days of DDT in the 1940s.

What effect will this have on the life forces when the billions of pounds of the future are added to the score?

Insects are plain bugs to most people, but are by far the most numerous of earth's creatures, more than 700,000 species forming 70 to 80 per cent of the creatures in the world.

What will happen to this large body of life? Will they change for the worse, altering vital balances in nature? Does any scientist know?

And, what effect, if any, will this constant fallout have upon the human race?

The indiscriminate use of organic chemicals is now the accepted pattern and could be environmental suicide.

Peking or Recession Could End Truce

French Polynesians Fear All-Out Chinese Takeover

By LOUIS B. FLEMING
From Papeete, Tahiti

BACKGROUND

A quiet truce exists in French Polynesia between the Chinese minority and the Polynesian majority.

The uneasy relationship could be worsened by an economic recession such as may follow completion of the French nuclear tests in a few years, or by installation here of a consulate for Peking.

In the meantime, steps are being taken to improve relations between the two communities. The French have closed Chinese schools, thus enforcing integration in education. Some intermarriage is taking place.

* * *

And French citizenship is being granted more liberally to the Chinese. About 300 a year now receive citizenship. A change in regulations to give all Chinese babies born here full citizenship automatically also is being considered. But so far less than one-third of the 10,000 Chinese in French Polynesia are French citizens.

The Chinese represent 12 per cent of the 84,000 people in the territory. Perhaps 20 per cent of the 45,000 people on Tahiti. Yet they control more than half of the commerce and according to some estimates, as much as 70 per cent.

* * *

There is widespread resentment and jealousy among the lethargic Polynesians regarding the industrious Chinese, and with this, resentment a tendency to blame all troubles, including the high cost of living, on the Chinese as well as the bomb.

Oddly enough, the present inflation is due largely to Polynesian labor costs and the prices of Polynesian-grown farm products and not so much the prices of dry goods and food imported and sold by the Chinese. But this distinction escapes the population.

* * *

There is not one Chinese in the 30-member provincial assembly and influential Chinese insist that there is no desire among the Chinese to enter politics. They generally support continuation of strong French control.

"Imagine the impact on the educated young Chinese if Peking should establish a consulate here," a Polynesian leader commented.

Education is on the side of the Chinese. Many have been sent to universities abroad. One Chinese entrepreneur is represented in the United States by a son who holds a bachelor's degree from the University of California at Berkeley and a master's degree from Columbia. Polynesians are just beginning to receive scholarships for higher education.

* * *

Polynesian fears of Chinese political power are linked with a suspicion of Peking, but the suspicion is shared by many in the Chinese community.

"We were divided by President de Gaulle's decision to establish relations with Peking," one Chinese leader said. "I would say about 70 per cent would favor Taiwan."

The Polynesians fear two things: a political takeover by the Chinese who already have taken over commence, and a takeover inspired by Peking through diplomatic contacts with the new generation of Chinese here.

* * *

Chinese here already have opened direct trade with mainland China. They are importing food, yardage and porcelain, among other things, and report the quality generally good.

An extension of commercial relations to include diplomatic relations would give Peking a strategically located base at a crossroads of the Pacific with nonstop air service to Hawaii, Los Angeles and Mexico. The western hemisphere now is accessible to Peking only through Canada and Cuba.

* * *

Chinese first came here 103 years ago as contract laborers on a British cotton plantation. The American civil war had forced Britain to seek alternative sources of cotton. The experiment failed but many of the laborers stayed on to succeed on their own.

War Ideological Battleground

Red Giants 'Use' Viet Nam

By K. C. THALER
From London

Red China has expressed determination to fight the Viet Nam war to the end — or at least to the last Communist Vietnamese.

Peking's determination was made clear by Premier Chou En Lai to the Romanian leaders during his recent talks in Bucharest with Communist party chief Nikolai Ceausescu.

* * *

There is little doubt the Mao Tse-tung regime is taking an increasingly tough line in the Viet Nam conflict.

Peking, therefore, will oppose any peace move no matter what is suggested. It will put pressure on Hanoi to stay away from any conference table even though Hanoi requires no prodding at present.

* * *

The Chinese are reported to have made it clear in their Bucharest talks some two weeks ago that they would rather see Viet Nam bombed off the map than approve a negotiated settlement.

* * *

Even total destruction, they were said to have argued, would be justified by the eventual emergence of a Peking-brand Communist society in Southeast Asia.

The stand recalls an earlier Peking dictum that a nuclear war might not be so bad after all, because out of China's 600,000,000 people, enough would survive to set up the superior Communist society which Mao has been preaching.

It is clear that even should Hanoi be ready for talks, Red China would stay away from any peace conference and refuse to endorse any settlement which it might eventually produce.

* * *

Peking is standing firm on Viet Nam for no less than the vindication of its basic principle that "wars of liberation" are the best method to shake off so-called imperialist shackles.

Failure would have serious repercussions for Peking's prestige everywhere in the world where Red China has been in action — in Asia, Africa and Latin America — and has been forming liberation wars.

* * *

It also would prove Moscow's "co-existence" policy right and reaffirm Moscow's leadership of international communism which Red China has been seeking to wrest from the Soviet Union.

This is why Peking is watching developments in Viet Nam with such anxiety. It is out to prolong the fight in the hope of winning on the battlefields of Viet Nam ideological supremacy over Russia, and with it the leadership of the Communist international.

Pink Run Most On Coast

PRINCE RUPERT (CP) — Fishing vessels are unloading here what could be the start of a very heavy run of pink salmon.

"It's either a very early run or the vanguard of an exceptionally heavy run," protection officer P. D. Murray said Tuesday.

"There's nothing to compare with it on the whole coast."

Seiners have been averaging 1,000 pinks a day per boat and gill-netters have reported catches of up to 800 a day.

Farmers Plan Traffic Jam

TORONTO (CP)—About 1,000 tractor-driving farmers will be back on Ontario highways July 25 in protest of low milk prices says John Dolmer, president of the Ontario Farmer's Union. He said that in the renewed demonstrations the tractors will be in small groups to block as many roads as possible.

Like 50s, Only Better

Uranium Booming

By HARRY YOUNG
Business Editor

The prospect of a second Canadian uranium boom in the past 15 years has loomed up as a result of a spectacular advance in the price of uranium shares.

Denison Mines, one of the few survivors of the ill-fated boom of the 1950s when thousands of investors literally lost their shirts, has advanced in the past year from $20 a share to over $60. Two other survivors Rio Algom and Roman Mines have also shown considerable capital appreciation during the period for their shareholders.

The earlier boom fizzled out when Canadian mining companies discovered many uranium properties and brought their collective production far beyond the limited market then available for the raw material of the nuclear age.

JUST GAVE UP

Most of the smaller companies were either absorbed into the strongest companies, gave up or turned their mining endeavors into different channels.

The market for which the Canadian mining industry had geared itself in the mid-1950s, is now developing and by the 1970s production rates may have to be increased.

Meantime because of their existing facilities Denison, Rio Algom and Roman have an advantage over other companies which will have to start from scratch. Most of their preproduction costs have already been written off, and they own about one third of the world's uranium reserves.

DOUBLE COSTS

Investment analysts say their production costs might be about $3 a pound of uranium oxide. Other companies, many of whom are now staking uranium claims all over the country, might find their production costs at least double that of the established companies.

In the past three years Canada has had several mining booms — in iron ore; zinc, copper and molybdenum. The promoters say the next one will be in uraniums. But like other booms it will not be one in which everyone will make money.

NORANDA'S GOOD START

Noranda Mines, one of the giants of the Canadian mining industry, improved its net earnings in the first half of 1966 by more than 25 per cent.

The net income of $21,350,008 ($1.80) compared with $17,044,000 ($1.44) in the first half of 1965.

MERGER TALKS OFF

The projected deal whereby Northern and Central Gas would merge with Quebec Natural Gas has apparently fallen through.

The shares of Quebec Natural Gas which had risen about two points on talks of the take-over dropped sharply from $15 to $13½ towards the close on Tuesday.

FALLEN THROUGH

"We believe the proposed deal has fallen through" said a local brokerage office close to the situation.

Northern and Central, formerly Northern Ontario Natural Gas recently absorbed Greater Winnipeg Gas.

Senior vice-president R. Bruce Shaw of A. E. Ames and Company was in Victoria Tuesday along with the company's newly appointed vice-president P. M. Fisher.

They visited the modernized and refurbished branch office of the company in the Royal Trust building and had meetings with a number of government and civic officials.

'NOT JUSTIFIED'

Despite charges of the U.S. administration's council of economic advisers that an increase of five cents a pound in the price of molybdenum is "totally unjustified", a second firm has raised its price by this amount.

Last week American Metal Climax — the world's largest moly producer — announced the price increase. It was followed this week by another large producer — Molybdenum Corp. of America.

Endako Mines Ltd. of B.C., Canada's largest producer, says the increase of 5 cents a pound in the price of molybdenum will add $1,000,000 a year to its revenues.

Shape Provides Lift

Space 'Bullet' Lands Safely

Future Satellite Ferry

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A wingless metal capsule with a man inside dropped from beneath a bomber's wing Tuesday, manoeuvred as it plunged earthward, then flattened out and glided to a landing on a dry lake at California's Edwards Air Force Base.

U.S. Space Agency Pilot Milton O. Thompson lifted his plastic canopy and stepped out grinning and happy after the revolutionary future space ferry's first flight.

The 2½-ton craft looks like a bullet cut in half lengthwise, and to observers on the ground seemed to fly at first like a brick.

After dropping from 45,000 feet it fell rapidly. Still using controls and the slight aerodynamic "lift provided by its shape, Thompson was able to manoeuvre the weird M-2F2 through two 90-degree turns at 450 miles an hour. Then, nearing the ground, he pulled the nose up and skimmed to a landing at nearly 200 miles an hour.

The 22-by-10-foot craft, called a lifting body, is one of several shapes under study to ferry men and equipment down from large space satellites. Its rounded bottom provides just enough life to keep it from falling like a stone. Small rudders at the rear enable the pilot to steer to a landing site—an advantage over the bullet-like trajectory of re-entering Mercury and Gemini spacecraft.

ROCKET LATER

On Tuesday's flight, the M-2F2 was dropped within gliding distance of the air force base. Later it will be equipped with a rocket engine to drive it to 80,000 feet and 1,200 miles an hour to simulate re-entry from space.

Thompson previously had flown a lightweight plywood version, descending from a height of 12,000 feet after being pulled aloft by a plane.

Wings have been eliminated from shapes such as the M-2F2 because they would be torn off diving into the atmosphere at 18,000 miles-an-hour orbital speeds.

HALF-CONE MODEL

An upside-down version, the HL-10 which glides on the flat, instead of the rounded side of the half-cone design is scheduled for testing here later this year.

The B-52 plane which carried Thompson aloft Tuesday is the same type that takes the X-15 rocket plane up for launching on record-breaking flights. Thompson has flown the X-15 to 3,700 miles an hour and 214,000 feet.

Heat Stroke Blamed

Scared—Then Dead

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Three small children found dead in a car, parked in the hot sun with the windows rolled up, were killed by a heat stroke, the medical examiner's office said Tuesday.

Their mother, who left them in the car for three hours Monday while she sold a pint of blood for $10, will not be charged, police said.

The mother, Mrs. Joseph Luke of West Hollywood, Fla., said she left the car doors unlocked and the windows down, police Sgt. Andy Giordano said.

"There was a heavy rain about an hour and a half before she came back," Giordano said. "It looks like the four-year-old rolled up the windows. The right front window stuck in the rubber about 90 per cent of the way up.

"I guess he couldn't get it down and then got scared or something," he said. "The woman said she had left the kids in the car before and they had been all right."

Mrs. Luke said she had sold blood to the medical laboratory about 40 times since January.

"I told the kids to be good and to close the windows if it rained, and to open them again if they got hot."

"The last thing I said was, 'I'll be back in a little bit.' They said, 'okay, mommy, we'll be good.'"

Germ-War Isle Out 100 Years

GLASGOW (Reuters) — A tiny, uninhabited island, used by Britain for germ-war experiments in the Second World War, remains dangerous for human beings, possibly until the year 2066, government scientists reported.

Four scientists in protective clothing Monday revisited the "forbidden island" of Gruinard off the remote northwest coast of Scotland.

The island, ringed with "keep off" notices, has been contaminated for 25 years after scientists experimented there with anthrax, the disease that kills all livestock and causes severe fever in humans.

Dr. C. E. Gordon Smith, director of the defence ministry's microbiological research establishment at Porton, south England, said after Monday's annual check on Gruinard: "The island may remain infected for 100 years."

He said there is no danger of the contamination spreading to the Scottish mainland.

Flying Too Much at 70

Ralph Edwards Sells Lonesome Lake Farm

STUIE, B.C. (CP)—Ralph Edwards, the lone farmer of remote Lonesome Lake, B.C., is selling his farm and giving up flying his airplane at the age of 70.

The sale of the isolated farm was reported by Mrs. Pauline Fisher, one of five summer residents here and one of Mr. Edwards' nearest neighbors. Edwards' farm is 20 miles from here.

Edwards started his farm in 1912 and has cared for a flock of trumpeter swans since 1936 when their normal food supply was cut off by a slide into the lake.

TO CALIFORNIANS

Mrs. Fisher said Edwards has sold his farm to an unidentified couple in San Francisco.

Edwards' daughter Trudy and her husband, Jack Turner, have been feeding the swans for the past several years and will carry on with the assistance of the Canadian Wild Life Service.

Edwards' farm is at the south end of Tweedsmuir Provincial Park, 240 miles northeast of Vancouver. He has full selling rights because he was there before the area was designated a park.

Mrs. Fisher said Edwards, who purchased his own airplane and learned to fly when he was 62, decided to sell because he plans to give up flying—his only access to the outside world—and now is seeking a more accessible property.

Ohio State University

Exam Cheating Creates 'Worst Scandal'

COLUMBUS (AP) — Ohio State university said Tuesday 39 students have been disciplined in what it called "the worst cheating scandal in the university's history."

The university said 10 students were dismissed as the result of theft and sale of part of a final examination for a freshman mathematics course. Another 29 students were disciplined. Eighteen were suspended for six to nine months. The others were given lesser penalties, ranging down to fail grades in the course.

Dean of student relations John T. Bonner said eight of the students are upperclassmen, the others freshmen. He declined to identify any of the students.

FIVE STUDENTS

He said the number dismissed is greater than the total usually dismissed during a year for all types of misconduct.

Bonner said investigation showed five students offered $100 to get a custodian in the mathematics building to unlock the office where the exam was kept. The custodian, since dismissed, said he actually was paid only $45.

STOLEN TEST

Bonner said the students took copies of two of the three pages of the examination, duplicated them and sold copies for from $4 to $5 each. Bonner said an estimated $300 to $400 was paid before the exam was given June 10.

A student reported to school officials June 9 that copies of the exam were out and the test was altered before it was given. Bonner said the alterations were such that students who had access to the stolen test could be easily identified.

VIRGINIA BEACH, Va. (AP) — An Italian freighter trying to reach shore sank after she was abandoned by her 31-man crew. The crew members were rescued uninjured.

Orangemen Stage March Through Tense Belfast

BELFAST (AP) — While Roman Catholics remained indoors, 100,000 Protestant Orangemen marched through this tense capital of Northern Ireland Tuesday, celebrating the 17th century Battle of Boyne that assured a Protestant monarchy.

As they marched, Prime Minister Terence O'Neill called for an end to religious strife.

Speaking to an Orange Day rally at Cullybackey, 25 miles from Belfast, O'Neill warned that if there is one way to endanger the constitution of Northern Ireland, it is by violence and the gun.

MOVES CONDEMNED

Earlier, 60,000 members of the Loyal Orange Order cheered unanimous approval of resolutions from their grand lodge condemning recent moves towards collaboration with Roman Catholics and demanding a return to the principles of the Protestant reformation.

O'Neill is a member of the order.

Northern Ireland, a territory carved from the northeastern corner of this partitioned island, is linked with Britain in the United Kingdom.

UNEASY TENSION

The Irish Republic, its larger Catholic neighbor, is independent. Northern Ireland's population is composed of 1,000,000 Protestants and 500,000 Roman Catholics. They live together in uneasy tension.

In the last few weeks, three Catholics have been murdered, schools have been set on fire by gasoline bombs, and a rock was thrown at the royal car during the Queen's visit.

This year's Orange Day celebrates a Protestant victory nearly 300 years ago. The battle was the one in 1690 that saw William of Orange defeat Catholic King James II.

OWN CHURCH

Rev. Ian Paisley, a Protestant extremist leader who heads his own Free Presbyterian Church, is challenging the government's efforts to improve relations with Dublin.

Paisley calls O'Neill a traitor and says the ecumenical movement towards church unity means a takeover by Rome. Many protestant Ulster men agree with him.

His campaign could cause a split between extremists and moderates within the Orange order itself, which has controlled Northern Ireland politically, socially and religiously since partition in 1922.

Finance Minister Herbert Kirk, an Orangeman like all others in the Ulster cabinet, was shouted down when he proposed a resolution of confidence in O'Neill at the Belfast Orange meeting.

Germans Isolate Typhoid Suspects

WUPPERTAL, West Germany (AP)—Health authorities reported Tuesday they have quarantined 23 persons believed to be ill with typhoid in this industrial Ruhr city.

Another 2,000 persons who had been in contact with them have been warned of the danger and advised to take protective inoculations.

Clarifying an earlier announcement that indicated these persons too were quarantined, the authorities said those warned were not placed under strict quarantine.

The quarantined cases include 20 pupils of an elementary school, a teacher, the mother of one child and the father of another. The school was ordered closed. Health officials described the cases of typhoid as mild.

Officials said the disease was believed the result of ice cream the patients had eaten at a school camp at Fernsdorf, where several cases of typhoid have been reported and swimming pools closed.

Tuesday's score: Carlings 5, Luckies 4. Next game: Thursday, Colony vs. Red Lions, 6:45 p.m., Heywood Avenue park.

Carlings won another softball game at Heywood Avenue Park Tuesday night, but they brought manager Lou McCorkall to the brink of heart failure.

Carlings finally beat Luckies, 5-4, to move two games ahead of Luckies and Sooke in the Senior "A" Men's Softball League.

But it was close.

Luckies were trailing, 5-2, when they came to bat in the bottom of the seventh inning, and Carlings retired their lead-off batter without difficulty.

But Doug Couch reached first on an error, and Joe Patterson followed him with a sharp infield ground ball. Carlings tried to force Couch at second base, but the throw was wild, and Couch raced to third base.

Carlings forced Patterson on Lyall Conrett's grounder, and that left men on first and third bases with two out.

But catcher Ralph Branting singled home Couch, and managed to take second when the throw went to the plate. Two out, tying run on second base.

Then Brian Weston singled to leftfield to score Cornette, and Branting bombed around third and came on to the plate. But John Yankoski's throw from behind third base beat Branting by a couple of strides, and Carlings' catcher Tom Sloan held the ball for the third out, although Branting collided with him.

It was the second big win for Carlings in two nights. Monday, they stopped Sooke, 2-1.

Bob Holness was the hitting hero for Carlings as he picked up three hits in three times at bat and drove in three runs.

Birdies Didn't Help

MELBOURNE (AP) — Stan Ely thinks golf is for the birds.

Crows took two of his golf balls after he played shots on the fifth hole at Leongatha.

As he was about to drive on the seventh hole he was distracted when a kookaburra laughing jackass bird started to laugh from a nearby tree. Ely duffed the shot. About to play his third shot at the seventh, the kookaburra laughed again. And Ely duffed again.

Finally he got the ball onto the green. Out of the tree came the kookaburra. It picked up the ball and flew off.

Ely said after the game he has had his share of birdies but never two crows and one kookaburra in two holes.

OUTDOORS

with Alec Merriman

Federal fisheries, provincial fish and game branch and pollution control board authorities, and Western Mines' consultants are all carrying out independent, but co-operative, tests to determine the best solution for disposing of mine tailings from mining operations near Buttle Lake in Strathcona Park.

No decision has yet been reached as to whether the tailings will be disposed in a land impoundment or be pumped into the lake after treatment to remove toxic chemicals.

Under a recent provincial cabinet order-in-council Western Mines will be required to get a permit from the provincial pollution control board before it may dispose of its mine tailings.

Campbell River villagers are concerned because that river system provides their supply of drinking water.

Mainly concerned will be the provincial recreation department, whose various branches will have to protect both the trout in Buttle Lake and aesthetic values of the Strathcona Park recreationland.

An impoundment within the park could be ugly and if heavy rains washed out the impoundment there could be sudden wholesale pollution dumping in the lake could lead to cloudiness and slow pollution. It is a difficult decision.

Federal fisheries is concerned about silting on the Campbell River spawning beds below Elk Falls close to the John Hart power plant, but that problem may not be so acute because before silt would reach that area it would have to flow through Buttle Lake, Upper Campbell Lake, Lower Campbell Lake and John Hart Reservoir which allows considerable time for settling.

Nevertheless federal fisheries has carried out bioassay tests on simulated effluents and is now studying company flow sheets to study the possible effects of toxic chemicals.

* * *

Experience gained at Riondel in the Kootenays, where apparently dumping into the lake has been comparatively successful, and at Benson Lake on northern Vancouver where it has proven far from successful will be used in forming a decision on the disposal of Western Mines' tailings.

At Benson Lake it was thought the silt would settle and that no effluent would persist in areas below Benson Lake.

But it hasn't worked out that way. There has been silting in the Benson River where spring (chinook) salmon spawn and silt has gone on into Alice Lake at times. It has been found the silt settles in the summer but not during fall and winter thermocline conditions.

But Buttle Lake is different to either Benson or Kootenay Lake, bigger than the first and much smaller than Kootenay.

Western Mines has hired consultants to conduct laboratory settling tests on a simulated effluent.

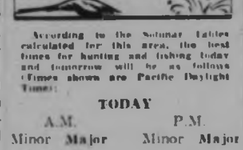

* * *

The B.C. pollution control board has approached Western Mines to inform the company it will need to apply for a permit and when the company applies investigations will get into full gear. New member of the board, John Peck of the mines departments, has been assigned to look into pollution problems at both Western Mines and the Mount Washington mine where there has been considerable problems with the impounding area spilling into Wolf Lake and Wolf Creek.

Several meetings have been held between provincial fish and game branch pollution experts, federal fisheries officials and Western Mines officials.

The Monarchs beat Ingraham Raiders, 6-0, while the Motormen outlasted Red Lion Inn, 8-4.

Lions' Homebrew Contingent Most Impressive in History

By JIM TANG

COURTENAY—Because of the presence of five newcomers, two of them proven veterans who have shown in training camp that there can be no doubt about their starting status, B.C. Lions have the best collection of Canadian players in their 13-year history.

"Yes, I would have to agree with that," coach Dave Skrien answered when asked of this was a reasonable presumption. "I would like to see more Canadian players here but I'd have to say what we have is good."

There are only 22 Canadian players here and with 18 to escape the final cut, probably no more than one roster spot is in doubt.

The five newcomers who have been doing quite a bit to help the impression that the Lions could make it all the way back this season are Bill Mitchell, Bill Crawford, Ray Lychak, Mike Webster and Rudy Reschke.

SHREWD DEALS

Mitchell, the place-kicking centre, and Crawford, a fine running guard, were obtained in some shrewd bartering. Both have been of all-star calibre and both look as capable as ever.

Lychak, Webster and Reschke add considerably to bench strength, and the former two may not be too far away from starting calibre.

A 22-year-old, 240-pound guard who was born in Prince Albert, Lychak played his college football at San Jose State College, the same school which produced Mack Burton for the Lions.

FINE RECORD

He had quite a record at San Jose. A three-year letterman, he was selected as the Spartan's most-valuable player last year and rated by his coach as the most consistent blocking lineman on the club. He was also a college heavyweight wrestling champion, and but for the presence of Crawford might have put a headlock on a starting job.

"We could start him at guard and not lose too much," offence-coach Frank Johnston says of Lychak, who appears to be the No. 1 back-up lineman on offence, either at guard or tackle.

Webster, 21-year-old, 235-pound Victoria-born tackle who played at Notre Dame, has looked capable in the workouts and gives the Lions a back-up man on defence for tackles Mike Cacic and Dick Fouts.

GERMANY-BORN

Reschke, a 24-year-old, 225-pounder who was born in Germany, is a linebacker with possibilities. Although he played some football at Utah, he lacks experience. But he is a smashing tackler with a fierce determination which is hard to deny. This quintet is added to a returning group which included Cacic, flanker Sonny Homer, ends Pat Claridge and Jim Carphin, defensive-backs Norm Fieldgate and Neal Beaumont, halfback Bill Lasseter, defensive-end Greg Findlay, versatile-lineman Roy Shatzko and the three imports who can be counted as Canadians—Fouts, middle-guard Tom Brown and offence-guard Tom Hinton.

Flanker Bob Apps, back for a second training camp, veteran-back Roy Cameron and two rookies, defensive-end Jim Hogan from University of Western Ontario, and defensive-back Bayne Norrie from Queen's University, are other Canadians here.

SEVEN ALL-STARS

It is, as Skrien says, a group somewhat short of quantity but it contains at least seven Western Football Conference all-stars of recent seasons—Hinton, Claridge, Fouts, Cacic, Brown and Beaumont making it in 1964 and Fieldgate in 1963, as well as in 1959. Fouts, of course, was the lineman of the year in 1965.

All figure to be starters along with Mitchell, Crawford, Homer and Findlay.

It adds up, and nicely, to the 11 starting berths which have to be filled by players with a "Canadian" rating and of past performance and current indication, it is doubtful if it can be equalled by any club in Canada.

AT OLD POST

Homer, back at his old position after a conclusive 1965 test as a defensive-back, has been looking quite a bit like the flanker he was in 1964; Claridge is back at split-end, where he is more useful than at tight-end, and Fouts, a defensive-end last season, and Fieldgate, outstanding as a corner-linebacker, have been moved to new positions in a new defensive-alignment along with Findlay, now about ready to be a standout regular.

Brown, Hinton, Cacic and Beaumont look as good as ever and Mitchell and Crawford look better than what the Lions had before at their positions. And in Lychak, Webster and Shatzko, a standout rookie last year who is solid protection at two or three positions, the Lions have back-up Canadian strength which is no more than a step behind.

It all has to work out the way it looks but at least the Lions seem to have it as regards Canadians on paper, and that's where every new season has to start.

World Cup Victories Posted By Brazil, Germany, Russia

LONDON (CP) — Defending champion Brazil, Russia and West Germany won their opening matches in the World Soccer Cup tournament played before more than 100,000 fans in three English cities Tuesday night.

The three countries waltzed through their matches — and once again West Germany looked the team to watch.

Brazil defeated Bulgaria 2-0 in Liverpool; West Germany slaughtered Switzerland 5-0 in Sheffield, and the Russians defeated North Korea 3-0 in Middlesbrough.

The three-week-long championships opened Monday when Uruguay played a scoreless tie with England.

FOUR GROUPS

The 16 teams in the championship are divided into four groups. The top two in each group will advance to the quarter-finals for the most prized possession in world professional soccer the Jules Rimet Trophy.

In Brazil's well-deserved win over a plucky Bulgarian team both goals came from free kicks.

Appropriately, King Pele and Little Bird Garrincha, the stars who have helped Brazil dominate world soccer for the last eight years, scored the goals—both from free kicks for fouls on Pele himself.

TOOK LEAD

West Germany, the dast European country to win the World Cup in 1954, gave a display of professional, power-packed soccer as it soared to a 3-0 lead at halftime.

Beckenbauer and Haller, the midfield linkmen in the Germans' 4-2-4 system, each scored two goals. Left winger Siegfried Held got the other goal.

Eduard Malofeev scored two goals to lead Russia to its decisive win over North Korea. Anatoliy Banishevskiy, 18-year-old star centre forward, scored the other Soviet goal.

The Russians showed formidable form—the sort of speed, vigor and hardshooting that could make them a real threat for the cup.

Today's schedule (all starting times 2:30 p.m. EDT):

At Wembley, France vs. Mexico.

At Birmingham, Spain vs. Argentina.

At Manchester, Hungary vs. Portugal.

At Sunderland, Chile vs. Italy.

With the London Group One teams — England, Uruguay, France and Mexico—having a day off, the World Cup spotlight switched to the three provincial areas.

GAME WAS OPEN

In sharp contrast to the dour defensive play in the opening match between England and Uruguay which threatened to strangle the World Cup as a spectacle, Tuesday night's games produced open, fast soccer.

Brazil has been hit by injuries recently, but its win over Bulgaria should go a long way to giving the world champions the uplift and confidence necessary to sweep through the other group three teams — Bulgaria, Hungary and Portugal.

The Bulgarians qualified for the finals only after a playoff against Belgium and were something of an unknown quantity. They fought hard but could not match the world - class magic of Pele, Garrincha and company.

PELE STARS

Pele, the world's great soccer player who first shot to fame as a 17-year-old in the 1958 World Cup series, put on a tremendous show. Though he was relentlessly shadowed by Doboromor Zhechev, Pele was never tamed.

In the 16th minute, Pele smashed the ball past Bulgarian goalkeeper Naidenov to score the first goal. Yakimov brought down Pele just outside the penalty area as Pele had a clear view of goal. Pele then took the free kick and drove a tremendous drive to the goalkeeper's right. Naidenov got a foot to it and it shot into the roof of the net.

MADE ACCUSATION

After the game, Pele accused Bulgaria of overdoing the rough play.

"I have received more blows than ever before. The Bulgarians are good and I can't see why they have to use such rough play."

In the meantime, London bookies cut the odds on Brazil to win the tournament to 7 to 4 from 2 to 1. One firm made West Germany joint second favorites with England at 6 to 1.

At Sheffield, the Germans were complete masters.

The first three goals came after German players had taken the ball past Swiss defenders on their own.

Held beat three men before scoring the first goal in the 16th minute. Haller, dribbled past two defenders to get the second in the 21st minute. Beckenbauer also beat his man to make it 3-0 after 40 minutes.

The Germans eased up in the second half. But Beckenbauer scored another fine goal in the 52nd minute and Haller hit home a penalty in the 77th minute after Uwe Seeler, the German captain, was fouled.

DENFORDS WIN

Denford Electric beat Morrisons, 5-2, in a Junior Men's Softball League game Tuesday at Central Park.

Reed's Timely Explosion Gives Saskatchewan Win

MONTREAL (CP) — Fullback George Reed of Saskatchewan Roughriders spun over for a touchdown from the one-yard line with less than three minutes to go in the game to give his club a 23-17 win over Montreal Alouettes in a Canadian Football League exhibition game Tuesday night.

The game was played in 85-degree weather before an estimated 18,000 fans and marked the first contest for both clubs in pre-season play.

The Riders exploded for a touchdown on a 73-yard pass-and-run play from quarterback Ron Lancaster to halfback Paul Dudley with 32 seconds elapsed in the game.

Jack Abendschen picked up the extra point on that touchdown, kicked a field goal at 7:45 of the quarter and added another extra point after Hugh Campbell scored on a 40-yard run at 13:07.

The Als came back in the second quarter to pick up three points on a 16-yard field goal by Peter Kempf at 4:25 and a one-yard plunge by fullback J. W. Lockett. Kempf picked up the extra point on Lockett's touchdown and Saskatchewan led 17-10 at the half.

After a scoreless third quarter, Kempf picked up six points on a 10-yard pass from quarterback Bernie Faloney at 3:05 of the final frame. He kicked the extra point to tie the game 17-17.

Reed's six-pointer at 12:43 ended the scoring.

Lancaster completed three in the first 15 minutes of play before being replaced by rookie Tom Kennedy, an import from the Los Angeles State, for the balance of the game.

Kennedy attempted 19 passes, completed six and had two intercepted for 143 yards.

Campbell was the western club's top receiver, picking up one touchdown and 121 yards on four catches.

For Montreal Faloney threw 14 times, completing only four passes for 27 yards, while George Bork had five completions for 60 yards in the same number of attempts. Faloney and Bork alternated throughout the contest.

Bellies Provide Fuel For Rocks' Ambition

VICTORIA	19	4	14	1	146	194	9

Tuesday's score: New Westminster 5 at Vancouver 17.
Next game: Tonight, Coquitlam at VICTORIA.

Those who get helped are also expected to help themselves, the proverb says.

And Victoria Shamrocks have a great opportunity to help themselves when they meet Coquitlam Adanacs, league-leaders in the Inter-City Lacrosse League, tonight at Memorial Arena.

Shamrocks got a large parcel of help Tuesday when Vancouver thumped New Westminster Salmonbellies, 17-8. Salmonbellies are in the third place — the last playoff spot — in the league, 11 points ahead of the Shamrocks.

Salmonbellies had regular goalie Les Norman back for Tuesday's game, but it didn't help. Norman was supposed to be on a two-week holiday, and substitute Ken Ridd got the blame for Victoria's 16-11 victory over New Westminster last Thursday.

But Norman got little protection Tuesday as Vancouver scored three times while it was playing shorthanded against a disorganized New Westminster power-play.

For New Westminster, the playoff clinching "magic number" is still six — any combination of New Westminster wins and Shamrock losses totalling six puts the Bellies in the playoffs.

But Shamrocks have a chance. Coquitlam will be without Fred Usselman who is sitting out the second game of a two-game suspension for a stick-swinging battle with Vancouver's Bill Chisholm. Adanacs, however, have signed Jack Barclay.

Shamrocks beat the Adanacs, 6-5, the first time the clubs played at Memorial Arena this season.

Tom Collett and Tom Black will be missing from the Shamrock line up tonight. Illness has sidelined Collett for the season, and Black is working.

Ted Liebich and Lon Restell are doubtful starters, but Bill Munroe will be back, and Ranjit Dillon's injured toe survived last week's two games.

If Shamrocks should win their next four games and New Westminster drop its next three, the teams would be three points apart when they play their three-game series at the end of the month.

Morgan Fires 77 But Retains Lead

VANCOUVER (CP) — Scores soared Tuesday, the second day of the British Columbia Junior Golf Championship, as a result of a breeze and awkward placing of the flag on the greens.

Bob Smith of Kamloops and John Morgan of Royal Colwood in Victoria were second-round leaders with 149. Smith was the only player to equal par 72. He had a 77 Monday.

Morgan jumped to a 77 from his first-round leading 72.

Best improvement of the day was the 74 of Don Billsborough of Victoria Uplands who had an 81 Monday.

Tied for second place were Doug Stewart and John Russell of Vancouver with 150.

Albert Cliff of Uplands was tied for eighth spot with five others, all with 78-79-157.

The leaders:

John Morgan, Colwood	72-77-149
Bob Smith, Kamloops	77-72-149
Doug Stewart, Vancouver	72-77-150
John Russell, Vancouver	74-76-150

Tykes in Spotlight For Minor Boxla

Those Tykes did it again at minor lacrosse night at Memorial Arena Tuesday.

The Tykes are the tiniest of the minor lacrosse players. They're all under eight. And when a Tyke goalkeeper gets his pads on, he has the rotundity and broad-as-he-is-longness of a Giles cartoon figure.

But the Tykes staged the closest games Tuesday. In the opener, Victoria "A" beat Saanich "B", 4-1, on two goals by Geordie Robertson, and one by Darryl Pynn.

Then Saanich Tyke "A" beat Saanich Novice "B", 6-3, with Jimmy Boyd getting five goals.

Victoria Novices edged Saanich Novices, 5-2, Saanich Peewees beat Victoria Peewees, 14-2, and Home Service Midgets defeated McDonald's Bakery Bantams, 11-2.

The door prize for the event was unclaimed and ticket-holder 2126 should get in touch with Doug Fletcher.

Iron Curtain Assails Sport

MOSCOW (UPI) — Poland helped Soviet Russia lower the iron curtain on athletic relations with the United States Tuesday when the Communist satellite nation followed the lead of the U.S.S.R. in cancelling its upcoming dual meet with the American track and field team.

The alleged reason for the abrupt withdrawal, just as in the case of the Russian cancellation on Monday, was the United States' bombing of North Viet Nam.

The Polish announcement, which followed hours of speculation, was made only hours before the Polish team was scheduled to leave for the United States and its meet this weekend at Berkeley, Calif.

The Russians, reportedly acting in reprisal for American "atrocities" in Viet Nam, had been scheduled to meet the U.S. team in Los Angeles, July 23-24.

VISAS READY

The American Embassy in Warsaw had notified Polish team officials earlier Tuesday that their U.S. visas were ready and an embassy spokesman said that the Poles had given no indication they planned to cancel their trip. They were expected to leave Wednesday morning.

Despite the twin cancellations, U.S. ambassador to Russia Foy D. Kohler said that the United States had no intention of retaliating and that American swimmers, who just finished a dual meet in Warsaw, still planned to compete in a 10-nation swimming meet here this weekend.

Kohler also met with the Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko and charged that the decisions supposedly made by the athletes at a mass meeting had been made by the Kremlin itself.

"We hold the Soviet government responsible," Kohler said after the meeting. "And Gromyko did not really try to contest this point."

PART OF PLAN

The cancellations by Russia and Poland are believed to be part of a sudden escalation of Soviet Chinese charges of Soviet-American "collusion" in the bombing of the suburbs of Hanoi and Haiphong.

According to the Polish announcement, the Polish team had "adopted a unanimous resolution" to cancel the trip.

"It is most unfortunate when sports events which can be so helpful in the development of friendship and good will among the people of all nations are distorted from their wholesale purpose and made the basis of political attacks," commented U.S. ambassador to Poland John A. Grounouski.

The Polish decision placed its team in jeopardy of possible expulsion from the Olympic games, as did Russia by its decisions.

RISKY MOVE

Glenn Davis, meet director of the Russian competition, said in Los Angeles Monday that he was told by Col. Donald Hull, executive director of the U.S. Amateur Athletic Union, that the Soviets "would jeopardize their standing with the International Amateur Athletic Federation" by failing to fulfil their contract.

"Hull said such action could mean that the Soviets would be banned from all international competition including the Olympic Games," Davis added.

Apparently, the same would apply to Poland.

SHOW GOES ON

Jerry Diamond, the promotion director for the U.S.-Poland event, said more than $40,000 in tickets had been sold and that a refund would be made to anyone who wished to receive one. He also announced, however, that a substitute meet, an "all-American invitational," would be held on the same dates, this Saturday and Sunday.

In addition to the members of the U.S. national team and alternates already on hand, approximately 20 more American men and 15 more American women would be invited along with every major track figure in the world, such as Ron Clarke of Australia, Bill Crothers of Canada and Kipchoge Keino of Kenya.

Next game: Tonight — Rawlings vs. Greaves, 6:30, Hampton Park.

Gerry Macadam struck out 12 batters as Kings improved their playoff chances by beating Rawlings, 9-4, in a Senior Amateur Baseball League game at Hampton Park Tuesday.

The top four clubs in the six-team league make the playoffs, and Kings now trail fourth-place Rawlings by only two games.

Macadam also picked up three base hits.

Only consolation for Rawlings was a sensational running catch by leftfielder Johnny Martin. Martin raced deep into the outfield and leaped up to grab Dennis Thompson's long blast with the bases loaded in the fifth inning.

Some Risk For Griffith

NEW YORK (AP) — Emile Griffith, who is fighting in court to retain the welterweight crown, risks the middleweight title against boxing stylist Joey Archer of New York in a 15-rounder at Madison Square Garden tonight.

The 28-year-old champion, who is built more like a 147-pound welterweight than a 160-pound middleweight, was rated just even in the betting against the challenger, who also is 28.

The odds have dropped from 2-1 and then 7-5 in favor of Griffith because of his difficulty in building up weight.

Built like a middleweight from the waist up and like a lightweight below, Griffith weighed only 150¾ pounds when he dethroned 160-pound Dick Tiger at the Garden last April 25.

But Tiger was 36 years old and slow. Griffith was able to out-manoeuvre the plodding Nigerian. Griffith's trainer and co-manager, Gil Clancy, had hoped to get the champ up to 154 pounds for Archer in order to beef up his power.

Esquimalt Shot Misses by Point

BROOKWOOD, Eng. (Reuters) — LAC Ernie Roger, 26, of Esquimalt, B.C., serving with the RCAF at Lancaster Park, Alta., failed by a single point to win the aggregate trophy that LAC Jim Hennock of Toronto won last year.

The trophy, given for the best aggregate in Monday's three events at 200, 500 and 900 yards, was won with 146, the same as Hennock's total last year, by Colin McEachran of Glasgow.

Roger's runner-up score of 145 was equalled by B. H. B. Wrey of the Oxford and Cambridge Rifle Association, but on the "countout" Roger took second prize because his long-range score, 49, was three points better than that of the British marksman.

Don Sewell of Winnipeg was 11th with 142 and Cadet Lieut. A. R. Betts, Shanty Bay, Ont., 16th with 141.

Maury Comes Just in Time To Prove Nationals' Calibre

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Maury Wills' line single into right field in the 10th inning scored Tim McCarver from second to give the National League a 2-1 victory over the American League Tuesday before 49,936 fans in 100-plus-degree weather at Busch Memorial Stadium.

Los Angeles Dodgers' shortstop, who entered the game in the eighth inning as a replacement for Cincinnati's Leo Cardenas, lashed a pitch by Washington's Pete Richert into right field and McCarver, the St. Louis catcher, dug for home.

Tony Oliva of Minnesota made the long throw to the plate, but it was late and wide as McCarver scored.

The victory was the fourth straight for the Nationals, who now hold a 19-17-1 edge over the American League which used to dominate this mid-summer fixture. It also was the fourth straight time the Nationals won in extra innings.

Pitching and fine defensive play, especially by third baseman Brooks Robinson of Baltimore Orioles, dominated the contest.

It was 100 degrees when the game started and the thermometer popped up to 102 officially. However, it must have been at least 10 degrees warmer on the field. About 100 spectators were treated for heat exhaustion and several deaths in the St. Louis area were attributed to the heat.

Denny McLain, Detroit's ace right-hander and top winner in the American, had outpitched the Dodgers' Sandy Koufax with three perfect innings to start the game.

Koufax yielded a run in the second on a wild pitch following a triple by Brooks Robinson on a ball that got away from left-fielder Hank Aaron of Atlanta as he tried for a shoe-string catch.

WILD PITCH

Koufax made Boston's George Scott foul out, following Brooks' triple, but his first pitch to catcher Bill Freehan of Detroit sailed past catcher Joe Torre of Atlanta for a wild pitch. Robinson scored easily for a run that stood up until the fourth.

The Nationals pulled even in the fourth with the help of Willie Mays of San Francisco. The star of many all-star contests singled off Minnesota's Jim Kaat and took second on a single by Roberto Clemente of Pittsburgh.

Aaron fouled out, but Mays took third when Willie McCovey of San Francisco forced Clemente at second. Ron Santo of Chicago Cubs then beat out a single off the glove of Brooks Robinson, scoring Mays. It was a slow hit ball, charged by Brooks, who was unable to prevent it from trickling off his glove.

PINCH HITTERS

Both Manager Walter Alston of the Nationals and Sam Mele of the Americans manoeuvered with pinch hitters and almost cleared their benches as they tried for the tie-breaker.

The Americans mounted a threat in the 10th inning against Gaylord Perry of San Francisco, who turned out to be the winning pitcher.

Brooks Robinson came through with his third hit, a looping single to short left, and raced to second on Perry's wild pitch to Norm Cash of Detroit. However, Perry got Cash on a fly to Willie Mays. After walking Earl Battey of Minnesota, the Giants' right-hander got a big lift from McCovey, who reached into the box seats to nab a foul pop by Bobby Richardson of the New York Yankees.

THREW THIRD STRIKE

With men on first and second and two gone, Perry threw a third strike past Jim Fregosi of California Angels.

The Nationals struck quickly with McCarver's hit into the hole between first and second into right. Richert fielded Hunt's sacrifice bunt, hesitated after looking to second and threw to first in time to get Hunt. Wills then came through with the winner, his first RBI in All-Star competition.

Brooks Robinson was all over the field, playing the entire game and chipping in with the triple and two singles. He was a unanimous selection of the press box vote for most valuable player.

BROOKS HOT

In the second inning, Brooks grabbed Santo's hot liner. In the sixth he moved toward the bag to dig out Aaron's grounder and threw him out. In the ninth he went over the bag to come up with Santo's smash and got the ball to first in time for the out.

Wills made a spectacular over-the-head catch of Frank Robinson's looping pop flyin short left field in the ninth. McCovey's grab of Richardson's foul helped Perry out of deep trouble in the 10th.

Brooks Robinson set an All-Star record with eight assists in the first nine innings and tied another with four putouts in the same distance.

There have been only four extra inning games in all-star competition and the National has won all of them. They went 14 innings for a 4-3 edge in 1950 at Chicago, 12 innings for a 6-5 winner at Milwaukee in 1955 and 10 innings for a 5-4 verdict at San Francisco in 1961.

Aaron, continuing his All-Star slump, went hitless in four attempts. So did Frank Robinson of Baltimore, who once was a National All-Star.

Mays extended his records with his 22nd hit and his 19th run but his average suffered from a one-for-four afternoon.

ALSTON FOLLOWED

Alston followed Koufax with Jim Bunning of the Phillies, who used to set back the Nationals in this game when he was with Detroit, then came Juan Marichal and Perry, both of the Giants.

After McLain's fine performance, Mele turned to Kaat of his own Minnesota staff and followed with Mel Stottlemyre of New York, Sonny Siebert of Cleveland and finally Richert.

The only Nationals who didn't play were catcher Tom Haller of Giants, outfielder Felipe Alou of Atlanta and pitchers Bob Veale of Pittsburgh, Billy McCool of Cincinnati, Claude Raymond of Houston and Phil Regan of Dodgers.

Mele had only outfielder Carl Yastrzemski of Boston and catcher Andy Etchebarren of Baltimore on his bench at the end, in addition to pitchers Steve Barber of Baltimore, Gary Bell of Cleveland and Catfish Hunter of Kansas City.

Although the crowd has been topped in other cities, both the gross receipts of $307,848 and the net receipts of $284,949.31 were all-star records.

Bees Buzz Back

Warm weather has saved hundreds of Island bee colonies — and the livelihoods of many beekeepers.

Despite emergency feeding, the cold spring killed off "dozens of colonies" of bees, according to a Victoria beekeeper.

Charles Warren of Babe's Honey said:

"We just couldn't get enough feed to them quick enough. Some colonies consumed as much as 60 pounds of honey and still died in the cold snap."

The warmer weather has corrected the situation, he said, and the local honey business is back on its feet after a poor start to the year.

Many Problems

Water in Sidney May Shift To Village Control

Sidney waterworks trustees are seeking a painless method of turning over the water administration to the village.

"There are quite a few technicalities involved before a turnover could be completed," Sidney water board chairman, F. S. B. Heward said Tuesday.

"To preserve the equity of taxation of all our consumers, both in the village, and outside its limit, is one of our greatest concerns."

GOVERNMENT IDEA

The proposal to have the village administer the water supply was made by the municipal affairs department.

The water is presently administered by a board of five trustees.

"We are agreeable to the idea in principal of having the village take over the administration," chairman Heward said. "But, it will take quite a bit of study before a solution will be found."

NINE WELLS

The water comes from nine wells in North Saanich, and the system also has an emergency connection to the Central Saanich water line.

Sidney village chairman Arthur Freeman said the village commission has indicated that it is prepared to take over administration if the waterboard trustees feel it is the proper time.

No date has been indicated for the proposed turnover.

Commander John W. Fisher, 3350 Upper Terrace will leave his latest appointment as comptroller for Pacific Maritime Command.

He joined the navy in 1936 in Victoria.

At the outbreak of the Second World War he was chief petty officer in charge of the naval clothing department and responsible for equipping close to 5,000 recruits a month.

* * *

In 1942 he was posted overseas where he commissioned a Tribal class destroyer and served on convoy duty in the English Channel and the coast of Norway.

He served as a naval overseer in a large Canadian shipyard, was nearly three years in the naval supply school in Montreal as deputy officer in charge, and attended the senior supply and secretariat course at the Royal Naval Staff College in England.

Canada-Wide Plan Lauded

Youth Exchange to Continue

B.C. and federal government-sponsored youth travel programs may continue after 1967, B.C. centennial chairman L. J. Wallace predicted Tuesday.

He made the forecast at a farewell gathering for 24 high school youngsters leaving today for home in the Northwest Territories after a week in Victoria.

LASTING EFFECT

"Of all the centennial projects we have, this will have the most lasting effect and benefit for Canada," said Mr. Wallace in the Douglas Building cafeteria.

"Canada certainly will continue the program, and B.C. probably will."

Federal and provincial governments are co-operating in sending thousands of youngsters back and forth across the nation to mark the provincial and national centennials this year and next, respectively.

Several Causes Possible In Young Sailor's Death

Any one of several injuries could have caused the death of a young sailor blown up when a fire extinguisher exploded Monday, a coroner's jury was told Tuesday night.

Chief cause of the death of LS Roy John Masales, 24, of Halifax, was a severe brain hemmorrhage and a fracture at the base of the skull, said medical report.

* * *

The young seaman was handling an old fire extinguisher aboard a Martin Mars flying boat at Patricia Bay Airport when it exploded, releasing about 2,000 pounds pressure.

He died instantly.

The inquest was limited to identification of the body and medical evidence Tuesday night.

Coroner D. G. Ashby will reconvene the inquest in the civic building in Sidney at 7:30 p.m. next Tuesday.

Mystery Plant Danger To City Garden Plots

The purple mystery flower of Milgrove Street has been named.

"It's an Arum Palaestinum," Mrs. Katharyn Ramage of Sidney said Tuesday.

"The plant is quite common, and is a terrible menace in a garden because it spreads so badly. "It is believed to have originated in Palestine and is sometimes called the Black Lily of the Nile.

* * *

"It's a relative of the skunk cabbage, and is sometimes called Black Calla," she said.

"It also smells like skunk cabbage too," she added.

The strange three-foot high deep purple-leafed plant with a mottled stem resembling snake skin, and bearing a single foot-long purple spike, bewildered its owner Cliff Harris, 2930 Milgrove.

He didn't know what it was and said that it was a wierd-looking thing which looked like it should be on Mars.

* * *

As a result of a photo published in Tuesday's Colonist many telephone calls were received from people who knew the name of the strange plant.

Mr. Harris said some of the callers told him the plant was a Voodo Lily, others called it Jac in-the-Pulpit. One claimed it to be a Hydrosone, or snake palm, and another said the purple plant was Dracunvaclus.

* * *

He said he was amazed at the response of the people calling him to try and identify the plant.

"Some of them had similar plants, but others didn't and still they phoned to try and help me find the name of it," he said.

The Narcissus Queen of Hawaii, Lynanne Moo, will be received at Centennial Square at 7:30 this evening.

Accompanied by her princesses, Jacquelyn Chun and Carolyn Hong, she will be officially welcomed on behalf of the city by Mayor A. W. Toone and by Mrs. F. M. Corbett for the Centennial Society. Present also will be representatives of the Chinese Benevolent Society and Jack Tang who has worked on arrangements for the visit.

A spirited debate by World Federalists here Tuesday resulted in a small majority vote that the United Nations should not aid Britain by supporting its stand in Rhodesia.

Speaking for UN support were Ivor Burrows and Ranjit Singh with Dr. Harry Richardson and David Prosser, opposing the action.

Around Town

An 11-year-old boy is in fair condition at St. Joseph's Hospital following a tumble off the Ogden Point breakwater Monday.

Terry Skibo, 2758 Belmont, was riding his bicycle along the top of the breakwater in company with his twin brother when he fell from the breakwater onto rocks below.

The boy suffered facial injuries.

Jon York's Music Hall

Show Goes Seven Days

By PATRICK O'NEILL

Summer trade has brought all-week opening to Jon York's Music Hall.

Gayfer

New York Hearing Royal Visit

A composition by Capt. James Gayfer — Royal Visit — has been included in an RCA Victor recording of the Howard Cable Concert Band.

The record titled Music in the Round is reported getting excellent exposure by radio stations in New York State.

Until his retirement recently Capt. Gayfer was on the staff at the Tri-Services School of Music in Esquimalt and a director of the Victoria Symphony Society.

This is the first week of the new schedule for the coffee-house in the Century Inn basement, and featured artist is a young guitarist and singer named Valdy.

He began entertaining several years ago in Winnipeg, before moving to eastern Canada.

He joined the London Towne Criers in London, Ont., and stayed with them for 1½ years.

MAJOR TOURS

This group played the Mariposa Folk Festival, appeared twice on the television program Let's Sing Out, was seen on the network Juliette show, and did two major tours.

Valdy joined the Prodigal Sons, did another tour and played Canadian Talent Showcase.

He did a solo tour of the Maritimes, played country and western music in Montreal, and recently moved to Victoria.

NAVY CADETS

Music Hall regulars have heard Valdy during Sunday night hoots, and on one headline weekend spot.

Appearing during other weeks of the expanded summer schedule will be the Darren St. Claire jazz quintet, Carol Hedin, and Peter Chipman.

Tonight, the music hall is booked out with a special hoot for navy cadets.

Three Little Pigs With Box of Smiles

By BERT BINNY

An innovation in summer entertainment for this Centennial year is the Bastion Children's Theatre now running three afternoons a week at the Butchart Gardens.

Two intriguing productions are being offered: The Box of Smiles by John Hirsch with music by Victor Davies or Three Little Pigs by Ralph Kendall. Mr. Kendall was with Victoria theatre for a time and Mr. Hirsch is associated with the Manitoba Theatre Centre in Winnipeg.

LITTLE PIGS

Tuesday afternoon, at 2:15, the bill was the Three Little Pigs.

It seems no exaggeration to say that this show belongs as do about 90 per cent—to Bill Hosie who plays the Wolf. He makes of this nefarious character something closely allied to what portrayers of Dickens' Fagin in Oliver make. He may not be completely lovable but he is attractively ingenious.

SPANKING PACE

Mr. Hosie plays first-class comedy; his speech—a lovely disguise of a well-known singing voice—his movements, his timing are all exemplary.

Christopher Ross as a cloaked and top-hatted magician is also excellent.

The play moves at a spanking pace. It is well known that children's plays require exercise points where terrific speed and action are employed. The Three Little Pigs provide a more or less continuous exercise point.

SETTINGS GREAT

Except just at the end. Here the script, which is an odd conglomeration of legend, myth, ancient history and fairy tale, bogs down and even the best efforts of this very talented cast can do little for it.

The costumes and the setting are excellent.

SET DESIGN

These are all the names of individuals who have achieved note in other phases of Victoria's theatrical activities. The director is Bastion Theatre head, Peter Mannering, and musical direction is by Merlisse Hill.

Actor Art Person is, apparently, nothing if not a pluralist. Backstage he is responsible for the design of set and costumes, and, in part for the execution of the later.

STAGE MANAGER

Miss Dunn and Mr. Easick who also appear onstage, assist with costume and set construction in back. Paul Smitz is busy, too: he is stage manager, half the properties staff and one quarter of the set construction crew. Other backstage assistants are Sheila Gurney, Peter Gordon, David Weir and Len Bentham.

The plays are performed from a mobile wagon stage, especially constructed. Thespis, generally acknowledged as the very founder of true theatre and drama, trundled his performers around Greece in a cart, also using the cart as a stage.

This was about 2,500 years ago, so that Wagon Theatre is scarcely a novel idea. Rather it is an intriguing bit of resurrection.

There is a picture of a "Pageant" vehicle dating back to the time of the Miracle Plays in the Hulton Picture Library. Actually, roughly between 1300 and 1450, pageants were themselves—not performances—but "large timber structures on four wheels that could be drawn through the streets."

Neither the Three Little Pigs nor The Box of Smiles are Miracle Plays or Greek Drama. But they're going over well; they are undoubtedly Bastion's most successful metier so far.

Whether the plays are better than the current revue—an opinion I have heard expressed more than once—is an open question.

Anyway, the Children's Theatre goes on every Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday—2:15 and 3:15 p.m.—until the end of August.

No Animals On Beach In Ontario

Jetting Phil Proves Most Elusive

Highways Minister Gaglardi, who has a reputation of seldom staying long in any given place, has been harder to reach since he acquired a second-hand jet aircraft for his department.

Nobody in the higher echelons of the highways department knew Tuesday where the minister was. They said if an emergency developed they would simply "have to start phoning around."

A telephone operator at the Hotel Vancouver said Mr. Gaglardi had left word there that he would be in Vancouver on Wednesday.

* * *

Reports were circulating here Tuesday that the highways minister plans to convert the four remaining piston driven Beechcraft used by his department into turbo-prop aircraft.

The highways department recently completed the successful conversion of a Beechcraft air frame into a prototype turbo-prop, at an estimated cost of $150,000 to $200,000.

Usually reliable sources here said conversion of the Beechcrafts is expected to begin this fall, when there will be less demand for use of the planes which operate out of Patricia Bay Airport.

Blood Clinics Scheduled

Blood donor clinics will be held by the Red Cross Thursday and Friday this week — with a goal of 500 pints.

The first clinic will be held at Red Cross House, 1046 Fort, from 1:30 to 4:30 p.m. and from 6:30 to 9 p.m. Thursday. Friday clinics will be held at Saanich fire hall, 760 Vernon, from 10 a.m. to noon and 1 to 5 p.m. and at the Students' Union Building, University of Victoria, from 10 to 11:30 a.m. and from 12:30 to 2 p.m.

Aircraft Industry Lures School Grads

The aircraft industry has established a plan to encourage high school students to train for aircraft maintenance, education minister Peterson announced Monday.

He said that high school grads who complete either electrical or mechanical courses in the new industrial program will be credited with six months' experience if they enter the aircraft maintenance industry.

EXTRA CREDIT

Students who go from high school through a 12-month aircraft maintenance course at the provincial vocational school in Burnaby will get an extra year's credit for pay purposes.

The new plan will reduce the normal four-year training period for airplane maintenance men by as much as 18 months.

Mr. Peterson forecast that the trend will spread to commerce and the service industries.

First high school graduates in the new curriculum will leave school in June, 1967.

DC-9 Part Deal Out Window?

OTTAWA (CP) — Opposition leader Diefenbaker asked Tuesday whether a Toronto aircraft plant has lost a $62,800,000 contract from the United States for DC-9 jetliner parts.

Industry Minister Drury said he was not aware that such a large contract had been cancelled and promised to investigate.

Mr. Diefenbaker said his information was that de Havilland Aircraft Co. of Toronto lost its production-sharing contract for DC-9 wings and stabilizer parts because of U.S. balance of payments difficulties.

Air Canada chose the DC-9 as its new medium-range passenger aircraft partly because the Douglas Aircraft Co. of the U.S. was willing to let sub-contracts in Canada.

Piano Pounders Wreck in Vain

CHRISTCHURCH, England (Reuters)—A group of British firemen wielding sledgehammers smashed 17 pianos during the weekend in a vain attempt to beat the world record held by students at Wayne State University in Detroit. The firemen's best time was five minutes, 48 seconds, compared with the students' 3:11.

Marriage Wrecked

Beer Parlor Every Night For Alcoholic

By RAY KERR
Second of a Series

Harold is an average Canadian of Anglo-Saxon ancestry, living an average life in Victoria. He has an average job and looks like an average individual.

But Harold is not an average person. He is an alcoholic. Because we can't see inside him, we don't realize that he's resolved never to touch a single drop of alcoholic beverage again.

Drinking almost wrecked his life, and lives of several others. In the following taped interview he tells his drinking experiences occurring shortly after his marriage.

Harold drank a great deal from the age of 17, but after he got married he toned down considerably):

Question: Did you work steady after your marriage?

Answer: I sure did. I really went to town. I started selling and was doing well. I guess I was averaging over $700 a month on sales. It was hard work but I didn't mind the long hours if it meant more money.

Q: How did you get back into your drinking pattern?

A: It seemed to be after the first child was born. I got kind of left out around the house and the wife didn't seem to have the time for me. I started going out to the beer parlor . . . not drinking heavily but nevertheless drinking some. I met a lot of nice guys who seemed to have the same home life as mine. I think all of them were feuding with their wives . . . those who had them.

'Old Lady' Starts Harping

Pretty soon things deteriorated at home. The "old lady" started harping about my drinking and just to show her I wasn't drinking too much I drank more. It was getting to be a nightly routine. Slam the door and off to the pub.

Q: How was your job going now that you started drinking again?

A: For the birds. I missed good sales and now that I look back on it, no wonder! My personal appearance had started to slip and my hangovers lasted until I could get to the cocktail bar for lunch.

Q: Did your sales manager say anything at this time?

A: Well, he started hinting that I should take it easy. He mentioned my night life now and again but I only resented him for that. I remember saying: "God knows I put enough time in for him during the day; my nights should at least be my own."

Q: I guess you didn't last long with that attitude?

A: No, I blew up one day (with the usual hangover) and told the boss what he could do with his job. I left there and soon got another selling job, but that didn't last too long. Finally I decided to leave the selling game (it was interfering with my drinking) and got into construction. I figured that a good day's work would give me the right to a good night's drinking. It didn't. Pretty soon I drifted into casual labor whenever I could get it and whenever I was able to get to the job.

Hardly Any Home Life

Q: How was your home life during this time?

A: My home life? Heck, there was hardly any left. The wife had left me a couple of times and after our second child was born, there didn't seem to be any place for me in her life. I really hit the skids.

Q: When did you finally realize you needed help with your problem?

A: Right about then. The wife has come home from hospital with the new baby and the place was a shambles. I didn't even get to pick her up I was so stoned. I was just laying around trying to get over a hangover the easy way . . . stay drunk.

Q: Did you look for help?

A: I went to the doctor who looked after the wife. He knew I had a problem I suppose the old lady told him all about it when she was carrying the baby.

Q: What did he tell you?

A: That I should quit drinking . . . or at least control it. He gave me a medical and I was okay, except I was a trifle undernourished. I hadn't been eating much, you know. He gave me some pills (tranquillizers) and again told me to cut down on my drinking.

Q: Did you?

Then Same Old Routine

A: Sure. For about two months, and then it was the same old routine. I had gone out for a few beers and it was okay. The next night I stayed home, and the third night I got loaded. The morning after I felt horrible. It was the worst hangover I'd ever had. I couldn't even hold a beer down although for the past couple of months I had taken to drinking in the morning. I finally managed to hold a beer down and I took a couple of the tranquilizer pills to steady my nerves. I felt great after that. But a funny thing happened that afternoon when I went to the beer parlor. Everything went blank. I woke up at home the next morning and didn't know what I had done. I was scared to death, I can tell you. More than 12 hours had gone by without me knowing. I started getting worried that I had done something terrible and spent the day by the phone waiting for some bad news.

Q: Was there any bad news?

A: No. Everything seemed to be normal. I phoned a couple of the guys I knew I was drinking with and they said they didn't notice a thing. Just that I was a little drunker than usually. I tell you, it was an eerie feeling.

Q: Where was your wife by this time?

A: She had gone to stay with her mother in Vancouver and had taken the kids with her. She wouldn't even write to me, but the mother-in-law did. I guess I don't have to tell you what she wrote. And now was really the first time I faced up to the fact I was a drunk. I had no steady job; my wife and family had left me; I couldn't control my drinking; and my world was shattering before my eyes.

I figured that was the end.

Luxury Yacht Visits Again

Becoming a familiar visitor to Victoria waters, the luxury yacht Danginn anchored in her usual spot in Cadboro Bay Monday to make her fourth visit in six years.

The 250-foot yacht is manned at present only by her crew. It is scheduled to cruise local waters for a month.

The vessel's owner, shipping tycoon Daniel Ludwig, keeps in touch with his yacht by aircraft.

Victory Shed Blazing Shell

CHATHAM, England (UPI) — A huge warehouse used during the building of the Victory, flagship of 18th century British naval hero Lord Nelson, turned into a blazing shell in 15 minutes Tuesday in a fire at Chatham naval dockyard. Fifteen fire trucks from nearby towns sped to help the dockyard fire brigade but failed to save the 18th century warehouse, nicknamed the Old Victory shed. It was built almost entirely of timber and the flames leapt up 100 feet.

Next Step Up to Bennett

Blighted Area Doom Nearer Commissioner Okays Project

By TED PULFORD

The Rose-Blanshard project—Victoria's multi-million-dollar dream for an urban renewal scheme which would bring new life to the city's blighted core—moved a big step nearer to reality Tuesday.

J. Everett Brown, housing commissioner for British Columbia, expressed approval of the plan in principle following a meeting with Mayor A. W. Toone, City Manager Dennis Young and officials of the federally-owned Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation.

For a variety of reasons, Mr. Brown's approval of the plan is absolutely crucial to its future.

The rock-bottom cost of the project has been set at something less than $2,000,000. CMHC would be expected to provide some $793,000 of this with the city and the province assuming a load of $396,000 each.

CMHC has worked hand in glove with city planners from the project's inception but — under the terms of the British North America Act — it is powerless to chip in without the province's prior approval.

As housing commissioner, Mr. Brown will take his recommendations directly to Premier Bennett. It is expected that the government's decision to participate, or not, will depend to a large extent upon Mr. Brown's report.

Automatic Contribution

"It was a good meeting and the future of the plan look's optimistic. That's all I can say until I make my report to the minister of finance (Premier Bennett) Monday," he said.

Should the premier agree to put up the province's share, the CMHC is expected to follow with its huge contribution almost automatically.

Mayor Toone was saying little about the talks Tuesday, but he was obviously pleased with the outcome.

"Everything went extremely well," he said. "I hope that we will be able to proceed within a month."

The mayor appeared confident that Mr. Brown would recommend approval to the provincial government.

Not only does it seem likely that the project will be approved, city officials expect that the plan — carefully prepared by City Manager Dennis Young and his planners — will emerge virtually unscathed from the provincial and federal scrutiny which lies ahead.

Area covered by the project is an older residential district, with substantial portions of commerical and industrial property. It lies within an area bounded by Hillside, Quadra, Kings, Blanshard, Pembroke and Douglas and occupies about 30 acres.

The main symptom of the disease which now afflicts the area, planners say, is a conglomeration of incompatible land uses to the disadvantage of all concerned.

Two-Phase Objective

Objectives of the renewal scheme fall naturally into two phases.

Of first importance will be removal of substandard housing and construction of low-rental housing accommodation, protection of the established residential neighborhood east of the scheme area, provision of a "rational road system" and construction of a new North Ward school.

Objects of the second phase will be to strengthen and stimulate the commercial precinct adjacent to Douglas and to promote a more "intensive and vigorous environment . . . that accords with the overall plan of Victoria."

The planners' first move was to ensure that adequate housing, at a fair rent, would be made available to the 150 persons whose present homes would be flattened in the initial clean-up.

A total of 120 units, varying in height from one to three stories, will be built as part of the project. There will be 20 one-bedroom units for senior citizens, 27 two-bedroom units, 55 three-bedroom units and 18 four-bedroom units.

The planners' concerted attack on incompatible land use throughout Victoria city is exemplified in the careful allocations made for the Rose-Blanshard project:

Seven Acres for School

A total of seven acres, bounded by Hillside, the lane which parallels Quadra, and Kings will be reserved for construction of a new elementary school to replace North Ward.

The federal-provincial housing project, with its 120 units will require almost nine acres.

Rose street reconstruction, with its 110-foot right-of-way on a new alignment, will be developed as an extension of Blanshard. This road, with its landscaped centre boulevard, will separate commercial users on the west side from residences on the east.

New apartments in the vicinity of Holyrood House will occupy a further three acres.

At the moment, the depressed area is all but barren of community services and no new ones are planned. It is felt that adjacent churches, community halls, stores and so forth will be sufficient for the time being.

As in any such scheme, the magic ingredient required to convert the dream into a reality, is money — specifically, the money which the city of Victoria can shake loose from its capital budget.

A total of $396,000 is required from the city to set the wheels in motion. At present, according to Mayor Toone, $350,000 is available directly from the capital budget and the remaining $46,000 should be available from recovery funds.

Region Plan

Sewer Peek Today

The Capital Region sewer survey—with its vital recommendations regarding sewage disposal for Greater Victoria and the Saanich Peninsula—will be tabled at a Regional District Board meeting this afternoon.

Contents of the study—which was launched by municipal engineering experts more than a year ago—remain a closely guarded secret.

Nor is the veil of secrecy likely to be lifted before Friday, by which time it is expected the municipalities involved will have received their copies of the report.

SAANICH PLAN

It is understood that the plan under consideration—with its $25,000,000 price tag—will be of greater immediate interest to rapidly-growing Saanich than it will be to Victoria.

The city's sewer system, designed more than 70 years ago to serve the community of 60,000 people, is only now working to capacity although many repairs, renovations and expansions are slated for action in the near future.

There is no suggestion that the report will recommend any radical change in disposal methods currently employed.

Dumping of effluent into the sea will remain the primary method—largely because of the prohibitive costs involved in construction of treatment plants and the necessary pumping stations.

Fine Arts Objective

'Make Things Happen Here'

"A school that will make things happen here" is the aim of Peter Garvie, director of the University of Victoria's fine arts department which begins classes this fall.

By "here," the Cambridge-educated, long-time CBC executive means not just the campus but the whole community. He wants to push over any ivory towers he finds and involve everybody in the arts.

PUBLIC AFFAIRS

Mr. Garvie, 39, arrived in Victoria on the weekend after 18 years with the CBC in the fields of news editing, production and public affairs. For the past year he has been program director of English networks, operating in Toronto.

He has written eight radio plays and published short stories and poems. For nearly seven years in Vancouver he was closely associated with artistic productions, and is best known for a 52-week series on the history of music in the Western world.

Between now and September, when the fall term begins, Mr. Garvie's job is to whip the university's newest department into shape.

Garvie

BIG TASK

His first big task, as he sees it, is to "move around and see what other people are doing." Mr. Garvie plans to visit other campuses and examine their programs of study; after a year he will probably begin lecturing part-time.

Another job is to add new talent to his staff. Art historian Dr. Alan Gowans recently became chairman of the division of art and art history, but the department still needs men to head the theatre and music divisions.

GOOD PEOPLE

"Without good people you don't attract excited and exciting students," he said Tuesday in a downtown hotel room. He, his wife Mary and son Martin, almost two, are living out of suitcases this week but expect to move soon into a house at Ten Mile Point.

Before the end of the month they'll take a fishing holiday in the Chilcotin area of B.C.

"We're going to see if he can catch his first trout before he's two," grinned Mr. Garvie, indicating his son.

Mr. Garvie doesn't deny that the current shake-up in the CBC may have had something to do with his coming to Victoria.

SEVEN DAYS

"I don't think that one could say that one didn't take it into account," he replied in answer to the question.

However, he added that he was negotiating with the university long before the Seven Days row broke in the CBC.

Mr. Garvie is serious and enthusiastic about his new assignment.

ACADEMIC CONTENT

"Dr. Taylor (university president) wants the department to be first class—not just window dressing," he said. "There's going to be plenty of academic content.

"It's no good turning out a bachelor of fine arts who's going to be laughed at when he goes somewhere else to do post-graduate work."

Lorimer Acting Principal

An acting principal has been appointed at Victoria High School. He is J. Duncan Lorimer, vice-principal of the school for seven years.

Mr. Lorimer is to succeed G. A. Victor Thomson, who has been named director of secondary education for the Victoria school system.

Canadian Club Plans Welcome

Members of The Canadian Club of Victoria are being asked to provide entertainment to visitors attending the 12th Commonwealth Parliamentary Association Conference.

Delegates attending the conference will tour the 10 provinces, and arrive in B.C. Sept. 16. They will be in Victoria Sept. 18 from 10:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

Handicapped Help Lagging

Vocational rehabilitation through Goodwill Enterprises is having to pick up momentum throughout North America in order to cope better with the 10 per cent of the country's population that is handicapped.

In the U.S., there are 450,000 new handicapped every year, but vocational rehabilitation agencies are coping with only 250,000 people a year, it was disclosed Tuesday by Samuel R. Rea, executive director of Goodwill in Victoria.

Public Apathy Shuts Luxton Hall Doors

By NANCY BROWN

Public apathy has closed the doors of Luxton Hall after 50 years of continuous use.

All the hall activities in the Happy Valley-Glen Lake area will cease. New bookings will be refused and only previous commitments honored by the Luxton Hall committee.

"It is ridiculous," said committee secretary John Waddell. "That hall is used by 1,100 people each month.

"It serves a population of about 2,000, but only five people—all of them committee members—were interested enough to attend the annual meeting."

The meeting, for the election of new officers, was held Sunday evening.

"It was the second time we had scheduled the meeting," said Mr. Waddell.

NO REASON SEEN

"The first time was in mid-June and only two people turned up—myself and hall committee president Alan McMillan. There were no other meetings in the area on Sunday, and our meeting was after church, so there was no reason for the poor attendance.

"The community seems to have a drastic reluctance to concern itself with the hall. As long as the doors remain open, that is all anyone cares."

BOTH ADVERTISED

Mr. Waddell said both meetings were advertised but did not attract enough people for a quorum, so there was no alternative but to close the doors.

"We didn't set a date for another meeting. If enough interest is shown then we will have another. I don't mind working for the hall but I want some help."

Activities which will cease if the hall remains closed are: Guides and Brownies, Scouts and Cubs, badminton, square dancing, dog shows, poultry club meetings and dances.

New Mental Hospital

Chant Opens Bids Today

By JACK FRY
Legislative Reporter

Tenders for work on the provincial mental hospital on Lee Avenue will be opened at 2 p.m. today in the office of Public Works Minister Chant.

This project will include the pouring of concrete footings and basement walls in the multi-million-dollar mental health facility being built next to Royal Jubilee Hospital.

Some progress was also reported on two other public works projects in Greater Victoria.

Mr. Chant said he will open tenders at 2 p.m. July 22 for work on the sunken gardens at the provincial museum and tenders might be called later this month for some preliminary work on the Glendale school in Saanich for retarded children.

The department is in a slow period now because "quite a few of our staff are on annual holidays," the minister said.

Sidney Picks Brackenbury

Bernard Brackenbury has been named chairman of Sidney recreation commission.

The position was formerly held by village chairman Arthur Freeman, who relinquished the chairmanship at a recent commission meeting, but will remain a member of the commission.

Mr. and Mrs. Cooper To Live in Edmonton

Now making their home in Edmonton, Alta., are Mr. and Mrs. Richard R. Cooper, who were recently married in St. Patrick's Church.

Father A. E. Leonard officiated for Brenda Margaret, daughter of Lt. Cmdr. and Mrs. Carl Hortie and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Reginald C. Cooper, all of Victoria.

An A-line gown fashioned of silk was chosen by the bride. A lace panel extended down the front of the gown and lace apoliques accented the train. Her full length veil was held by a single rose and she wore an heirloom pink cameo, belonging to her grandmother, Mrs. P. J. Doheny. She carried a cascade of white roses, gardenias and stephanotis.

Her cultured pearl earrings were the gift of the groom.

★ ★ ★

Dressed alike in floor-length gowns of blue peau de soie were matron of honor, Mrs. Gerald Hourigan of Hamilton, Ont. and bridesmaids, Miss Dianne Eggersman and Miss Joan Parsons. The bride's youngest sister, Miss Kathryn Hortie was junior bridesmaid. The gowns were styled with toning lace over-jacket. Blue rosebuds and tulle formed their headpieces and they carried blue and white carnations.

★ ★ ★

Mr. David Foster was best man and Mr. Gerald Hourigan and the bride's brother, Mr. Michael Hortie, ushered guests.

White and pink flowers decorated the Wardroom, Canadian Forces Base, Esquimalt, for the reception. Cmdr. Hugh McGregor proposed the bridal toast.

Leaving on honeymoon, the bride changed to a French crepe and wool suit in soft aqua shade, with white accessories and gardenia corsage. The newlyweds motored through the Interior en route to their new home.

Out of town guests were Mr. and Mrs. G. Hourigan, Hamilton, Ont., and Mr. Arthur Pickles, Denman Island.

Biennial Convention

Seminars, Conferences Highlight BPWC Clinic

Ideas and Membership Go Together, was the theme of the clinic which highlighted yesterday afternoon's session of the 20th biennial convention of the Canadian Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs, held in the Crystal Ballroom of the Empress Hotel.

Miss Nazla Dane of Toronto, national president, presided over the clinic which was preceded by a luncheon.

Seated at the head table were Lady Barbara Littlewood, of London, England, president of the International Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs; Miss Dane; Miss Louise Card, Neepawa, Man., first vice-president of CFBPWC; Miss Marjorie Laws, Moncton, N.B., Mrs. Margaret Ashdown, Toronto, and Miss Lucy Milne, Medicine Hat, Alta., all vice-presidents of CFBPWC; and panel members of the clinic, Miss Grace Carter, Toronto; Mrs. Phyllis Hardy, Montreal; Miss Margaret Price, Winnipeg; Mrs. Marlene Smith, trainer-in-chief of Ontario's BPWC officers; Miss Helen Verdin, Edmonton.

Some 600 delegates and observers are representing the federation's 6,300 members at the five-day convention which opened here Sunday.

Miss Grace Carter led off the clinic discussions with a detailed description of the beginning and purpose of the Toronto Club's Arts of Management conference, now in its fifth year.

In tracing the beginning of the conference, Miss Carter pointed out that in 1949 Miss Margaret Hyndman, a lawyer and past international president of the BPWC federation, was invited to observe a group of 45 persons acquiring the practical arts of management in a practical way, from a directing staff and in "syndicates" or group discussions at the Administrative Staff College at Henley-on-Thames, England.

★ ★ ★

Miss Hyndman was impressed by the opportunity offered this group to learn the principles of management and improve their business skills. She felt that if this could be successful in developing business leaders for the United Kingdom, why not in Canada and why not give Canadian women this same opportunity as men.

Knowing there was a need to develop the potential of women, which has since been echoed by Dr. John Deutsch, chairman of Canada's Economic Council, Miss Hyndman approached the Toronto BPWC with her idea. It was approved, organized and subsidized by this club with the first conference taking place in 1962 and Miss Hyndman as chairman.

Miss Carter said that once approval had been gained an advisory council was formed and was composed of prominent business men and women including Dr. Lillian Gilbreth of New York. Dr. Gilbreth, an engineer and world renowned authority on management, gave the first keynote address.

★ ★ ★

The A of M conferences run for eight days and provide management development courses for women in business. During the courses application of the five outstanding arts to the science of management are emphasized. These arts are: the ability to take greater responsibility, to make decisions, to make the best use of experts, to organize, delegate and supervise and the ability to differ objectively.

"I emphasize that these arts can be learned," said Miss Carter. "We have proof in almost 200 alumnae that, women can develop their management skills so that not only they, but their firms can benefit and thus, our general economy."

★ ★ ★

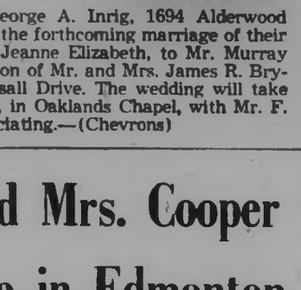

Miss Margaret Price, referred to as the experiment engineer for Manitoba clubs, told the delegates about the "pilot project" conducted recently in Winnipeg. It was a one-day seminar and had as its theme Horizons Unlimited with its subtitle, A Profile for Personal Development.

★ ★ ★

Miss Helen Verdin, spokesman for the Edmonton Club reported that her club has sponsored three educational seminars to which business women of the city were invited. The first one included a week-end workshop on automation and gave the members the opportunity of learning how automation is and will continue to affect their lives.

Mrs. Marlene Smith, representing District B in Ontario, reported on the group's 20-hour weekend workshops on leadership development.

Mrs. Phyllis Hardy of Montreal Club described the club's 1½-day seminars on Occupations Perspective and pointed out that the committee decided to beam their first seminar at "women in business who didn't know their potentiality."

Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: I've been burning about this for weeks and finally decided to write and get it off my chest.

My husband and I had a small dinner party a few days before Mother's Day. We are all couples in our middle 30's. Every man in the crowd makes at least $35,000 a year.

The women started to talk about Mother's Day and whether or not it made any difference if they were remembered by their husbands as well as their children. Two of the women said they would feel very hurt if their husbands forgot them on Mother's Day. One woman said she resented the whole bit — that Mother's Day was a commercial holiday manufactured by merchants and she couldn't care less.

I said it's the thought that counts and any little gifts — even a single rose would be appreciated. Well, on Mother's Day, guess what my husband gave me? A single rose. I don't know if this is his idea of a joke but I was very disappointed. He bought his own mother a pure silk robe that must have cost $100. What do you think of this? — NO LAUGHING MATTER.

Dear No Laughing: Obviously, you were playing to the gallery and you didn't mean what you said.

A single rose means "I love you" but it's apparent that you'd rather have had the cash.

Dear Ann Landers: May I say "amen" to your admonition to parents NOT to deprive their children of the pleasure of personal accomplishments.

So many mothers and fathers insist on doing things over for their children or they demand a degree of perfection that is impossible to attain. As a music teacher I have had a great deal of experience with such parents.

The mother who feels she must sit beside her children when they practice the piano to make certain all mistakes are recognized and corrected destroys something very precious. Small wonder so many kids hate to practice.

Children should be left alone to enjoy their efforts. They should be praised and encouraged, not harped at and criticized. The youngster who is driven and pushed may be an achiever, but the one who gets parental approval is far happier. — BIRD'S EYE VIEW

Dear Bird: Thank you for your letter. It provided me with an opportunity to get this idea before my readers once again and I appreciate it.

Dear Ann Landers: We have been married four years. This is my first marriage and my husband was a widower. His wife died six years before we were married. She is buried about 500 miles from here.

In August we are taking our first real vacation since our honeymoon. My husband wants to drive 500 miles to visit his first wife's grave. I am hurt to think that he'd rather spend his vacation with something out of the past than with me. Am I wrong to refuse to go? — E.C.K.

Dear E.C.K.: When you say, "spend his vacation visiting his wife's grave" you are distorting the facts. Surely your husband did not suggest a vacation at the grave.

Your husband probably wants to return to the city where he and his first wife once lived. He would, of course, visit his wife's grave which is perfectly all right. By all means make the trip with him, and when he goes to the cemetery, do something else for a few hours.

Attractive recent arrivals at St. Joseph's Hospital are Dr. Janet Stewart and Dr. Sam Stewart, a husband and wife intern team. The couple was married in December, 1965, and graduated from the University of Toronto in June. Following their year of internship they would like to practice for a year in Northern B.C. before specializing. Janet thinks of going into psychiatry as it would be compatible with the roles of wife and homemaker. Out of this year's graduating class of 165 medical students at the University of Toronto there were 25 women.—(William A. Boucher)

Couple Married In St. Mark's

Following their double-ring marriage in St. Mark's Anglican Church, Mr. and Mrs. Patrick John Short spent a honeymoon touring Vancouver Island.

Canon Robert Willis officiated for the former, Jacqueline Elizabeth Eva Head, daughter of Mr. Jack Head and the late Mrs. Head and the son of Mr. and Mrs. E. N. Short, all of Victoria.

The bride chose an empire styled gown of beige, bonded lace and carried a bouquet of red roses and stephanotis. Her accessories were bone colored.

Miss M. V. Francottie was maid of honor in an apple green fitted, taffeta dress. She wore white accessories and carried a colonial bouquet of yellow roses and stephanotis. She wore a small silver cross, the gift of the bride.

Mr. J. G. Grainger was best man.

Guests were received at the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Neff, where the reception was held. The central table was centred with a two-tiered wedding cake, flanked by white tapers. Mr. E. N. Short proposed the bridal toast.

Out of town guests were Mrs. Mona Fraser of Seattle, Wash. and Mr. and Mrs. H. Bowman with Ruth, Nanaimo.

Dinner Party

A dinner was held last evening in the Oak Bay Golf Club in honor of Mr. J. Ernest Richardson, president, chief executive officer of the B.C. Telephone. Mr. Richardson arrived from Vancouver yesterday and will return today. Hosts at the affair were Mr. G. F. Auchinleck, Island division manager for the B.C. Telephone and Mrs. Auchinleck. Approximately 80 B.C. Telephone employees and their wives were present.

Canada-Russia Deal Not Affected

U.S. Blocks Plane Route From Moscow to Havana

By RON COLLISTER
Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — President Johnson stepped in to block Russia's attempt to use Montreal as the staging post for regular flights from Moscow to Castro's Cuba.

This, according to reliable sources, was the objective of Johnson's first letter to Prime Minister Pearson in several weeks.

It arrived at the crucial stage of Canada-Soviet negotiations on a Moscow-Montreal air agreement, signed in Ottawa this week

RED FORTRESS

United States policy is aimed at isolating Cuba, the red fortress in the American hemisphere, to force the downfall of Castro.

Canada substantially supports the U.S. view, though it still trades non-strategic goods with Cuba, and agreed to Johnson's request.

At present, the Russians operate a non-stop air service between Moscow and Havana.

FORCED TO LAND

Occasionally, their airliners have been forced to land in Canada for refuelling and in bad weather.

To overcome these obstacles, and for other reasons, the Russians have tried for years to get Canada to agree to their planes landing in Montreal enroute to Havana.

During the recent negotiations, they again pressed hard.

LITTLE ADVANTAGE

The new Moscow-Montreal service will be of little advantage to the Russians travelling to Cuba. They have to fly to Mexico City, the only convenient "door" into Cuba.

In the Commons Tuesday, External Affairs Minister Paul Martin was bombarded with questions about Mr. Johnson's reported letter to Canada.

TWO POINTS

His reply covered two points:

No, the U.S. was not opposed to the Moscow-Montreal air agreement.

It was not normal to confirm or deny whether exchanges of communications between heads of government had taken place. Such communications are privileged.

Yes, there had been an opportunity for the U.S. and other countries to express their views.

AS SIGNED

But on the air agreement, as signed, the U.S. did not oppose.

"In any event, the decision taken was a decision taken by the government of Canada," Mr. Martin added firmly.

"If there was not any objection, wherein did the courage consist?" Tory leader Diefenbaker asked.

"In replying to my right honorable friend," said Mr. Martin, amid laughter from all sides.

Californians Flocking Onto Island

Many more tourists from California seem to be coming there this year than in 1965, says Ron Worley, assistant general manager of the government-owned B.C. Ferries.

A survey is being conducted on traffic flow between the mainland and Vancouver Island, including the new ferry Queen of Prince Rupert which links with the Alaska ferries, he said.

Results of the survey — a licence plate check carried out on each sailing by the university girls who work as tourist counsellors aboard the ferries — are not expected to be known until August.

BIG BUSINESS

"We check whether they come from California, Alberta or Washington and Oregon and then we know where to spend our advertising dollars next year," Mr. Worley said. "We're getting terrific business from California."

The Queen of Prince Rupert, which opened a new service this year between Kelsey Bay on northern Vancouver Island and Prince Rupert on the mainland, "has done more to publicize Vancouver Island and B.C. than any other single item."

There is plenty of room on every sailing of the Queen of Prince Rupert, he added, and nobody has yet been left waiting at either end of the 20-hour overnight run.

Artillery Battery Returns

The Fifth Medium Battery of the 15th Field Artillery Regiment returned to Victoria from Camp Wainwright Sunday after a week of intensive training with its regular army counterparts.

Members of the regiment were among 730 militia men and women who trained alongside regular army troops.

Infantry regiments trained with the Second Battalion, Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry; artillery trained with the Third Battalion, Royal Canadian Horse Artillery and in the armored division the Fort Garry Horse showed the way.

Too Many Special Doctors

WINNIPEG (CP)—The dean of medicine at the University of British Columbia sees danger ahead for Canadian patients.

More than half the doctors practising in Canada are specialists, Dr. John F. McCreary said in a recent speech. Twenty years ago the percentage was 22.

"I find it difficult to see satisfactory medical care provided by a cadre of specialists alone. Who would provide a satisfactory primary contact with the patient and who would take care of the continuing needs of families?"

The fault lies partially in medical schools, Dr. McCreary said.

Throughout his training a doctor has to do only with specialists who teach him and training takes place "in teaching hospitals where carefully selected teacher-scientists, most of whom have not practised for a day in their lives, are his mentors."

"We must give the student some experience in a community practice. We must let him learn the rewards of mobilizing the resources of a community to treat a patient as well as mobilizing the resources of the hospital."

U.S. Seeks UN Approval

Space Laws Urged

GENEVA (Reuters) — The United States Tuesday proposed new laws to regulate space exploration which would avoid "the old political problems of our planet."

Arthur J. Goldberg, U.S. ambassador to the United Nations, said it is not too much to hope the space age would evolve in an environment of peace, law and co-operation.

He was addressing the opening session of the UN's legal subcommittee on the peaceful uses of outer space, meeting here to consider U.S. and Soviet draft treaties governing space exploration.

Goldberg said that although the U.S. and Soviet drafts are different in scope, they should be reconcilable to a large degree if there is good will and common purpose to reach agreement.

Both treaties say planets should be free for exploration and use by all states; no state should be able to appropriate a planet by claiming sovereignty or by use of occupation or other means.

The U.S. draft would permit military establishments on planets for scientific research or other peaceful purposes.

The U.S. draft also orders states to report to the UN secretary - general about their planetary activities and provides for disputes to be referred to the International Court of Justice.

The Soviet draft includes an article on legal liability for damage caused to another state by objects launched into space, and for the return of astronauts who land in the wrong country by mistake.

TV TALK

By ROBIN JEFFREY

Is television becoming concerned with its image as a video babysitter? Or has it decided that meatier entertainment might sell soap flakes just as well as the current pablum does?

At any rate, Hallmark Hall of Fame has announced two more promising-sounding productions for the coming season. Hall of Fame, of course, has always presented interesting, watchable shows. It already has Victoria Regina, the Indomitable Mrs. Disraeli, and Inherit the Wind to its credit from past seasons.

For 1966-67 it plans Noel Coward's Blithe Spirit and has signed Julie Harris and Lynn Fontaine for a production of Anastasia.

Hall of Fame has already announced that it will do Maxwell Anderson's Barefoot in Athens and J. M. Barrie's The Admirable Crichton. The fifth and final Hall of Fame production will be a repeat of one of its best shows of the last few years.

"I used to be a sound engineer on 'Hullabaloo,' but I couldn't stand the noise!"

Coupled with the announcements from ABC about its dramatic Stage '67 series and CBS' promise of more drama along the lines of last May's Death of a Salesman production, the 1966-67 season should be an improvement over the one we've just survived.

Winning Contract

By HOWARD SCHENKEN and RICHARD L. FREY

In the 1966 World Championship match between Italy and North America, both East players came up with a fine shift on this deal, but our declarer found the winning counter-play.

Opening lead: Spade eight

When Coast stars Lew Mathe and Bob Hamman held the N-S cards, Hamman landed in three no trump after East had overcalled in spades. On the lead of the spade eight, Hamman let East win with the jack. Instead of routinely continuing spades, East realized that he lacked sufficient entries to bring in the long cards, so he shifted to a club.

The club shift was the only play likely to give South a chance to err, but Hamman made no mistake. He won the club ace and led a heart to dummy's queen, East winning the ace. Declarer took the club return with the king, cashed the heart king and crossed to the heart jack. When hearts divided 3-3, declarer cashed the long heart and took the spade finesse, landing his contract without trying to set up diamonds.

In the other room, after the American East had been allowed to win the opening spade lead with the ten, he, too, had shifted to a club. Declarer won and played to dummy's queen. East returned a club and, after winning in his hand, South decided he had a problem. If he cashed the heart king and jack—as Hamman had done—things would not be too rosy if hearts did not divide and West held the long card, for declarer would have to try for the diamonds and would be in danger of losing two hearts and two diamonds in addition to the spade he had already lost.

Instead of cashing the heart king, therefore, the Italian declarer led to the heart jack and took a diamond finesse. West returned a club and declarer was stuck in dummy, unable to cash the long heart. When he tried another diamond finesse, West won again and took the setting trick with the club ten.

At the Gallery

Out-of-Town Art Donations On Display

By INA D. UHTHOFF

The current exhibition of drawings and paintings being shown at the Art Gallery of Greater Victoria until July 31, has been selected from the permanent collection, being gifts from friends of the gallery who live in other cities and countries.

The exhibition goes under the title of A Salute to Out-of-Town Donors, and represents only a small part of what has become one of the now widely-known permanent collections of Canada.

The trouble at present is lack of adequate gallery space for bringing out the treasures often enough and it will not be until several additional small galleries have been added, that the permanent collection will be seen even near its entirety.

* * *

It is now a mere 16 years since the Spencer mansion on Moss Street was presented by Miss Sarah Spencer as a permanent art centre and gallery, and a mere 15 years since the first purchase was made.

The fireproof Centennial wing was opened in 1958, followed by the Ker wing in 1959.

* * *

Strong support has been given to the forming of the permanent collection by world renowned artists like Mark Tobey who has donated many choice items, one of them being the beautiful Still Life by Ben Nicholson, contemporary British painter of the first rank. A drawing by Lyonel Feininger, the German American master of the 20th century abstraction, and two of his paintings are much valued items.

The well known collector H. Mortimer Lamb of Vancouver presented Eugene Boudin's Harbour at Aecamp, a gem of 19th century paintings of the French School, and the Honorable Mark Kearley now of Switzerland, added one of Emily Carr's now famous forest series, Sombreness Sunlit.

* * *

The Pollard collection has played an important part in establishing a standard of quality and the gallery owes Mrs. Fred Pollard of San Francisco an enormous debt of gratitude for her continued contributions towards the running of the exhibitions and special features.

Much of the latter work has been donated anonymously which makes it more difficult to give a comprehensive summing up.

The permanent collection is in the care of experts, the storage facilities are of the most up-to-date design for the preservation of the valuable artifacts that form it.

* * *

During July and August, work of Victoria and mainland artists will be shown in the North Gallery of the Centennial Wing.

The Japanese and Chinese Collections will be featured, while European art from the 16th and 18th centuries will be supplemented by loans from local private collections.

The work of Emily Carr, the customary summer display, specially planned for the many visitors to the city whose chief interest is to become familiar with the paintings of this world-famed artist, will be opened on July 12 and will be shown until Sept. 2.

Laing Urges More Effort

QUEBEC (CP) — Arthur Laing, federal minister of northern affairs and natural resources, said Tuesday sufficient efforts are not being made to preserve Canadian animal life for the benefit of future generations.

Speaking at the 30th federal-provincial conference on animal life, Mr. Laing described it as "the greatest natural resource with which Canada has ever been endowed."

King Fisherman

Browns Taking Flies on Cowichan

Early morning and late evening fly fishermen on the Cowichan River in the vicinity of Skutz Falls are hitting into some big brown trout in the three and five-pound class.

In midday times worms fished in the deep holes are picking up the trout.

Nitinat River is producing trout now and Quennell Lake is providing bass fishing. Harris Creek has given up a number of steelhead and Gordon River is just starting.

BIG EXCITEMENT

But the big excitement in the King Fisherman Contest is still the mid-Island coho run where from Lantzville to Campbell River coho are still being taken in fantastic numbers.

Qualicum Beach has been one of the recent hot spots and James Island waters have started giving up coho, a couple of weeks earlier than was expected by some veterans.

Oil Over Photograph

Box Camera First Step For Maritime Scene Painter

By SABRINA SIMCOCK

STELLARTON, N.S. (CP) — Violet McGrath is an artist with a difference.

She uses the traditional oil paints—but instead of canvas, she paints on photographs, adding color to portraits and landscapes.

Although she has been doing portraits for more than 30 years, the Stellarton resident and mother of seven now is devoting more and more time to landscapes of her native Nova Scotia.

SMALL CAMERA

Her paintings of local landmarks — everything from Halifax's Citadel to scenic Peggy's Cove—begin with her small box camera. She has the prints enlarged to the desired size and starts work with her oil paints.

The finishing touch is a line of poetry added to the framed picture, and here Mrs. McGrath enlists the help of her family. They look for an appropriate verse, which, once chosen, is reserved for that particular scene.

Although she paints only in her spare time because of her family, Mrs. McGrath said in an interview she finds more time for it now her youngest child, Susan, is 10.

STARTED WITH POSTERS

Within a few years, Mrs. McGrath said, she hopes to establish a studio for painting and teaching and possibly the sale of arts and crafts. With teaching in mind, Mrs. McGrath recently enrolled in a correspondence course in painting.

Her early training included work at the Nova Scotia College of Art in Halifax. She had been working—"as a rank amateur"—on posters for the Halifax YWCA when an anonymous benefactor offered to finance her training at the college. Mrs. McGrath said she still has no idea who her benefactor was.

Now her landscape paintings are becoming known in Nova Scotia. Mrs. McGrath hopes to establish a reputation in Ontario. Her initial plans include a camping tour of Ontario this summer when she will take photographs to work on during the winter.

Mrs. McGrath is convinced that the comparatively old art of hand-colored photographs will never be completely replaced by color film. She says, however, there are few persons still working as color artists.

Colored portraits are returning to fashion, she says. She does these on commission from several studios, working from color descriptions, locks of hair and sometimes swatches of material.

100 Mile Gets Hospital

Health Minister Eric Martin reckons that by the end of this week he will have opened the 49th new hospital in British Columbia since he became minister in 1952.

On Friday, he will officiate at the opening of the 31-bed 100 Mile District General Hospital, in the Cariboo.

"This is the 49th new hospital I have opened," he said Tuesday. "These hospitals, throughout the length and breadth of almost $52,000,000 — of which B.C., were built at costs of the provincial government has provided grants of approximately $25,500,000."

These figures, Mr. Martin pointed out, do not include money spent on hospital additions, staff residences, nurses training schools or service projects such as new laboratories or laundry buildings.

The provincial government paid $450,000 in grants towards cost of constructing the $900,000 hospital at 100 Mile House.

Earthquake Shield May Be Saving B.C. from Disaster

VANCOUVER (CP) — Scientists are working on a theory that an "invisible shield" may protect British Columbia from trans - Pacific earthquake shocks.

Six months of experiments by Dr. R. D. Russell, professor of geophysics at the University of B.C., indicate that something is dampening the shocks.

"There's something attenuating the shock waves from quakes in the Aleutians and the Pacific Ocean but we don't know what it is," says Dr. Russell.

The shock waves probably are dulled by something in the geological structure of the province, particularly in the centre of B.C. near Williams Lake northeast of Fort St. John.

Dr. Russell says a big nuclear blast set off in a 2,300-foot shaft on the western tip of Alaska's Aleutian Islands last Nov. 29 was recorded in Vancouver at 5 on the Richter scale of intensity.

But it wasn't even recorded in the Quatsino, Gold River and Port Alice areas of Vancouver Island — closer to the best than Vancouver—even though seismographs at nearby Victoria and as far south as Nevada and California easily picked up the shock wave.

Experiments at a satellite station set up at Williams Lake by the UBC team specifically for tests also showed that readings always are much lower than at other points even farther from the source of the jolt.

The U.S. air Force has financed part of Dr. Russell's project because of the interest in detection of underground nuclear blasts through worldwide testing stations.

Half Hanoi Evacuated

PRAGUE (AP) — Half the population of Hanoi, estimated at 844,000 in 1963, has been evacuated, the Czechoslovak news agency Ceteka says.

New air-raid shelters are being built on the sidewalks, old ones have recently been reinforced with concrete, and a flood watch is being held along Hanoi waterways in case "of bombing of dams situated above Hanoi."

Short Quake Shakes Chile

SANTIAGO, Chile (Reuters) — A 15-second earthquake shook Curico, 125 miles south of here, but the interior ministry said no injuries or damages were reported.

Garden Notes

The Clematis

By M. V. CHESNUT

In choosing a flowering vine, perhaps to cover an unsightly house wall or to clothe a pergola, there are certain qualities we look for. An abundance of flowers, for one thing, with a reasonably long blooming period, beauty and delicacy of form but robust enough to stand up under wind and rain, ease of culture but not so much aggressive vigor as to be a nuisance in the small garden, ease of pruning and maintenance—these are the virtues we would like to see combined in the one plant.

This bill of specifications is not quite as impossible as it sounds, and I think one reason for the overwhelming popularity of the Jackman clematis is because it comes very close to filling the bill. No matter how you treat it—whether you cut it down to the ground every year or whether you never touch it at all—it still blooms its head off.

* * *

Some others in the same clematis group and with the same attributes are Gypsy Queen, deep purple with a lovely velvety sheen; Jackmanii rubra with dramatic crimson flowers, sometimes producing the most beautifully formed double blooms; Star of India in a deep port wine shade; M. Koster, cascades of rosy pink, and Comtesse de Bouchard, satiny rose and a real winner.

All the clematis varieties in this particular group produce their flowers on shoots which grow out in spring and early summer. This means you can prune your vine to your heart's content in early spring knowing full well you are not cutting away this year's flowers. This group is also a good choice for the colder sections of the province for, while the vines may winter-kill to the ground, new growth will sprout from the roots in spring and will bloom that same summer.

* * *

Within the clematis family is another group of varieties blooming somewhat earlier in the season—usually in June—and these produce their blossoms on short growths emanating from old shoots, which means you mustn't go hacking away at it in early spring. Some in this group put on two performances a year, pushing out another crop of bloom on short side-shoots produced during the summer.

The most famous in this group, and one I would never hesitate to recommend, is Nellie Moser, born in 1897 and still going strong. Nellie makes sturdy flowers in a delicate pinky white shade with a deep carmine stripe on the petals and maroon anthers and the vine is outstanding for its freedom of flowering, vigor of growth and handsome light green foliage.

* * *

Another grand clematis blooming in mid-season is Lasurstern, deep lavender blue with golden anthers. Clematis henryi and Marie Boisselot are two large and very lovely white varieties, refreshing in contrast to the deep blues and purples and against a dark background. Henryi has maroon anthers and Marie golden ones.

Mrs. Spencer Castle is a very striking pink, of pleasing velvety texture and occasionally producing double flowers. The President is a good grower, producing plenty of bloom in a deep violet shade, and Lady Northcliffe has stiff and firm cone-shaped blooms in a clear deep blue.

As yet, the double-flowered clematis is a bit freaky—sometimes they come double and sometimes they don't, and they may even vary from year to year—but when they take it into their heads to co-operate, they make striking vines indeed. Some of the best are Belle of Woking, silver grey; Duchess of Edinburgh, pure white; Lucie Lemoine, white with golden anthers, and Countess of Lovelace, a lovely clear blue.

LIZ TAYLOR Confides to SHEILAH GRAHAM:

Burtons Talk of Retiring

ROME (NANA)—Elizabeth Taylor will definitely retire from her career before she is 40 years old. The 34-year-old highest-paid actress in the world, paused between scenes of her current film with husband Richard Burton, The Taming of the Shrew, to tell me, "I have never been ambitious, and even with those marvelous reviews for Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf? I am still going to retire fairly soon. I can't pinpoint the actual date but it might be within the next two years. Richard is also planning to retire as an actor. He is such a good writer and he is happiest when he is writing."

* * *

Richard's book, Meet Mrs. Jenkins—meaning Elizabeth—will soon be published. "I hope," said Elizabeth, "we'll both have the sense to leave graciously. I hope we won't be forced out. At the moment, we are enjoying a peak of success, but it's the law of gravity. The only way for us to go is down."

* * *

Elizabeth knows what is valuable. I had been told that Virginia Woolf had caused a spurt of "career-above-everything" in Miss Taylor's planning. But she told me, "My husband and my children will always come first." In private life, she no longer uses those colorful three and four-letter words. I thought it might be because she had to scream so many of them in Virginia Woolf. That had nothing to do with the new purity of Elizabeth's language. "I cut it out because Richard doesn't swear, and he doesn't like to hear it from me. And if I do, I never swear in anger. Only for a giggle."

* * *

There is talk of a play for Mr. and Mrs. Burton. "I'm dying to do a play with Richard," said Elizabeth. "I don't think I'd forgive myself if I didn't have a go. The little bit I did as Helen of Troy in Richard's Dr. Faustus at Oxford—I felt so at home on the stage. I was bitten. All at once something marvellous happened inside of me. I wouldn't mind whether it's a comedy or a drama. But not a musical. Have you heard me sing?" She and Richard sing a renaissance roundelay in Taming of the Shrew. They had been rehearsing it when I arrived. "Of course I might be destroyed by the critics but that is a chance I will take."

* * *

Elizabeth can afford it. Her performance in Virginia Woolf will almost certainly win her the Oscar. It would be her second. "My award for Butterfield 8 had nothing to do with the film. I won it for past performances (Cat On a Hot Tin Roof and Suddenly Last Summer) and my tracheotomy—The surgery on her throat when she was dying and unable to breathe a few years ago in London. Now her good health is as compellingly visible as her beauty.

* * *

"The miracle of being well," said Elizabeth, "had nothing to do with me. You can help yourself, but it has more to do with a state of peace, a state of happiness. Since I've known Richard, since we've been together, I've known no illness, and I'm sure that is deeply psychological. It's so profound a thought, I can't go into it in a couple of minutes. I believe that one's mental state of being is connected with one's physical state. I guess I'm proof of the pudding." Whether she is plump or thin, Elizabeth's face is always worthy of a Helen of Troy. "I have never considered myself beautiful," she said, adding, "one's face is the expression of the health of the body and the mind." Then with a smile, "My husband thinks I'm very dishy and that's enough for me."

* * *

How did Katharina in The Taming of the Shrew compare with the screaming, tortured Martha she portrays in Virginia Woolf? "Oh, they're quite different," said Elizabeth. "Katharina's shrewishness is like a wild little animal wanting to be caught . . . she's madly on the defensive all the time. She's a demoniacal bitch. She's the eternal female. She wants to acquiesce but doesn't know how to. She adores Petruchio, and when he finally tops her, there is total acquiescence, a total acceptance, with a marvellous sense of humor. You know she's never going to be totally tamed. You know at the end that their life will be gay, it will be a ball. They're both terribly sensual, like a pair of mating pussycats—a big purr under the spitting and scratching."

* * *

How did she enjoy acting with her husband? "I think he's the very best actor in the world. He says we do something peculiar with each other. There's such a rapport between us, such an understanding. We don't have to go through the deep grass to find out what we're thinking." Elizabeth's walk-on as Helen in Richard's film of Dr. Faustus has been enlarged. "Eight times," she grinned. But I still don't speak." She is eight different visions in Burton's eye. He showed me the sketch of his eye, and there was Elizabeth somewhere between the iris and the pupil. I won't be surprised if she stays there forever.

* * *

Is Gina Lollobrigida changing her nationality? I raise the question because she has just purchased a beautiful big apartment in Paris. It's on the site of the house where the late French actor-playwright Sacha Guitry lived. The cost to Lollo—nearly $500,000. The low Italian income tax makes this sort of thing possible.

* * *

Claudia Cardinale, winding up something that translates as "a good fairy," was saying in Naples that this is her 50th film, and they have all been under the fairy godfather eye, and contract, of producer Franco Cristali. He discovered Claudia fresh from Tunisia, and an Omar Sharif movie in which she was a beautiful extra, grabbed her signature to a long, long contract, and she has looked neither to the left nor right since, even though she has been loaned to such stars as Rock Hudson and Burt Lancaster. She is now off to Hollywood for another movie.

SYDNEY HARRIS

Designs Paragon

An outfit called Com/Pair Systems in Princeton has offered, for the paltry sum of $6, to match me up with a woman through an RCA-301 digital computer. It has also promised me two extra "compatible counterparts" at no added cost.

This bargain seems too great to pass up. I have avidly sent for the questionnaire to be filled out and fed through the machine, although I could save Com/Pair a lot of time and trouble by telling them exactly what this woman will be like.

* * *

My "one and only," when the computer tracks her down, will be a woman of immense beauty, but no vanity, who spends practically no time in putting herself together.

She will be exquisitely feminine and dainty, but at the same time able to change a tire while I sit in the car and wait, and put up storm windows while I loll in an easy chair reading.

She will be a superb housekeeper, able to run a 20-room house without help; a cordon bleu cook, whipping up a dinner for 10 couples in less time than it takes to tell it; and a magnificent raconteuse, equally adept at diverting an 8-year-old child and an 80-year-old dowager.

* * *

Although a woman of immense inherited wealth, she will be utterly free of the foibles, foolishness and snobbishness that so frequently flaw the possessors of long-term solvency.

She will be a mature woman—but innocent; a virginal woman—but experienced; a sensual woman—but athletic; a sophisticated woman—but enthusiastic; a maternal woman—but erotic; a complex woman—but uncomplicated; a rational woman—but intuitive.

She will be submissive but not cloying, amusing but not fatuous, serious but not solemn, efficient but not officious, discriminating but not captious, intriguing but not devious, and dependent but not demanding.

She will know where to buy a $300 gown for $16, or how to buy a $16 one and make it look like $300; she will be an accomplished linguist, researcher, typist, historian, philologist, and clinical psychologist; at the same time, equally proficient in the skills of plumbing, carpentry, nutrition, decoration, landscaping, and repairing broken bicycles.

* * *

I do humbly recognize that all this may be a trifle too much for one woman—which is why Com/Pair offers those two extra "compatible counterparts" to take up the slack. On second thought, I've asked the company to forget about the questionnaire. Just send me RCA-301 digital computer, and we'll march down the aisle, arm in armature!

Gauge Your Status

HAL BOYLE

There are certain symbols of status that show you are still moving up the ladder of conventional success. Here are a few unmistakable signs:

You can afford to drive a small car because your neighbors are well aware you can afford to buy a larger one.

One of the two or three television sets in your home is a color set.

Some of the officials at the bank where you keep your account recognize you when you enter. If your account is occasionally overdrawn, they don't make a thing of it.

* * *

At quitting time you don't bave to tote home a briefcase suffed with newspapers just to prove how hard you are working.

Instead of talking about office problems, the boss likes to chat with you about his golf scores.

The senior vice-president hates your guts and regards you as a conniving young whipper-snapper.

* * *

All the other ambitious guys your age in the office secretly dislike you, too, although they try to be publicly palsy-walsy.

You have become so important that no one else in the organization any longer can steal your ideas without at least giving you credit for them.

The boss's wife confides to your wife what an old meanie her husband is around the home.

The boss's secretary always smiles when you enter. You no longer address her as "Miss." You call her "Pet" or "Sweetie," and she eats it up.

* * *

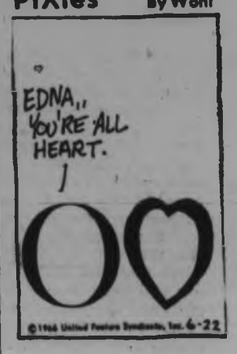

You feel free to have a martini at lunch without gulping three packages of mints afterward to kill your breath.

The new friends you make dress better than the old friends you now see less often, but every once in a while you wonder if you really like them as well or trust them as much.

You get paid once a month instead of once a week like the office peons, and the office mails your cheque directly to your bank.

The office sycophants try to buddy up to you by telling you what everybody else is saying behind your back.

Accused Used Stolen Motors As Trade Bait

A youth who tried to trade-in two stolen outboard motors on a new motorcycle was found guilty in central magistrate's court Tuesday of breaking, entering and theft.

Grant Tangye, 2134 Ridge, was remanded to July 20 for a pre-sentence report.

He will also be sentenced then on a charge of possession of stolen goods. He pleaded guilty to this.

COACH'S MOTOR

Lawrence Loomer, coach of the University of Victoria rowing crew, identified a 15-horsepower motor displayed in court as the one used on the coach's boat.

He said the motor and gas tank were put in a locked shed at Elk Lake at 6.30 a.m. June 27.

He returned about 12 hours later to find a pin hinge removed from the door and the motor and gas tank stolen.

TRADE ASKED

Patrick Zanichelli, salesman for Mullins Marine Services, said Tangye came into the shop about 11 a.m. June 27 asking about the trade.

Tangye returned later that day with two outboards — a 15 and a 35 horsepower — but after a check of the serial numbers the police were called, Mr. Zanichelli said.

Tangye told the court a person he knew only as Doug offered to sell him a 10-horsepower motor for $60.

The arrangement was that it would be left on a clearing at North Saanich, he said. When he went to North Saanich June 27, he found the 15-horsepower motor instead.

Magistrate William Ostler labelled Tangye's explanation "completely and utterly absurd."

Sgt. Arthur Burton (Esquimalt) said the 35-horsepower motor Tangye produced at the marine sales was stolen from a home in Esquimalt June 6.

FROM BOAT

Tangye and another person took the motor off a boat left in the front yard of a house. The motor was valued at $660, he said.

Gary Streeton, 20, 415 Island Highway, was sentenced to one month in jail for failing to remain at the scene of an accident.

He was given an additional seven days for not having a driver's licence.

He pleaded guilty to both charges Monday when court was told Streeton's car hit the rear of a truck on Government Sunday.

BOTH FLEE

Streeton and a companion fled and were located after an extensive police search.

Prosecutor Peter Birkett said Streeton had a record which included obstructing a police officer, theft and attempted theft.

William Wilson, 2567 MacDonald, was fined $40 for careless driving.

Canadian Route Urged for Coal

Attempts to save an important export contract for British Columbia coal were disclosed Monday by Commercial Transport Minister Bonner.

Involved is more than 2,000,000 tons of coal shipped annually from Fernie to Japan. Essence of the problem is whether or not the coal will travel via a B.C. or a U.S. route.

Revenues from shipping alone, Mr. Bonner said, have been estimated at $85,000,000 over the life of the contract, now being negotiated by Crow's Nest Industries Ltd.

SPUR LINE

The company is seeking permission to build a spur line from Michel, B.C., to Roosville, a B.C.-Montana border point. If the spur is approved, the coal will move south to the U.S., thus avoiding what the firm considers the excessively high tariff demanded by the CPR.

Mr. Bonner will seek a meeting of all parties involved in an attempt to have the coal shipped via Canadian lines.

Boys Told Clean Up

Three young boys will have to clean up the mess they made in a house under construction at Mars and Finlayson.

Police said Tuesday the youngsters knocked plaster from walls, broke off pipes and left the building in a general mess.

After talks with the boys' parents, it was agreed the boys would clean it up.

Two boys entered a bus parked at the rear of Burns and Dutton Construction, 1321 Gladstone, over the weekend and did $164 damage.

They let the bus roll back into a pole causing $90 damage, threw a first aid kit around the yard and emptied a fire extinguisher.

Pakistan Tests New Wheat

KARACHI (Reuters) — Pakistan is attacking its food production problem with a new variety of wheat said to produce more than twice as much as present varieties.

It was developed under tests in West Pakistan from a Mexican strain and an acclimatized cross-breed has been dubbed Mexipak wheat.

About 350 tons of seeds sown experimentally on government farms produced up to 2½ tons of wheat an acre against just over one ton an acre from the best native variety.

Ten thousand acres of West Pakistan are due to be sown with Mexipak next winter to provide enough seed for 60,000 acres in 1968-69.

Grain Trade Up

VANCOUVER (CP)— Grain shipments in June from Vancouver were almost double those of the same month in 1965, the merchant's exchange reports.

Shipping in June, totalled 19,800,000 bushels while the 1965 figure was 10,800,000. An exchange spokesman said the 1965 figure was low because of a grain handlers' strike.

In Simplest Terms

Law and the Driver

Many motorists are not aware of the clauses of the B.C. Motor Vehicle Act. For their benefit, the Victoria Chamber of Commerce traffic safety committee has proposed a list of traffic regulations with explanations where needed.

Not included are clauses which refer specifically to professional drivers.

SECTION 150 DUTY WHEN PASSING ON LEFT

No driver of a vehicle shall drive to the left side of the roadway in overtaking and passing another vehicle unless he can do so in safety.

Comment

This section was recently amended so that a driver is now required to make sure the left side of the roadway is free of traffic for a sufficient distance so that he can pull out and pass safely.

Before this section was amended all a driver had to do was to make sure there was no oncoming traffic before he pulled over to the left side of the highway. Since this amendment, the onus is now on a driver to ensure there is no vehicle coming up behind in the act of passing him before he pulls out to pass, or turn off the highway to the left.

It pays to check your rear view mirror before you pull out. Do not take it for granted that because you have your turn indicator on that another car will not attempt to pass just as you decide to pull out. The other driver may not have seen your signal or they may not be working. Remember to check your rear view mirror before pulling out to pass.

Pentagon Secrets 'Sold to Reds'

$5,500 Payoff Claimed for Jobless Colonel

WASHINGTON (UPI) — William Henry Whalen, a retired U.S.e hh nttmtiutenea william Henry Whalen, a colonel who served with the Pentagon's top command, was arrested Tuesday on charges he peddled atomic, missile and bomber secrets to the Russians.

★ ★ ★

Whalen, 51, who faces a possible death penalty if convicted was accused of selling the defence department data to two Soviet embassy officials for $5,500.

★ ★ ★

The Russians who received what the FBI called "information relating to military intelligence matters" were identified as military attache Col. Sergei, Edemski, who returned to Russia in 1960, and Mikhail Shumaev, first secretary of the Soviet embassy in Washington, who went home in 1963.

The FBI said Whalen, unemployed at the time of arrest, served on active duty in the army from Oct. 15, 1940, to Feb. 3, 1961, when he retired due to a physical disability.

★ ★ ★

His last few active years were spent at the Pentagon on the staff of the joint chiefs of staff, the highest U.S. military command.

Whalen was indicted by a grand jury in Newport News, Va., then arrested by the FBI in his home at Alexandria, Va.

★ ★ ★

Within a few hours, he was released on $15,000 bond.

Officials said several people contributed to the bail, but declined to identify them.

Whalen, described by one neighbor as "one of the kindest men in the neighborhood," lived in a modest split level home on a quiet, wooded street.

The neighbors said Whalen and his wife were friendly, but few people knew them well. They have one child, Kathy, 11.

★ ★ ★

The U.S. defence department issued a statement saying that it had learned of what it called a "security problem" a number of months ago.

It declined to discuss details of actions taken to counter security violations, but said:

★ ★ ★

"After prompt and full investigation, the facts in this case were given special attention in our continuing efforts to effect improvements in security, particularly as regards security, trustworthiness of personnel in sensitive position and the adequacy of controls over the handling of classified documents."

Patience Stretched Along 49th

By FRASER KELLY, Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA—Maybe its the heat—or the humidity—but Canada-U.S. relations seem to be getting sticky.

For the past two days the Commons has been subjected to a series of niggling jibes at the United States. Taken alone they look insignificant.

Lumped together, they begin to indicate the patience on both sides of the 49th Parallel is wearing a little thin.

★ ★ ★

First, Viet Nam: The Canadian government has expressed "regret" at American bombing of oil dumps outside Hanoi and Haiphong.

It has refused to issue a statement openly deploring the bombing. But it is obvious the federal government believes the U.S. action has hampered the possibility of a negotiated settlement.

Then came the suggestion that at least one Canadian firm has contracted to sell the Americans bombs that could be used in Viet Nam.

The Canadian government has maintained that no Canadian firms sell bombs to the United States.

★ ★ ★

But early this week, U.S. Secretary of Defence Robert McNamara told a Washington press conference his government was cancelling some Canadian defence contracts, including one to supply bombs.

Industry Minister Charles Drury, who has been pummelled with questions about the press conference, has promised to investigate.

Tuesday, Conservative leader John Diefenbaker hinted the U.S. was cancelling a $63,000,000 contract to supply the U.S. parts for the DC-9 jetliner. (See also Pages 11, 16.)

Mr. Drury promised to investigate that too.

Mr. Diefenbaker also asked if Prime Minister Pearson had received a letter from President Johnson protesting the agreement to provide direct flights between Moscow and Montreal.

Then Tory L. R. Sherman, from Winnipeg, told the Commons the U.S. is infringing on Canadian sovereignty by preventing three Canadian subsidiaries of U.S. firms from milling flour for sale to Cuba.

Trade and Commerce Minister Winters promised to investigate that, too.

With three big complaints, there'll be no end to the yacking.

OTTAWA (CP)—Trade Minister Winters said Tuesday a check with several U.S.-owned flour mills in Canada has failed to substantiate charges they have been forbidden by their U.S. head offices to mill Canadian wheat for sale to Cuba.

He said more checks would be made today with other U.S.-owned companies to see whether they have received such instructions.

In Peterborough, a spokesman for Quaker Oats Co. of Canada said the company is forbidden by its U.S. parent from processing any wheat bound for Cuba, China, North Viet Nam and North Korea.

In Montreal, a spokesman for Robin Hood Flour Mills Ltd. said he has received no such order.

Mr. Winters was replying to L. R. Sherman (PC—Winnipeg South) who said he has learned on good authority that Robin Hood, Quaker and Pillsbury flour mills, all three U.S.-owned, have been forbidden to mill wheat for sale to Cuba. He said no such restriction applies to American firms in Canada milling flour for Russian use.

ISSUED EARLIER

Mr. Sherman said the instructions were not new—they had been issued some time ago and never been rescinded.

The Winnipeg broadcaster said 45,000,000 bushels of the recent big grain deal between Canada and Russia were to be milled into flour. Two-thirds of this was earmarked for Cuba and carried a $6,600,000 annual price tag.

TORY CONCERNED

While there were enough Canadian-owned mills to handle the Cuban order and no loss was involved if the American companies did not take part in the order, Mr. Sherman said he was concerned about the effect on Canadian sovereignty.

Would such actions on behalf of the American-owned mills adhere to principles of good corporate citizenship?

'Open Gates to Outside World'

Johnson Beckons Red China

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Johnson told Communist China's rulers Tuesday night that "co-operation, not hostility, is the way of the future." He urged them to renounce aggressive designs and to open their vast country's gates to the outside world.

In what the White House described as his first major statement on China, the U.S. president appealed for peaceful coexistence with the world's most populous nation as the best hope for a peaceful, prosperous Asia.

At the same time, he warned North Viet Nam—and appealed to Americans to understand—that the United States will stand firm in Viet Nam in a war that "may last a long time."

PEACE FRAUD

Johnson's speech was described in advance by the White House as an official declaration of a "firm but flexible" U.S. policy toward the Peking regime, one firm against aggression but flexible if China ends its expansionist ambitions in Southeast Asia.

As he spoke, Chinese Vice-Premier Chen Yi told a Peking banquet the bombing of Hanoi and Haiphong oil installations was military blackmail designed to force the Vietnamese to accept "the fraud of peace talks." Chen Yi said the Johnson administration had "come down a blind alley" in the war.

The president delivered his speech by telephone to 1,200 members of the American Alumni Council, an association of executives and newspaper editors representing 980 colleges and universities.

Johnson spoke at a time when China is undergoing a political purge of deep but largely unknown dimensions, one evidently centering around its ideological dispute with the Soviet Union's emergent policy of peaceful economic and

Heat Wave Kills 17 In St. Louis

From UPI

A searing heat wave took a heavy toll of lives, triggered power shortages and caused plant layoffs in the U.S. middle west Tuesday. Violent storms battered the lower Great Lakes and deluged Sandusky, O., with nearly 12 inches of rain.

Unseasonably hot, sticky weather made life miserable across most of the eastern two-thirds of America.

The mercury climbed above the 100 mark across a vast belt of the midwest. Air conditioners put a dangerously heavy drain on power supplies.

★ ★ ★

The heat was blamed for 17 deaths in St. Louis and four drownings in the Chicago area.

An estimated 300 to 400 persons were given first aid treatment — mostly as a result of the broiling sun and a 103-degree temperature—at the major league all star baseball game in St. Louis (See Page 9.)

Union Electric Co. in St. Louis was forced to shut off electricity to widespread areas of the city to prevent a dangerous power blackout. The shortage prompted General Motors to shut down operations at its Chevrolet and Fisher body plants there.

★ ★ ★

The Federal Power Commission, alarmed by an almost statewide power blackout in Nebraska Monday, ordered the nation's major electrical utilities to take extra precautions during the current heat wave to prevent such failures.

By mid-afternoon, the mercury had climbed to 100 or above in Illinois, Missouri, Kansas, Nebraska and Oklahoma as well as in the desert southwest.

★ ★ ★

Officials at Sandusky declared a state of emergency when the torrential downpours turned streets into rivers and floodwaters swept into homes, businesses and a hospital.

Hundreds of persons fled from their homes. National Guardsmen were mobilized and amphibious vehicles were brought in to aid in the evacuation.

Peace Balked In Air Strike

WASHINGTON (AP) — Peace talks in the U.S. airline strike broke off Tuesday.

Joseph Ramsey, chief negotiator for the AFL-CIO International Association of Machinists, accused Northwest Airlines of violating an understanding that both sides would maintain the status quo during current negotiations.

Assistant Labor Secretary James Reynolds said he will try to restore relations.

Reynolds described the development as a serious impediment in the effort to end the walkout, which has halted 60 per cent of U.S. air transportation since it began last Friday.

The airlines stopped by the strike are Eastern, Northwest, Trans-World, United and National.

Moscow Hails Indira

MOSCOW (Reuters)—Indian Prime Minister Indira Gandhi received an enthusiastic welcome when she arrived here Tuesday for talks with Russian leaders in which she will urge them to further the cause of peace in Viet Nam.

Her five-day Soviet visit was expected to test the influence of the non-aligned powers in international affairs when she presents the Kremlin with a new Vietnamese peace plan backed by Yugoslavia and the United Arab Republic.

Tiniest Boat Crosses Atlantic

FENIT, Ireland (UPI) — A lone U.S. sailor brought his homemade 12-foot sailboat into this small port on Ireland's southwest coast Tuesday to complete a 65-day crossing of the Atlantic from Florida.

William Verity, 40, of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., made the voyage in his tiny sloop Nonalca to fulfil his goal of crossing the Atlantic in the smallest boat on record.

★ ★ ★

Cleveland newsman Robert Manry crossed the Atlantic last year in a 13½ foot sailboat, the Tinkerbelle.

Verity said he also wanted to show it was possible that man crossed the Atlantic in small boats long before Columbus sailed to America.

He said he believed his voyage proved Europeans, among them the Phoenicians and the early Irish monks, sailed the Atlantic in tiny craft. He maintained it also lent support to an Irish legend that the Irish discovered America before Columbus or the Norwegians.

Verity, a 5-toot, 6½ inch boat builder, said he completed his lonely sail without much incident.

At one point, he said, he ran into some rough weather, broke a halyard and had to climb the mast to repair it.

He said he was in no real danger until he reached the County Kerry coast Monday night in darkness and had difficulty in fixing his position.

When he arrived, he still had about 10 days supply of food left.

★ ★ ★

Verity started his journey from Veracruz, Mexico, more than a year ago but spent several months in Fort Lauderdale before resuming the voyage last May.

The name of his boat, Nonalca, is the Mexican Indian word for stranger, or foreigner.

Two Ships Ablaze In Atlantic

THE HAGUE (Reuters) — The big Norwegian tanker Marietta Nomikos radioed today that they are on fire after a collision in the Atlantic about 300 miles off the Azores, Dutch maritime sources said.

The British ship Reavely radioed it could see one ship ablaze from stern to stern.

Tuesday's scores: Carlings 5, Luckies 4. Next game: Thursday — Colony vs. Red Lions, 6:45 p.m., Heywood Avenue park.

Carlings won another softball game at Heywood Avenue Park Tuesday night, but they brought manager Lou McCorkall to the brink of heart failure.

Carlings finally beat Luckies, 5-4, to move two games ahead of Luckies and Sooke in the Senior "A" Men's Softball League.

But it was close.

Luckies were trailing, 5-2, when they came to bat in the bottom of the seventh inning, and Carlings retired their lead-off batter without difficulty.

But Doug Couch reached first on an error, and Joe Patterson followed him with a sharp infield ground ball. Carlings tried to force Couch at second base, but the throw was wild, and Couch raced to third base.

Carlings forced Patterson on Lyall Conrett's grounder, and that left men on first and third bases with two out.

But catcher Ralph Branting singled home Couch, and managed to take second when the throw went to the plate. Two out, tying run on second base.

Then Brian Weston singled to leftfield to score Cornette, and Branting bombed around third and came on to the plate. But John Yankoski's throw from behind third base beat Branting by a couple of strides, and Carlings' catcher Tom Sloan held the ball for the third out, although Branting collided with him.

It was the second big win for Carlings in two nights. Monday, they stopped Sooke, 2-1.

Bob Holness was the hitting hero for Carlings as he picked up three hits in three times at bat and drove in three runs.

Birdies Didn't Help

MELBOURNE (AP) — Stan Ely thinks golf is for the birds.

Crows took two of his golf balls after he played shots on the fifth hole at Leongatha.

As he was about to drive on the seventh hole he was distracted when a kookaburra laughing jackass bird started to laugh from a nearby tree. Ely duffed the shot. About to play his third shot at the seventh, the kookaburra laughed again. And Ely duffed again.

Finally he got the ball onto the green. Out of the tree came the kookaburra. It picked up the ball and flew off.

Ely said after the game he has had his share of birdies but never two crows and one kookaburra in two holes.

OUTDOORS

with Alec Merriman

Federal fisheries, provincial fish and game branch and pollution control board authorities, and Western Mines' consultants are all carrying out independent, but co-operative, tests to determine the best solution for disposing of mine tailings from mining operations near Buttle Lake in Strathcona Park.

No decision has yet been reached as to whether the tailings will be disposed in a land impoundment or be pumped into the lake after treatment to remove toxic chemicals.

Under a recent provincial cabinet order-in-council Western Mines will be required to get a permit from the provincial pollution control board before it may dispose of its mine tailings.

Campbell River villagers are concerned because that river system provides their supply of drinking water.

Mainly concerned will be the provincial recreation department, whose various branches will have to protect both the trout in Buttle Lake and aesthetic values of the Strathcona Park recreationland.

An impoundment within the park could be ugly and if heavy rains washed out the impoundment there could be hidden wholesale pollution dumping in the lake could lead to cloudiness and slow pollution. It is a difficult decision.

Federal fisheries is concerned about silting on the Campbell River spawning beds below Elk Falls close to the John Hart power plant, but that problem may not be so acute because before silt would reach that area it would have to flow through Buttle Lake, Upper Campbell Lake, Lower Campbell Lake and John Hart Reservoir which allows considerable time for settling.

Nevertheless federal fisheries has carried out bioassay tests on simulated effluents and is now studying company flow sheets to study the possible effects of toxic chemicals.

* * *

Experience gained at Riondel in the Kootenays, where apparently dumping into the lake has been comparatively successful, and at Benson Lake on northern Vancouver where it has proven far from successful will be used in forming a decision on the disposal of Western Mines' tailings.

At Benson Lake it was thought the silt would settle and that no effluent would persist in areas below Benson Lake.

But it hasn't worked out that way. There has been silting in the Benson River where spring (chinook) salmon spawn and silt has gone on into Alice Lake at times. It has been found the silt settles in the summer but not during fall and winter thermocline conditions.

But Buttle Lake is different to either Benson or Kootenay Lake, bigger than the first and much smaller than Kootenay.

Western Mines has hired consultants to conduct laboratory settling tests on a simulated effluent.

* * *

The B.C. pollution control board has approached Western Mines to inform the company it will need to apply for a permit and when the company applies investigations will get into full gear. New member of the board, John Peck of the mines departments, has been assigned to look into pollution problems at both Western Mines and the Mount Washington mine where there has been considerable problems with the impounding area spilling into Wolf Lake and Wolf Creek.

Several meetings have been held between provincial fish and game branch pollution experts, federal fisheries officials and Western Mines officials.

Motormen, Monarchs Triumph

Tudor Monarchs and Suburban Motors won their games as action opened in Esquimalt Summer Hockey League Tuesday at Esquimalt Sports Centre.

The Monarchs beat Ingraham Raiders, 6-0, while the Motormen outlasted Red Lion Inn, 6-4.

Wally Evanshoe paced the Monarchs with two goals with Don Griffis collecting the shutout. Gordie Strongman was Motormen's top sniper with three goals.

Cooper Cops Car Crown

Dave Cooper covered the uphill course at Bamberton in 47.77 seconds Sunday to lead the field at a Victoria Motor Sports Club speed run.

Cooper's time gave him first place in the "B" class. Pat Davidson took the "C" division. John Grocott won the "D" category. John Storr took the "D" modified. Rusty Hammond the "D" improved. Dave Hatton the "F", Ed Polinsky the "F" modified. Gordy Munro the "H", and Ron Wellwood the "I".

Lions' Homebrew Contingent Most Impressive in History

COURTENAY—Because of the presence of five newcomers, two of them proven veterans who have shown in training camp that there can be no doubt about their starting status, B.C. Lions have the best collection of Canadian players in their 13-year history.

"Yes, I would have to agree with that," coach Dave Skrein answered when asked of this was a reasonable presumption. "I would like to see more Canadian players here but I'd have to say what we have is good."

There are only 22 Canadian players here and with 18 to escape the final cut, probably no more than one roster spot is in doubt.

The five newcomers who have been doing quite a bit to help the impression that the Lions could make it all the way back this season are Bill Mitchell, Bill Crawford, Ray Lychak, Mike Webster and Rudy Reschke.

SHREWD DEALS

Mitchell, the place-kicking centre, and Crawford, a fine running guard, were obtained in some shrewd bartering. Both have been of all-star calibre and both look as capable as ever.

Lychak, Webster and Reschke add considerably to bench strength, and the former two may not be too far away from starting calibre.

A 22-year-old, 240-pound guard who was born in Prince Albert, Lychak played his college football at San Jose State College, the same school which produced Mack Burton for the Lions.

FINE RECORD

He had quite a record at San Jose. A three-year letterman, he was selected as the Spartan's most-valuable player last year and rated by his coach as the most consistent blocking lineman on the club. He was also a college heavyweight wrestling champion, and but for the presence of Crawford might have put a headlock on a starting job.

"We could start him at guard and not lose too much," offence-coach Frank Johnston says of Lychak, who appears to be the No. 1 back-up lineman on offence, either at guard or tackle.

Webster, 21-year-old, 235-pound Victoria-born tackle who played at Notre Dame, has looked capable in the workouts and gives the Lions a back-up man on defence for tackles Mike Cacic and Dick Fouts.

GERMANY-BORN

Reschke, a 24-year-old, 235-pounder who was born in Germany, is a linebacker with possibilities. Although he played some football at Utah, he lacks experience. But he is a smashing tackler with a fierce determination which is hard to deny. This quintet is added to a returning group which included Cacic, flanker Sonny Homer, ends Pat Claridge and Jim Carphin, defensive-backs Norm Fieldgate and Neal Beaumont, halfback Bill Lasseter, defensive-end Greg Findlay, versatile-lineman Roy Shatzko and the three imports who can be counted as Canadians—Fouts, middle-guard Tom Brown and offence-guard Tom Hinton.

Flanker Bob Apps, back for a second training camp, veteran-back Roy Cameron and two rookies, defensive-end Jim Hogan from University of Western Ontario, and defensive-back Bayne Norrie from Queen's University, are other Canadians here.

SEVEN ALL-STARS

It is, as Skrien says, a group somewhat short of quantity but it contains at least seven Western Football Conference all-stars of recent seasons—Hinton, Claridge, Fouts, Cacic, Brown and Beaumont making it in 1964 and Fieldgate in 1963, as well as in 1959, Fouts, of course, was the lineman of the year in 1965.

All figure to be starters along with Mitchell, Crawford, Homer and Findlay.

It adds up, and nicely, to the 11 starting berths which have to be filled by players with a "Canadian" rating and of past performance and current indication, it is doubtful if it can be equalled by any club in Canada.

AT OLD POST

Homer, back at his old position after a conclusive 1965 test as a defensive-back, has been looking quite a bit like the flanker he was in 1964; Claridge is back at split-end, where he is more useful than at tight-end, and Fouts, a defensive-end last season, and Fieldgate, outstanding as a corner-linebacker, have been moved to new positions in a new defensive-alignment along with Findlay, now about ready to be a standout regular.

Brown, Hinton, Cacic and Beaumont look as good as ever and Mitchell and Crawford look better than what the Lions had before at their positions. And in Lychak, Webser and Shatzko, a standout rookie last year who is solid protection at two or three positions, the Lions have back-up Canadian strength which is no more han a step behind.

It all has to work out the way it looks but at least the Lions seem to have it as regards Canadians on paper, and that's where every new season has to start.

World Cup Victories Posted By Brazil, Germany, Russia

LONDON (CP) — Defending champion Brazil, Russia and West Germany won their opening matches in the World Soccer Cup tournament played before more than 100,000 fans in three English cities Tuesday night.

The three countries waltzed through their matches — and once again West Germany looked the team to watch.

Brazil defeated Bulgaria 2-0 in Liverpool; West Germany slaughtered Switzerland 5-0 in Sheffield, and the Russians defeated North Korea 3-0 in Middlesbrough.

The three-week-long championships opened Monday when Uruguay played a scoreless tie with England.

FOUR GROUPS

The 16 teams in the championship are divided into four groups. The top two in each group will advance to the quarter-finals for the most prized possession in world professional soccer—the Jules Rimet Trophy.

In Brazil's well-deserved win over a plucky Bulgarian team, both goals came from free kicks.

Appropriately, King Pele and Little Bird Garrincha, the stars who have helped Brazil dominate world soccer for the last eight years, scored the goals—both from free kicks for fouls on Pele himself.

TOOK LEAD

West Germany, the last European country to win the World Cup in 1954, gave a display of professional, power-packed soccer as it soared to a 3-0 lead at halftime.

Beckenbauer and Haller, the midfield linkmen in the Germans' 4-2-4 system, each scored two goals. Left winger Siegfried Held got the other goal.

Eduard Malofeev scored two goals to lead Russia to its decisive win over North Korea. Anatoliliy Banishevskiy, 18-year-old star centre forward, scored the other Soviet goal.

The Russians showed formidable form—the sort of speed, vigor and hardshooting that could make them a real threat for the cup.

Today's schedule (all starting times 2:30 p.m. EDT):

At Wembley, France vs. Mexico.

At Birmingham, Spain vs. Argentina.

At Manchester, Hungary vs. Portugal.

At Sunderland, Chile vs. Italy.

With the London Group One teams — England, Uruguay, France and Mexico—having a day off, the World Cup spotlight switched to the three provincial areas.

GAME WAS OPEN

In sharp contrast to the dour defensive play in the opening match between England and Uruguay which threatened to strangle the World Cup as a spectacle, Tuesday night's games produced open, fast soccer.

Brazil has been hit by injuries recently, but its win over Bulgaria should go a long way to giving the world champions the uplift and confidence necessary to sweep through the other group three teams — Bulgaria, Hungary and Portugal.

The Bulgarians qualified for the finals only after a playoff against Belgium and were something of an unknown quantity. They fought hard but could not match the world-class magic of Pele, Garrincha and company.

PELE STARS

Pele, the world's great soccer player who first shot to fame as a 17-year-old in the 1958 World Cup series, put on a tremendous show. Though he was relentlessly shadowed by Doboromor Zhechev, Pele was never tamed.

In the 16th minute, Pele smashed the ball past Bulgarian goalkeeper Naidenov to score the first goal. Yakimov brought down Pele just outside the penalty area as Pele had a clear view of goal. Pele then took the free kick and drove a tremendous drive to the goalkeeper's right. Naidenov got a foot to it and it shot into the roof of the net.

MADE ACCUSATION

After the game, Pele accused Bulgaria of overdoing the rough play.

"I have received more blows than ever before. The Bulgarians are good and I can't see why they have to use such rough play."

In the meantime, London bookies cut the odds on Brazil to win the tournament to 7 to 4 from 2 to 1. One firm made West Germany joint second favorites with England at 6 to 1.

At Sheffield, the Germans were complete masters.

The first three goals came after German players had taken the ball past Swiss defenders on their own.

Held beat three men before scoring the first goal in the 16th minute. Haller, dribbled past two defenders to get the second in the 21st minute. Beckenbauer also beat his man to make it 3-0 after 40 minutes.

The Germans eased up in the second half. But Beckenbauer scored another fine goal in the 52nd minute and Haller hit home a penalty in the 77th minute after Uwe Seeler, the German captain, was fouled.

DENFORDS WIN

Denford Electric beat Morrisons, 5-2, in a Junior Men's Softball League game Tuesday at Central Park.

Reed's Timely Explosion Gives Saskatchewan Win

MONTREAL (CP) — Fullback George Reed of Saskatchewan Roughriders spun over for a touchdown from the one-yard line with less than three minutes to go in the game to give his club a 25-17 win over Montreal Alouettes in a Canadian Football League exhibition game Tuesday night.

The game was played in 85-degree weather before an estimated 18,000 fans and marked the first contest for both clubs in pre-season play.

The Riders exploded for a touchdown on a 73-yard pass-and-run play from quarterback Roo Lancaster to halfback Paul Dunlay with 32 seconds elapsed in the game.

Jack Abendschein picked up the extra point on that touchdown, kicked a field goal at 7:15 of the quarter and added another extra point after Hugh Campbell scored on a 40-yard run at 13:07.

The Als came back in the second quarter to pick up three points on a 16-yard field goal by Peter Kempf at 4:25 and a one-yard plunge by fullback J. W. Lockett. Kempf picked up the extra point on Lockett's touchdown and Saskatchewan led 17-10 at the half.

After a scoreless third quarter, Kempf picked up six points on a 10-yard pass from quarterback Bernie Faloney at 3:05 of the final frame. He kicked the extra point to tie the game 17-17.

Reed's six-pointer at 12:43 ended the scoring.

Lancaster completed three in the first 15 minutes of play before being replaced by rookie Tom Kennedy, an import from Los Angeles State, for the balance of the game.

Kennedy attempted 19 passes, completed six and had two intercepted for 143 yards.

Campbell was the western clubs top receiver, picking up one touchdown and 121 yards on four catches.

For Montreal Faloney threw 14 times, completing only four passes for 27 yards, while George Bork had five completions for 60 yards in the same number of attempts. Faloney and Bork alternated throughout the contest.

Tuesday's score: New Westminster 9 at Vancouver 17.
Next game: Tonight—Coquitlam at VICTORIA.

Those who get helped are also expected to help themselves, the proverb says.

And Victoria Shamrocks have a great opportunity to help themselves when they meet Coquitlam Adanacs, league-leaders in the Inter-City Lacrosse League, tonight at Memorial Arena.

Shamrocks got a large parcel of help Tuesday when Vancouver thumped New Westminster Salmonbellies, 17-8.

Salmonbellies are in the third place — the last playoff spot — in the league, 11 points ahead of the Shamrocks.

Salmonbellies had regular goalie Les Norman back for Tuesday's game, but it didn't help. Norman was supposed to be on a two-week holiday, and substitute Ken Ridd got the blame for Victoria's 16-11 victory over New Westminster last Thursday.

But Norman got little protection Tuesday as Vancouver scored three times while it was playing shorthanded against a disorganized New Westminster power-play.

For New Westminster, the playoff clinching "magic number" is still six — any combination of New Westminster wins and Shamrock losses totalling six puts the Bellies in the playoffs.

But Shamrocks have a chance. Coquitlam will be without Fred Usselman who is sitting out the second game of a two-game suspension for a stick-swinging battle with Vancouver's Bill Chisolm. Adanacs, however, have signed Jack Barclay.

Shamrocks beat the Adanacs, 6-5, the first time the clubs played at Memorial Arena this season.

Tom Collett and Tom Black will be missing from the Shamrock line up tonight. Illness has sidelined Collett for the season, and Black is working.

Ted Liebich and Lon Restell are doubtful starters, but Bill Munroe will be back, and Ranjit Dillon's injured toe survived last week's two games.

If Shamrocks should win their next four games and New Westminster drop its next three, the teams would be three points apart when they play their three-game series at the end of the month.

Tykes in Spotlight For Minor Boxla

Those Tykes did it again at minor lacrosse night at Memorial Arena Tuesday.

The Tykes are the tiniest of the minor lacrosse players. They're all under eight. And when a Tyke goalkeeper gets his pads on, he has the rotundity and broad-as-he-is-longness of a Giles cartoon figure.

But the Tykes staged the closest games Tuesday. In the opener, Victoria "A" beat Saanich "B", 4-1, on two goals by Geordie Robertson.

Then Saanich Tyke "A" beat Saanich Novice "B", 6-3, with Jimmy Boyd getting five goals.

Victoria Novices edged Saanich Novices, 5-2, Saanich Peewees beat Victoria Peewees, 14-2, and Home Service Midgets defeated McDonald's Bakery Bantams, 11-2.

The door prize for the event was unclaimed and ticket-holder 2126 should get in touch with Doug Fletcher.

When It's Hot Hit Beach At Shawnigan

By MARIE CADORETTE

SHAWNIGAN LAKE — The day was hot and sultry.

My head ached. Perspiration poured down my back. My hands were as clammy as a fish, freshly-caught. My whole being cried for relief from the stuffy atmosphere.

I stopped at Shawnigan beach.

★ ★ ★

Scores of children played on the hot pebbles.

Young mothers in colorful two-pieces relaxed in the burning sun while their young babies slept in near-by shade.

Kids splashed in the cool water.

On the surrounding logs and on the wharf young boys and girls teased and shoved each other into the water.

★ ★ ★

Talented boys shouted, "Hey mom! Watch this!" and belly-flopped into the water.

Mischievious boys teased sisters and friends.

Buckets of water thrown on dry backs produced piercing screams from the unexpecting victims followed by wild games of fox-chase-goose.

★ ★ ★

Excited children tore through the sand, over sleeping sun bathers, and into the water.

Down the beach several couples played badminton.

Dogs ran about tripping unsuspected players.

★ ★ ★

Out on the lake boats raced by with skiers close behind. Salemn skiers artfully weaved on either side of the boats. Several novices tried unsuccessfully to get up on their skiis.

Slowly I turned from the tantalizing scene, climbed into my suffocating car and drove away.

Child Recovers After Accident

LADYSMITH—Six-year-old Donald Crawford is in good condition at Chemainus General Hospital with injuries suffered when he collided with a car on old Chemainus Highway, while riding his tricycle Sunday

Police said the driver of the car was Mrs. Marjorie Anderson of Ladysmith.

The accident occurred near the Saltair home of Mrs. Constance Crawford.

Police said some children were playing along the road and the boy suddenly swerved his tricycle into the path of the car.

No charges will be laid, police said.

Proposed Apartment Block Awaits Zone, Easy Money

DUNCAN — City council is considering a rezoning application for a three-storey concrete apartment block with indoor-outdoor swimming pool.

George Schmidt, Sands Construction, has applied for the rezoning that would allow construction of the block at 363 Beech Avenue.

He distributed blueprints for the 34-unit building to council members, and told them the building will be completed within two years, if the tight money situation eases.

He said there is ample parking space.

Jack Hindmarch, representing Duncan Kiwanis Village Society, objected to high water and sewage costs for the old people's housing.

He has been trying to obtain a subsidy from the city for Kiwanis Village.

Mr. Hindmarch said "Duncan has higher rates than Nanaimo, Victoria and Penticton.

"There are laundries in town which pay only $17 while the village pays $27 per month for water.

"Old people are suffering enough," he added.

Mr. Hindmarch said the old people are living on a fixed income of $2,360 a year and the Duncan Kiwanis Club contributes $500 annually towards the operation of the village.

NO OFFICIALS

Because of a misunderstanding and a change in personnel, there had been no official welcome for the recent visit of vintage cars to Duncan.

Mayor Jack Dobson referred to the matter as a fiasco and accepted full responsibility for the mistake.

LIST NEEDED

Ald. Hamish Mutter said "Council members should be given a list of official functions."

In reference to the planned Timber Carnival, Ald. Tom Kilpatrick suggested a public holiday Aug. 13 and council will study the proposal.

COST RISES

Council learned vandalism in Pioneer Park has increased the cost of its upkeep.

Broken liquor bottles on Coronation Avenue and the Trans-Canada Highway caused concern to council members.

FOOT PATROL

Ald. Bob Mason said "We should go back to the old-fashioned foot patrol."

Ald. Jim Saunders said "The whole trouble is in our fining system.

"Fines are not kept to the cost of living."

Humble Canada Can Trade On Inferiority

NANAIMO—Canada's inferiority complex can be an asset in dealing with under-developed countries in the Commonwealth, Esquimalt MLA Herbert Bruch said here Tuesday.

Mr. Bruch was listing three reasons why Canada is looked up to as a member of the Commonwealth. He was speaking to Kiwanis.

He reminded his audience that in many countries of the world an inferiority complex is held in high regard.

Mr. Bruch said the second reason Canada is admired is because it is one of the older members of the Commonwealth.

NOT DYING

The Commonwealth is not on the way out, according to Mr. Bruch but still serves a useful purpose.

"We have a common language, a common parliamentary system, and a common way of solving our problems.

"It still has a tremendous part to play," he added.

SLIDES SHOWN

Mr. Bruch illustrated his talk with slides taken two years ago when he attended the Commonwealth Parliamentary Conference in Kuala Lumpur, Malaysia, as a Canadian representative.

This year's conference will be held in September in Canada.

Crash Hurts 16-Year-Old

LAKE COWICHAN — Cecil Livingstone,, 16, Lake Cowichan is in good condition at King's Daughters Hospital at Duncan after he was injured in a collision with a car on North Shore Road near the village of Lake Cowichan Monday.

The teen-ager was riding a bicycle.

Driver of the car was identified by police as J. Brown of Lake Cowichan.

Little Girl Satisfactory

Eight-year-old Catriona Cupples is in satisfactory condition in Royal Jubilee Hospital with head injuries received when a log rolled on her on Salt Spring Island Saturday.

She is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. J. F. B. Cupples, 2833 Dufferin.

Flow of Traffic Posing Problem

PORT ALBERNI—With traffic surveys showing more than 11,000 cars daily use the portion of Third Avenue between Dunbar and Redford, which is to be reconstructed in conjunction with the Department of Highways, civic officials are faced with the double problem of re-routing the tremendous traffic flow.

City works superintendent Len Crowshaw met with W. H. Bos, engineer of the department of highways, and works committee Chairman Ald. Garnet Reynolds to cover some of the problem points.

Spring of 1967 is set for the major rebuilding job, which will see new sanitary sewers, storm drains, curbing and sidewalks on both sides of the busy street installed-at the same time.

Provision is also to be made for future traffic control signal circuits underground, and underground power ducts for future service in consultation with B.C. Hydro and B.C. Telephone.

Ornamental street lighting, of a type and design to be mutually agreed on by the highways department and the city, as well as trees and possibly planters, are being discussed with the parks and recreation commission.

DOWNTOWN PLAN

It is hoped to create a design which will complement the city's plans for downtown development and the continuing program of street widening and completion of sidewalks on Redford between 10th and 17th Avenues.

Mr. Crowshaw's report revealed a thorough traffic study will be undertaken to determine signals, channel traffic, and co-ordination with the department of highways so streets and signing can be improved.

PUBLIC RELATIONS

A public relations program is also being established so that all business people in the area which will be affected while the job is underway, are fully aware of the project, Mr. Crowshaw announced.

In answer to a question by Ald. Dalton, as to whether the beautification program of trees and planters would decrease the width of the busy thoroughfare, Mr. Crowshaw stated six lanes are required, four traffic lanes and two turning lanes.

TREES, PLANTINGS

"The trees and plantings could be in recesses in the sidewalk as they are now on Gertrude Street," he explained.

The design for this will be laid down by the department of highways, since this particular part of Third Avenue is part of the provincial highways system.

It is also planned to install a large-size feeder watermain to eventually link Ravenhill Street, Neil Street, Melrose along Third Avenue to boost fire protection in the business area and to link up with Alberni on Johnston Street.

Inspector Receives Support

PORT ALBERNI — Council members heard a letter from the Alberni Valley Contractors Association proving it pays to be firm and fair.

The letter praised the work of Building Inspector Bill Seward and said in part "he has put some teeth into the building regulations in this city which we agree were badly needed."

The plumbing and heating contractors who were in consultation regarding bylaw changes were particularly impressed by "the prompt and militant process of inspections."

The building inspector still has a lot of work cut out for him, the contractors agreed.

Divers Second

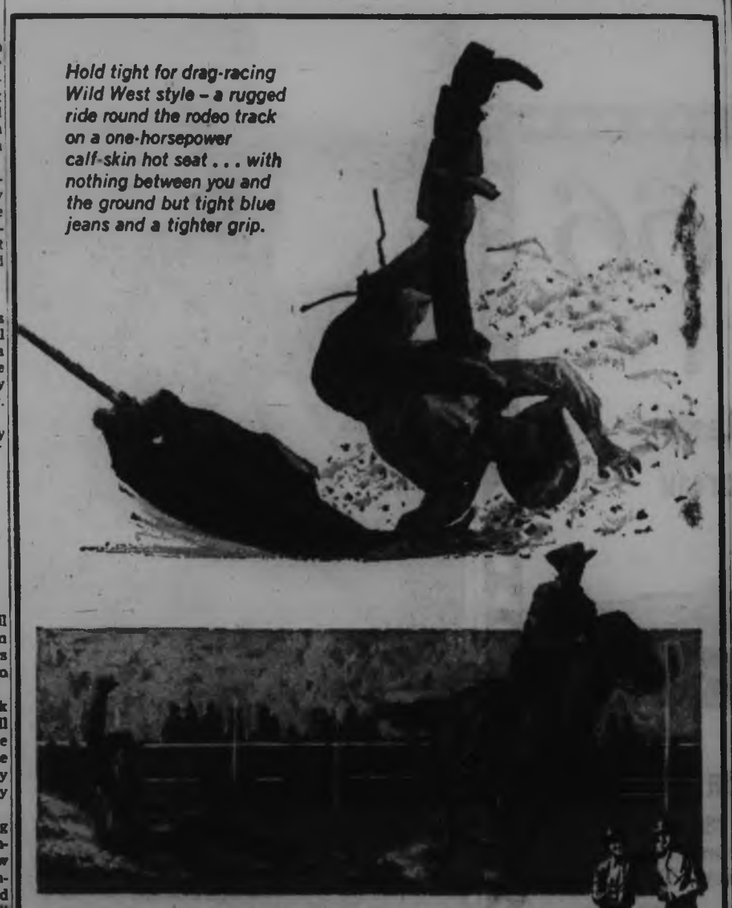

CAMPBELL RIVER — Victoria Skin Diving Club placed second in the spear fishing derby held here Sunday.

The team of Allan Hook, Bob Green and Bob Smith finished up with two pounds of fish less than the Seattle club placing first.

Mr. Hook placed first on the aggregate fish catch list bringing in 60 pounds.

The derby was sponsored by Discovery Inn.

Port Alberni Warns Businessmen Renovations Will Be Compulsory

By MARY TAYLOR

PORT ALBERNI—The big clean-up is under way, and city officials are getting tough with property owners.

The patience of the city has run out.

Stern letters have been sent to every property owner and tenant in the main business district of Third Avenue, warning that drastic action will be taken if general cleaning and renovations are not done voluntarily.

The letter outlines some of the findings of Building Inspector Bill Seward and Fire Chief Maurice Smith, who made a special tour of the downtown area recently in company with Mayor Les Hammer and some members of the city council.

At council meeting Monday night, Mayor Les Hammer said "We were shocked at the sights back of some business areas. They are a fire, health and sanitation hazard. Council is very concerned about this."

He suggested the upgrading of the business section, and a clean-up of lanes and backs of premises, possibly with arcades from Third Avenue to the lane where openings exist, to accommodate small business, coffee shops and similar business ventures.

The letter from the building inspector and the fire marshall states "City council is becoming increasingly concerned with the dilapidated appearance of the downtown shopping area and the fact there are now several vacant stores on the main streets. These factors may be interdependent."

While is should not be construed that all, or any, of the faults are to be found in some buildings, the two officials outlined several troubles to be found in only too many of the buildings in the 100 and 200 block on Third Avenue South.

Foundations Rotting

Some buildings they claim are old and have had little or no maintenance since first erected. Foundations are either non-existent or badly rotted.

Roofs, siding and facade walls are in an advanced state of deterioration and some appear to be in imminent danger of collapse.

"Extreme fire danger" is created through improper electrical installations, faulty chimneys and illegal heating systems, the letter stated.

Improper and deteriorated plumbing fixtures, lack of fire escapes from residential quarters above stores and businesses, lack of adequate garbage containers, and "a general state of uncleanliness and untidiness" are dangers to health and safety, the letter claims.

Old outbuildings and lean-to additions that apparently serve no useful purpose should be torn down and the space utilized for badly-needed off-street parking.

An outdoor privy still in active use, got an instant closure.

The building and fire chiefs also commented on the excessive rate paid by merchants in some cases for fire insurance.

"In one case, more than $800 a year was being paid in premiums. On the new larger building this firm has erected, the rate is less than $150.00," Mr. Seward said, in an interview.

The letter warned some buildings are already in a state which warrants immediate condemnation. Others are nearing this point.

Action Threatened

Steady pressure by the building inspector since his appointment early this year, in cooperation with the fire chief, has resulted in a steady improvement in the city's appearance and a corresponding decline of health and fire hazards in the city's residential area.

Downtown, the majority of businessmen have complied with an order to erect tidy boardings to cover the openings which existed between some of the older buildings.

But in one or two cases, the narrow passageways still exist, a gloomy cavern for the collection of windblown papers, cigarette packages, and persons concerned in what the RCMP terms "nefarious acts."

How effective the warning will be depends on how seriously it is taken by the downtown businessmen.

"We have told them what the situation is," Mr. Seward said. "They have the chance to go ahead and upgrade their premises on their own, where it is needed. But if they don't take some action, the city certainly will."

The building inspector again made his point that it is not the desire of his office or of the fire chief to force demolition of any home or business.

"We need every home, every piece of business property, desperately. But we don't need them more than we need the health and safety of our citizens.

"We are perfectly willing to help people make improvements over a period of time, laying out a plan to do the most needed jobs first, and follow with the rest over a period of months.

"But if they don't respond to this warning, drastic action will certainly have to be taken," Mr. Seward said.

In Campbell River, What's Junk?

CAMPBELL RIVER—Council has decided to enforce a bylaw which demands residents and especially businessmen keep their lots in good order.

A militant clean-up stand was taken Tuesday night, with dissent from one councillor who is a garage owner.

Coun. Kenneth Forde, who was elected last month, said cars on his service station lot are merchandise, not refuse.

* * *

He took this stand at a previous council meeting, and councillors agreed to study the bylaw to decide how to proceed.

After their study they decided, as Coun. Isobel Sandberg said Monday, "the bylaw must be enforced."

According to the bylaw, however, council can order the removal of junk, but not of merchandise.

* * *

"You can ask the auto wrecker to put his old cars in orderly rows, but you cannot remove the cars," said Coun. Sandberg.

Coun. Ernie Lawson said "this is not a particular reference to you, Coun. Forde, but out of 70 persons contacted, 50 did a nice job of tidying up."

Coun. Forde asked for a definition of "tidy."

Reeve Jack Lee said he would want to check with the city solicitor on this point, before giving an opinion.

* * *

Coun. Wallace Baikie said "you can buy a car that will run for $25, anything less than that is junk."

Reeve Lee said "we're all in this together, to make Campbell River district municipality a cleaner place."

He said it is the responsibility of every citizen to report anything unsightly.

* * *

Council was told the municipality can make residents cut the grass on their lots.

Council approved, with dissent by Forde, a motion upholding the bylaw.

Special Camp

No Experiments On Children Parents Told

NANAIMO — Dr. Anne McCreary-Juhasz, associate professor at the faculty of education at UBC, has agreed to be director of research at the Vancouver Island camp for special children to be held at Shawnigan Lake, Aug. 17-31.

Dr. Sven Jensen, executive director for the camp, said Tuesday he wanted to assure parents "this does not mean your children will be used as guinea pigs to study experimental or questionable procedures."

NERVOUS CHILDREN

The camp is for emotional or nervous children and will be held at Cliffside preparatory school.

The role of the research director will be to prove in a scientific manner the camp has been worthwhile, Dr. Jensen said.

Written tests have been designed by Dr. McCreary-Juhasz which will be given to the children before and after the camp to demonstrate the nature and extent of their change in attitude and thinking.

FUTURE WORK

"The results of these tests will not only have research value but will assist us in our future work with the child," he said.

"Some parents and sponsors have expressed their doubt as to the value of such relatively brief treatment.

"It is generally accepted today that prolonged hospital treatment for children is rarely desirable," Dr. Jensen said.

The camp program is part of continuing treatment, as all the children have been seen by Dr. Jensen at the mental health centre.

The special camp is only one aspect of looking for a cure for the children.

They will be seen again by Dr. Jensen in the coming autumn.

Malaspina Hotel Bankrupt

NANAIMO, B.C. (CP)—A hotel chain and three of its hotels have gone bankrupt. Two other hotels, held by subsidiary companies, are up for sale.

Elgin Investments Ltd., announced it has gone into bankruptcy along with the Malaspina Hotel in Nanaimo, owned by a subsidiary company, and two hotels on Grand Cayman in the West Indies, owned directly by Elgin.

* * *

Hotels in Kimberely, in the B.C. interior, and Prince George are up for sale. Another chain hotel, at Revelstoke, was destroyed by fire last year.

A spokesman for James M. Dunwoody, chartered accountants handling Elgin affairs, said the Malaspina will be sold and offers will be considered for the Grand Cayman operations.

Lake Cowichan Fire Brigade Wants to Join Fire Defence

LAKE COWICHAN — Village council Tuesday night decided to get more details from the provincial fire marshal's office on the fire defence plan, under which buying major equipment would be assisted with grants.

Lake Cowichan fire chief Bob Weismiller explained the federal plan is operated by each province individually, and departments under its jurisdiction will be under the command of the army in emergencies.

Mr. Weismiller said his volunteer fire brigade members agree the village's department should join the new plan.

The fire chief said the fire defence plan has nothing to do with civil defence.

Village clerk William Chappell said at one time it was civil defence.

Mr. Weismiller said the fire defence plan is under the provincial fire marshal.

Village commission chairman Mrs. Mildred Child said I am not against it, but I want to have it clear."

Mr. Weismiller said civil defence grants for the purchase of certain equipment was on a per capita basis but under the new plan is not.

He said "The plan would have advantages for us."

He added in emergencies one of two trucks and some firemen could be called away.

● The federal department of public works advised council the area across from city hall would be best suited as site for a new post office.

The present post office is in leased premises and has become inadequate.

The letter stated certain clearances will have to be obtained from Ottawa before the new office can be built.

Mrs. Child said in the meantime a letter has been written to the department informing officials that council has expressed its favor for that site.

● The village's public works will be instructed to improve an access to the Cowichan River.

Commissioner A. P. Trace said "people are using my back yard to get to the river."

He said "I think the public should not be denied access to the river."

Council also:

Will give $100 to the Vancouver Island Publicity Bureau and will write a letter of appreciation to Charles Strodger of Lake Cowichan for his work at centennial park.

Prairie Basket Picnic In Centennial Plans

NANAIMO — The annual prairie basket picnic will be held at Parksville on July 31.

This year it is a special centennial event, and both prairie and non-prairie residents are welcome.

There will be children's sports, tug-o-war, a ladies' nail driving contest, crowning of a prairie queen, a horseshoe tournament and a fiddling contest.

Tea and coffee will be served and there will be a gate prize.

Building Permits $205,295 at Port

PORT ALBERNI — A total of 20 building permits were issued during the month of June totalling $205,295.

These included three dwellings at $39,320, four alterations and additions at $5,100 and seven garages and carports at $6,175.

Two signs costing $3,500 and alterations to a drycleaning plant at $200, plus a new $24,000 building for Alpine Wooderafts brought commercials permits to $29,000.

Institutional permits involved the new Elim Tabernacle, to cost $34,000, and one school addition at $94,000.

Permits to date are a little over $600,000 down from last years record-setting totals.

Tangled Road Leads to Cowichan Fleece

Wool Washed in Summer, Knitted into Sweaters in Winter

By MARIE CADORETTE

DUNCAN — The road on Koksilah Indian Reserve was narrow, filled with potholes, overgrown with weeds.

Barbed wire fencing and bushes lined both sides of the winding road.

I had my directions bungled up; I pulled into a driveway.

* * *

I marched to the door and rapped three times. Pointing in a northerly direction, a teen-aged boy told me "a white house that-a-way."

I hopped in my little Austin, backed into a ditch, turned around and away.

I was on a quest not for the Golden Fleece, but for the fleece that makes the famous Cowichan Indian Sweaters.

* * *

Finally I reached the house. A dark-eyed girl answered to my knock. After hearing my request she quietly slipped away to awaken her mother.

Madeline Modeste is in her 30s, dark-eyed like her daughter.

"I buy the wool from local sheep farmers. There's a lady at Cobble Hill, but mostly I get the wool from a farmer at Sooke.

"I wash the fleece three or four times by hand in lukewarm water, and hang the raw wool over a line to dry.

"In the winter it is very difficult to dry the wool, so I do much of the washing in the summer and my knitting in the winter."

* * *

"I pay about 50 cents a pound for white wool. The grey and black wool is more expensive—about one or two dollars a pound.

"When the wool is dry it is teased. The fleece is combed until all dirt and tangles disappear. It takes me about four hours to tease the wool.

"My husband, Stan, made me a carder, about three years ago.

* * *

"I spin the fleece into wool on the carder. I design my own patterns.

"Sometimes I use deer or birds but usually I work in various triangular shapes in the different colored wools. Each sweater takes me approximately four days."

Every sweater Mrs. Modeste knits is unique.

Mrs. Modeste has a family of eight children.

* * *

Her two sons Reggie and Vernon work for the municipality. She has four daughters, Alice, Phylis, Sybil and Marilyn.

Stan Modeste and his brother Alwood preserve the ancient Indian culture through carving totem poles.

They also perform tribal dances at official functions.

Stan Modeste carved the Route of the Haidas totem pole located on the Malahat.

Incorporation Studied, Last Time Fists Flew

By BEA HAMILTON

There were shenanigans on Salt Spring Island in 1873, which went on until 1883, a full 10 years of strife, recriminations and accusations between factions, and all because the Island had been incorporated.

* * *

The farmers wouldn't co-operate with the seven councillors, didn't like to be told where to get off, didn't like the new bylaws which restricted their activities, didn't like anything about it.

* * *

They spoke from the shoulder, hit out at times and then turned their backs on the whole business and refused to even acknowledge the rulings of the councillors.

In the farmer's eyes an unpardonable sin had been committed by the councillors — two or three sins in fact.

First, they had talked the farmers into signing a petition which they could barely read, and hardly understood.

Next they pased bylaws to renumerate their own work.

* * *

THAT was the last straw in the bundle of hay. When they squandered money right and left, incurred a debt of $300 which had to be paid by the farmers, then those farmers put down rakes and hoes, put up their fists and with blood pressure zooming sought to get the letters patent cancelled.

They succeeded after a 10-year fight.

Today Salt Spring Islanders are talking incorporation again, after 93 years. But this time, they might make a go of it, and without fisticuffs.

* * *

C. R. Horel, chairman of the investigating committee, highly recommends the village of Ganges consider a proper Village status for an area suggested by the department of municipal affairs. The area goes from Cranberry Road to the sea, over to the hospital on Crofton Road, and back to the sea at the Boat Yard.

* * *

A village in this area would have available $19,400 a year without increasing taxes. The province is at the present time taking $9,821 a year from this area on a 10-mill levy.

The village, says Mr. Horel, would have to maintain roads, except for the main paved road. The back roads, mainly gravel, are maintained now at a cost of $2,000 a year.

The usual practice for a village, in the case of incorporation is to hire the highways crews for maintainance of back roads, which are mainly gravel. The population in the area marked out for village status is about 400.

* * *

Everett Brown, deputy minister of municipal affairs, was present at a meeting attended by 100 residents.

Though many voted in favor of investigating the possibility of getting Ganges into a Village status, many held back, cautiously questioning the whole thing.

* * *

Next a petition will be circulated which must bear 60 per cent of the area owners. This will be followed by a plebiscite at which all property owners would vote. Again a 60-per cent majority is required.

FBI Says Colonel Got $5,500

SECRETS 'SOLD'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — William Henry Whalen, a retired U.S. army lieutenant-colonel who served with the Pentagon's top command, was arrested Tuesday on charges he peddled atomic, missile and bomber secrets to the Russians.

Whalen, 51, who faces a possible death penalty if convicted, was accused of selling the defence department data to two Soviet embassy officials for $5,500.

The Russians who received what the FBI called "information relating to military intelligence matters" were identified as military attache Col. Sergei Edemski, who returned to Russia in 1960, and Mikhail Shumaev, first secretary of the Soviet embassy in Washington, who went home in 1963.

The FBI said Whalen, unemployed at the time of arrest, served on active duty in the army from Oct. 15, 1940, to Feb. 3, 1961, when he retired due to a physical disability.

His last few active years were spent at the Pentagon on the staff of the joint chiefs of staff, the highest U.S. military command.

Whalen was indicted by a grand jury in Newport News, Va., then arrested by the FBI in his home at Alexandria, Va.

Within a few hours, he was released on $15,000 bond.

Officials said several people contributed to the bail, but declined to identify them.

Whalen, described by one neighbor as "one of the kindest men in the neighborhood," lived in a modest split level home on a quiet, wooded street.

The neighbors said Whalen and his wife were friendly, but few people knew them well. They have one child, Kathy, 11.

The U.S. defence department issued a statement saying that it had learned of what it called a "security problem" a number of months ago.

It declined to discuss details of actions taken to counter security violations, but said:

* * *

"After prompt and full investigation, the facts in this case were given special attention, in our continuing efforts to effect improvements in security, particularly as regards security, trustworthiness of personnel in sensitive position and the adequacy of controls over the handling of classified documents."

Hardly Wizard

Young Negro girl sightseeing on grounds of North Carolina state capitol in Raleigh Monday found herself in line of fire on two counts. Old-time cannon seems to be pointing straight at her, and far more important, she wandered into an area just as Ku Klux Klansmen began anti-integration rally on capitol grounds. Indications are rally was quiet.—(AP)

'Open Gates to Outside World'

Johnson Beckons Red China

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Johnson told Communist China's rulers Tuesday night that "co-operation, not hostility, is the way of the future." He urged them to renounce aggressive designs and to open their vast country's gates to the outside world.

In what the White House described as his first major statement on China, the U.S. president appealed for peaceful coexistence with the world's most populous nation as the best hope for a peaceful, prosperous Asia.

At the same time, he warned North Viet Nam—and appealed to Americans to understand—that the United States will stand firm in Viet Nam in a war that "may last a long time."

PEACE FRAUD

Johnson's speech was described in advance by the White House as an official declaration of a "firm but flexible" U.S. policy toward the Peking regime, one firm against aggression but flexible if China ends its expansionist ambitions in Southeast Asia.

As he spoke, Chinese Vice-Premier Chen Yi told a Peking banquet the bombing of Hanoi and Haiphong oil installations was military blackmail designed to force the Vietnamese to accept "the fraud of peace talks." Chen Yi said the Johnson administration had "come down a blind alley" in the war.

The president delivered his speech by telephone to 1,200 members of the American Alumni Council, an association of executives and newspaper editors representing 980 colleges and universities.

Johnson spoke at a time when China is undergoing a political purge of deep but largely unknown dimensions, one evidently centering around its ideological dispute with the Soviet Union's emergent policy of peaceful economic and

Heat Wave Kills 17 In St. Louis

From UPI

A searing heat wave took a heavy toll of lives, triggered power shortages and caused plant layoffs in the U.S. middle west Tuesday. Violent storms battered the lower Great Lakes and deluged Sandusky, Ohio, with nearly 12 inches of rain.

Unseasonably hot, sticky weather made life miserable across most of the eastern two-thirds of America.

The mercury climbed above the 100 mark across a vast belt of the midwest. Air conditioners put a dangerously heavy drain on power supplies.

* * *

The heat was blamed for 17 deaths in St. Louis and four drownings in the Chicago area.

An estimated 300 to 400 persons were given first aid treatment — mostly as a result of the broiling sun and a 103-degree temperature—at the major league all star baseball game in St. Louis (See Page 9.)

Union Electric Co. in St. Louis was forced to shut off electricity to widespread areas of the city to prevent a dangerous power blackout. The shortage prompted General Motors to shut down operations at its Chevrolet and Fisher body plants there.

* * *

The Federal Power Commission, alarmed by an almost statewide power blackout in Nebraska Monday, ordered the nation's major electrical utilities to take extra precautions during the current heat wave to prevent such failures.

By mid-afternoon, the mercury had climbed to 100 or above in Illinois, Missouri, Kansas, Nebraska and Oklahoma as well as in the desert southwest.

* * *

Officials at Sandusky declared a state of emergency when the torrential downpours turned streets into rivers and floodwaters swept into homes, businesses and a hospital.

Hundreds of persons fled from their homes. National Guardsmen were mobilized and amphibious vehicles were brought in to aid in the evacuation.

Peace Balked In Air Strike

WASHINGTON (AP) — Peace talks in the U.S. airline strike broke off Tuesday.

Joseph Ramsey, chief negotiator for the AFL-CIO International Association of Machinists, accused Northwest Airlines of violating an understanding that both sides would maintain the status quo during current negotiations.

Assistant Labor Secretary James Reynolds said he will try to restore relations.

Reynolds described the development as a serious impediment in the effort to end the walkout, which has halted 80 per cent of U.S. air transportation since it began last Friday.

The airlines stopped by the strike are Eastern, Northwest, Trans-World, United and National.

Strike Vote Friday At CBC

TORONTO (CP)—The Toronto Association of Television Producers and Directors decided Tuesday to take a strike vote Friday.

David Thomas, treasurer of the association, who works for the CBC, declined to disclose reasons for the vote.

However, he said the association's membership included producers and directors who are involved in the current troubles at the CBC.

U.S. Firm Bans Milling for Reds

OTTAWA (CP)—Trade Minister Winters said Tuesday a check with several U.S.-owned flour mills in Canada has failed to substantiate charges they have been forbidden by their U.S. head offices to mill Canadian wheat for sale to Cuba.

He said more checks would be made today with other U.S.-owned companies to see whether they have received such instructions.

In Peterborough, a spokesman for Quaker Oats Co. of Canada said the company is forbidden by its U.S. parent from processing any wheat bound for Cuba, China, North Viet Nam and North Korea.

In Montreal, a spokesman for Robin Hood Flour Mills Ltd. said he has received no such order.

Mr. Winters was replying to L. R. Sherman (PC—Winnipeg South) who said he has learned on good authority that Robin Hood, Quaker and Pillsbury flour mills, all three U.S.-owned, have been forbidden to mill wheat for sale to Cuba. He said no such restriction applies to American firms in Canada milling flour for Russian use.

ISSUED EARLIER

Mr. Sherman said the instructions were not new—they had been issued some time ago and never been rescinded.

The Winnipeg broadcaster said 45,000,000 bushels of the recent big grain deal between Canada and Russia were to be milled into flour. Two-thirds of this was earmarked for Cuba and carried a $6,600,000 annual price tag.

TORY CONCERNED

While there were enough Canadian-owned mills to handle the Cuban order and no loss was involved if the American companies did not take part in the order, Mr. Sherman said he was concerned about the effect on Canadian sovereignty.

Would such actions on behalf of the American-owned mills adhere to principles of good corporate citizenship?

Patience Stretched Along 49th

By FRASER KELLY, Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA—Maybe its the heat—or the humidity—but Canada-U.S. relations seem to be getting sticky.

For the past two days the Commons has been subjected to a series of niggling gibes at the United States. Taken alone they look insignificant.

Lumped together, they begin to indicate the patience on both sides of the 49th Parallel is wearing a little thin.

* * *

First, Viet Nam: The Canadian government has expressed "regret" at American bombing of oil dumps outside Hanoi and Haiphong.

It has refused to issue a statement openly deploring the bombing. But it is obvious the federal government believes the U.S. action has hampered the possibility of a negotiated settlement.

Then came the suggestion that at least one Canadian firm has contracted to sell the Americans bombs that could be used in Viet Nam.

The Canadian government has maintained that no Canadian firms sell bombs to the United States.

* * *

But early this week, U.S. Secretary of Defence Robert McNamara told a Washington press conference his government was cancelling some Canadian defence contracts, including one to supply bombs.

Industry Minister Charles Drury, who has been pummelled with questions about the press conference, has promised to investigate.

Tuesday, Conservative leader John Diefenbaker hinted the U.S. was cancelling a $63,000,000 contract to supply the U.S. parts for the DC-9 jetliner. (See also Pages 11, 16.)

* * *

Mr. Drury promised to investigate that too.

Mr. Diefenbaker also asked if Prime Minister Pearson had received a letter from President Johnson protesting the agreement to provide direct flights between Moscow and Montreal.

Then Tory L. R. Sherman, from Winnipeg, told the Commons the U.S. is infringing on Canadian sovereignty by preventing three Canadian subsidiaries of U.S. firms from milling flour for sale to Cuba.

Trade and Commerce Minister Winters promised to investigate that, too.

With three big complaints, there'll be no end to the yacking.

Tiniest Boat Crosses Atlantic

FENIT, Ireland (UPI) — A lone U.S. sailor brought his homemade 12-foot sailboat into this small port on Ireland's southwest coast Tuesday to complete a 65-day crossing of the Atlantic from Florida.

William Verity, 40, of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., made the voyage in his tiny sloop Nonsica to fulfil his goal of crossing the Atlantic in the smallest boat on record.

* * *

Cleveland newsman Robert Manry crossed the Atlantic last year in a 13½ foot sailboat, the Tinkerbelle.

Verity said he also wanted to show it was possible that man crossed the Atlantic in small boats long before Columbus sailed to America.

He said he believed his voyage proved Europeans, among them the Phoenicians and the early Irish monks, sailed the Atlantic in tiny craft. He maintained it also lent support to an Irish legend that the Irish discovered America before Columbus or the Norwegians.

Verity, a 5-foot, 6½ inch boat builder, said he completed his lonely sail without much incident.

At one point, he said, he ran into some rough weather, broke a halyard and had to climb the mast to repair it.

He said he was in no real danger until he reached the County Kerry coast Monday night in darkness and had difficulty in fixing his position.

When he arrived, he still had about 10 days supply of food left.

* * *

Verity started his journey from Veracruz, Mexico, more than a year ago but spent several months in Fort Lauderdale before resuming the voyage last May.

The name of his boat, Nonsica, is the Mexican Indian word for stranger, or foreigner.

Two Ships Ablaze In Atlantic

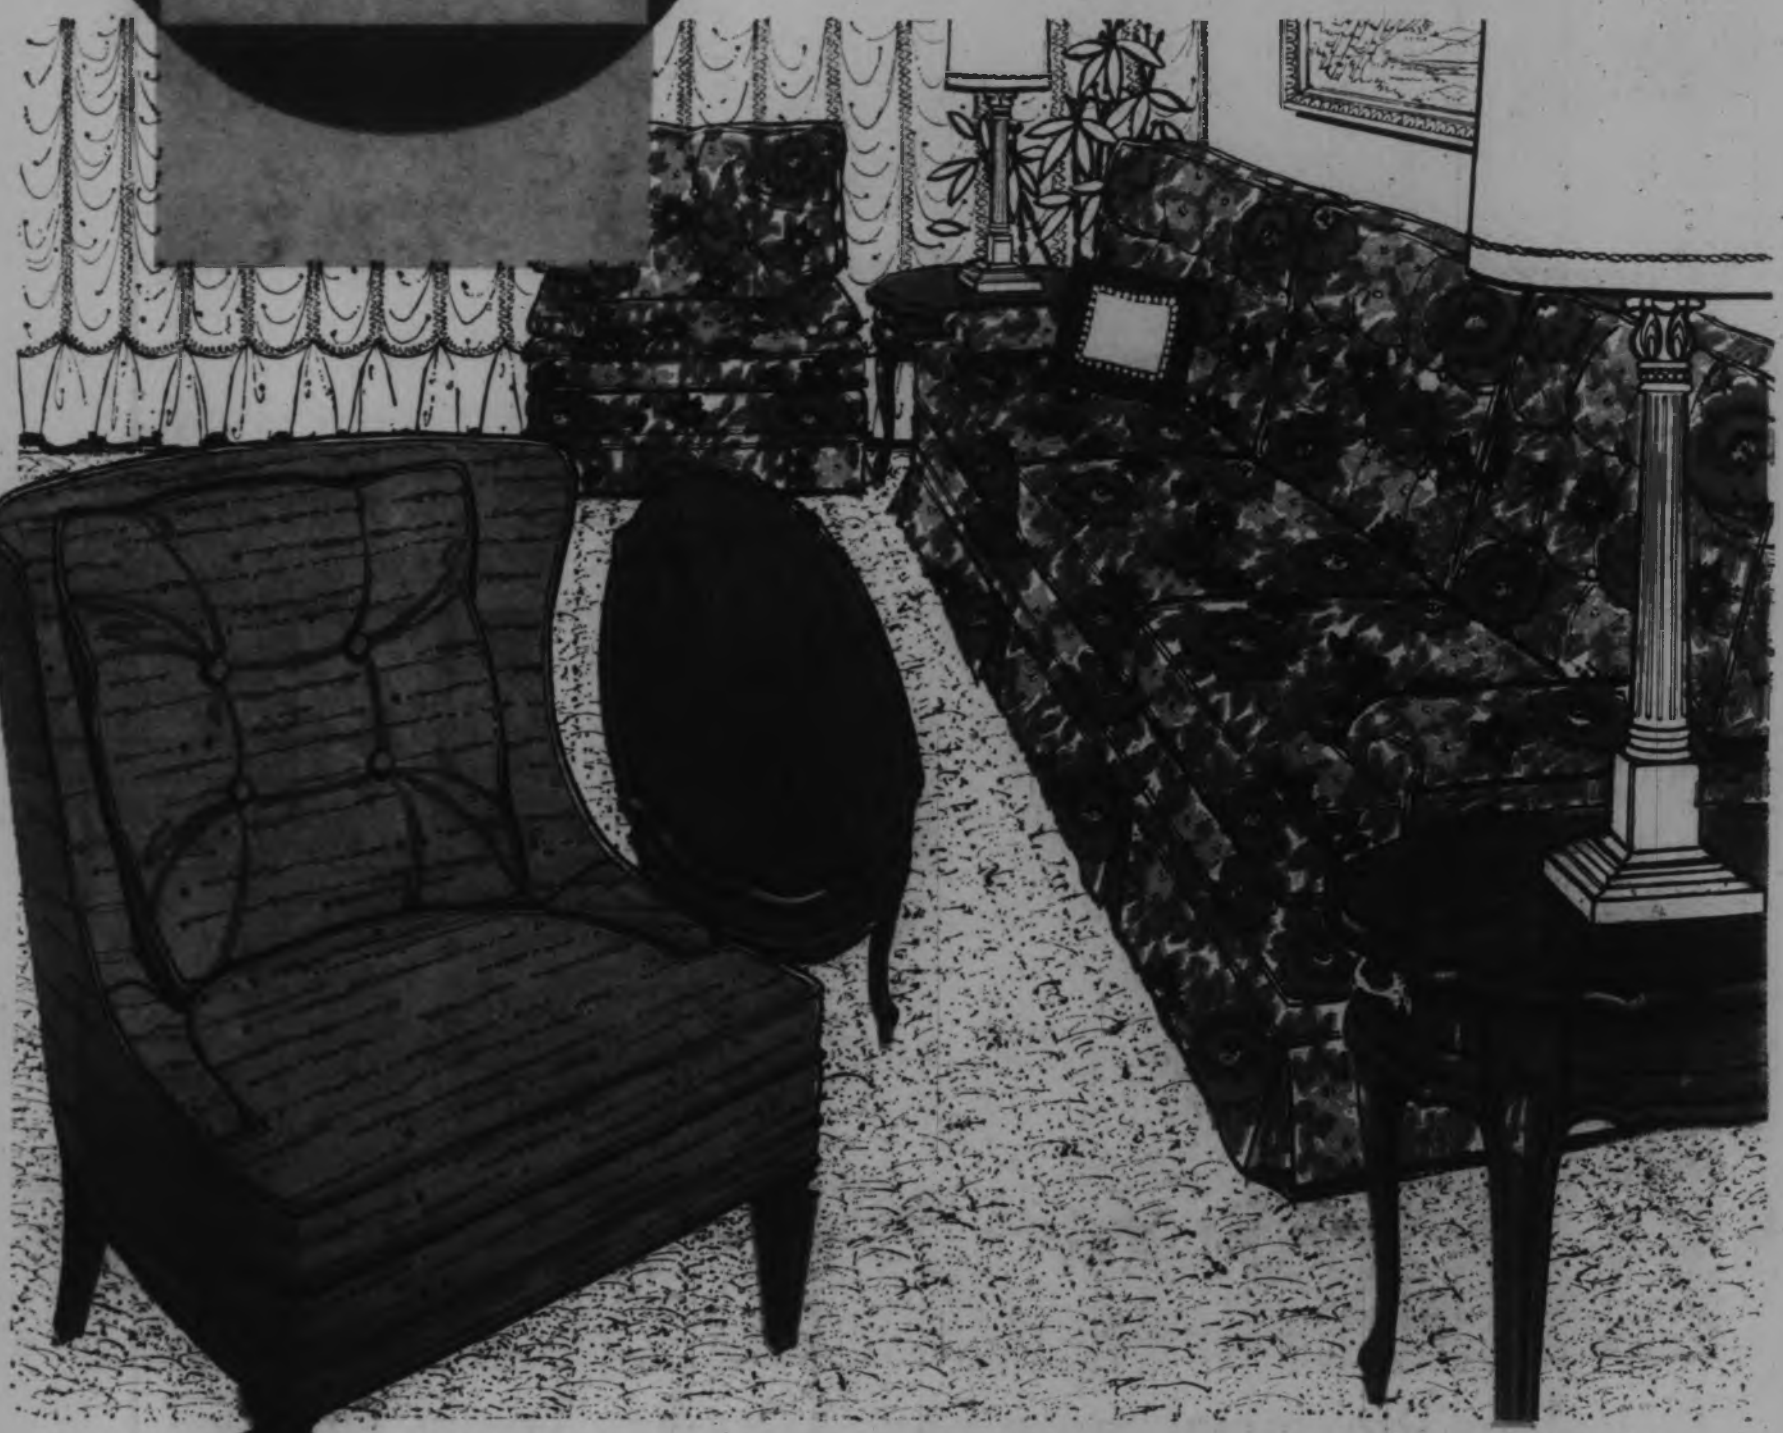

THE HAGUE (Reuters) — The big Norwegian tanker Mosli and the Greek tanker Maristis Nomikos radioed today that they are on fire after a collision in the Atlantic about 300 miles off the Azores, Dutch maritime sources said.

The British ship Reavely radioed it could see one ship ablaze from stern to stern.
